MISSISSIPPI SEEKS PLACE IN LIMELIGHT

BY RICHARD SPILLANE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Mississippi, one of the most backward States for the last quarter century, is planning to bring itself and its resources to the notice of America. A nation-wide publicity and advertising campaign is not unlikely. A representative of the State is in New York and has opened temporary offices.

"We have been cursed by partisan politics," he says. "We worked overtime damning Wall street and building a Chinese wall about ourselves. We succeeded in keeping capital out of a State where nearly everything that nature can provide is to be found or can be raised in abundance.

"There has been a change, a great change, in Mississippi. But it is only a beginning. Some northern men have been responsible in part. Paul J. Rainey of Cleveland and New York is one of them. John Borden of Chicago is another. Both of them are not only wealthy, but have achieved distinction as huntsmen and explorers.

POLES DRIVE OFF BAND OF LITHUANIANS

Many Killed and Guns Are Captured in Attack After Pillaging

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, Feb. 26.—The Polish population near Suwalki, exasperated by the pillaging committed by a band of Lithuanian irregulars, attacked and drove the band off. Many Lithuanians were killed and wounded and five machine guns were capture.

The Poles captured proofs that the Lithuanians were commanded by German officers.

During the conversations between the Lithuanians and Poles for tracing the neutral zone boundary, the Lithuanians demanded that the Poles evacuate Spiengenik and Pokdamirn, which they consider were given to Lithuania, although the League of Nations allocated the towns in the neutral zone.

Lithuanian regulars attacked Pokdamirn, and the Polish customs guards, following orders, retreated without contest.

The Lithuanians then attacked Pusanowo and Kazimierowka, near Landvorovo. After half an hour struggle the Lithuanians were repulsed by the Poles. One officer and three men were wounded.

Negotiations for the resumption of telegraph service between Poland and Russia are under way.

SENATE GETS AX OUT FOR WORLD COURT

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The chances of Senate action at this session on President Harding's request for authority to make the United States a member of the International Court of Justice dropped close to the zero mark today.

Irreconcilable Senators, showing no abatement of their opposition to the League of Nations, in part or in whole, promptly proclaimed their determination to filibuster against the ratification of the protocol under which the United States would participate in the International Court.

FILIBUSTER THREATENED

Furthermore, they furnished rather convincing proof that they would be able to make their filibuster successful, so successful, in fact, that their leaders had no hesitancy in predicting that the protocol would never emerge from the Foreign Relations Committee, to which it was referred Saturday.

Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, Republican leader, issued a call for a meeting of the committee tomorrow to take up President Harding's message, but irreconcilable members of the committee declared that the time remaining before March 4 would be wholly inadequate for the thorough consideration which the importance of the subject required. In fact, Senator Lodge himself expressed himself as being opposed to any "railroading" process under which the measure might be rushed through in the closing moments of the session.

Democratic Senators chortled with glee over the problems created on the Republican side by the President's message and they lost no time in jockeying for political advantage to be gained from the situation.

MOVE FOR RATIFICATION

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, introduced a resolution for ratification of the protocol. It was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee for consideration along with the President's message. It was rather plainly intimated that the King resolution was merely the forerunner of a move on the Democratic side to discharge the Foreign Relations Committee from further consideration of the protocol, and to bring the President's proposal squarely before the Senate before the expiration of the present session.

The Democrats believe that such a motion would create much embarrassment among the Republicans, but the irreconcilibles quickly retorted that it would be no more difficult to filibuster against such a motion than it would be to hold up action in the Foreign Relations Committee.

The suggestion went around that President Harding might call the Senate to a special session to ratify the protocol immediately after March 4, but administration leaders who seemed to be qualified to speak with authority insisted that the President had no such intention.

JOHNSON HAS SAY

"If we now do what is asked the situation is this: We are wholly out of the League. We are in part of the League. By reservations we are out of the part of the League we are in. The part of the League we are in and from which by reservations we get out functions as a part of the League with our assistance. In the language of a great editor of the

Isadora Duncan May be Shorn of Citizenship

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—If Isadora Duncan, the dancer, dislikes American institutions and American ways as much as she pretends, she may soon be relieved of ever bothering about them again.

In view of remarks attributed to her recently as she was sailing from New York for Europe, Secretary Davis, as head of the governmental department dealing with naturalization, has asked Atty.-Gen. Daugherty if there is not a way in which she can be divisted forever of her citizenship. In the past the dancer's right to enter the United States has been challenged because of her radical utterances, but on every occasion she has been able to establish her status as a citizen.

GIRL KIDNAPER CONFESSES

Admits Abduction and Assault of Children; Leads Police to Body of Lust Victim

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—Wylie Morgan, the prisoner held in connection with the kidnaping Saturday of 6-year-old Lillian Gilmore and her 5-year-old sister Dorothy, confessed tonight and led the detectives to a spot on a creek near Croydon, Pa., where the body of Lillian was found in a tree stump hole. Croyden is twenty miles north of this city.

The child's body was taken to the house by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilmore, in the Kensington district.

Beyond stating that he had kidnaped the children and thrown Lillian's body on the bank of the creek after having assaulted both, the police withheld the details of Morgan's confession.

Shortly after the searching party returned to the city, a large crowd surrounded the station where Morgan was placed, and for a time it was feared an attempt would be made to storm the building. The police, however, soon dispersed the crowds.

Little Dorothy Gilmore, whose pathetic story of the kidnaping and assault led to Morgan's arrest yesterday, had practically recovered tonight from her experience. She led a party of searchers during the day to an ice-covered pond at the intersection of Torresdale avenue and Bridge street, where she said Morgan had put her out of his motor car and from where she managed to make her way home.

The report said that both engines pulling the train were derailed, one being overturned.

GOVERNOR TO PUSH BUDGET

Issue Will be Kept Before Voters Until It Is Passed or Defeated, Mrs. Pierce Says

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Voters of California are going to hear of the budget from Gov. Richardson's point of view until the budget is either adopted or turned down by the Legislature, according to Mrs. Nellie B. Pierce of the State Board of Control, and the chief advocate of the budget.

Mrs. Pierce was here today and spoke before two organizations in defense of the budget. Later in the week she goes to Riverside, where she will debate with A. R. Heron, deputy director of education. Mrs. Pierce today said that she would speak just as often as possible on the budget in order that the people would receive correct information regarding the State's finances and not be misguided by attacks being made by educational politicians.

Friends of Richardson say that much erroneous information, or propaganda, has been handed out about the budget's treatment of the State's helpless charges. They point out that wherever the sick or crippled, the insane or feebleminded are sheltered, money has been provided in sufficient amounts to meet the needs. Orphans are provided for in the sum of $2,500,000.

Gov. Richardson, in discussing the budget recently, said: "The institutions that appear to have no friends were cared for by the Board of Control and myself. I saw to it that these institutions got all the money needed. A total of $7,412,232.10 was appropriated for the Department of Institutions, Sonoma Home for the Feeble-Minded and the six State hospitals, as compared with $7,135,788.13 in the expenditures during the closing biennium for the same institutions."

If the Richardson budget is adopted these institutions will have a total of $276,444.92 more to spend on their patients than they have in the present biennium.

Mistake Leads to Raid

A mistake in identity led last night to a raid on a house at 3473 Moneta avenue, after which eight men were arrested and charged with gambling. The mistake was made by one of the eight, who met Officer Hoy of the purity squad on Third street yesterday afternoon and invited him to participate in a game of jungle billiards, according to Hoy. The officer sent a brother officer with marked money, and at the appropriate time the place was raided by Officers Hoy, Berkman and Massey and the arrests were made.

Aerial War on Bootlegging Is Considered

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SPOKANE, Feb. 26.—Advisability of purchasing a powerful airplane with which to combat aerial bootleggers or smugglers is being considered by Sheriff Clarence Long, of Spokane county, he announced today following his seizure of an airplane, asserted to have been used in liquor running. The airplane has been identified, according to the Sheriff's office, as one which yesterday landed eight cases of whisky at the Park Water aviation field here, and then made its escape.

Although stating that he did not know whether it would be advisable at this time to purchase a plane for law enforcement purposes, Sheriff Long added that such use of airplanes will be an absolute necessity in the near future.

SEIZURE OF CASH IN COLOGNE MAY END IN RUPTURE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—According to the Cologne correspondent of the Times, the situation brought about by the seizure of German marks at Cologne is regarded as critical. The British authorities hold that the seizure of the funds, part of which was intended for the British army, was quite unjustifiable, and in demanding the release of these funds, are taking an unusually firm attitude.

The correspondent adds that several British officials resent "the humiliating position in which they are placed by the establishment of a cordon of French posts, which now completely blanket the British zone."

TELL STORY OF SPLIT

The various inter-Allied conferences in London and Paris during December and January on reparations and inter-Allied debts, culminating in the disagreement of January 4, form the subject of a British blue book issued today.

The report shows how the Allies unsuccessfully endeavored to bridge the differences between Great Britain and France.

The breaking point apparently was reached on January 2, says the book, when Prime Minister Bonar Law, in reply to Premier Poincare, said the difference between them was one of fact, and that he believed it was best to get the most money they could from Germany and not attempt to get as much as they would like.

Bonar Law pointed out that information in his possession showed Germany to be on the point of industrial collapse.

"And, indeed," he continued, "in my opinion, it would be contrary to the whole experience of history and the view of all economists if such terrible inflation as has been going on there is not followed by the biggest crisis seen in almost any country."

POINCARE UNYIELDING

After adjournments and resumption of the negotiations, the final break came on January 4, when Poincare made it clear that he was unable to modify his opinion, stating that the British proposals were tantamount to the complete upsetting of the Treaty of Versailles and that the respective viewpoints of the two governments were absolutely irreconcilable.

Bonar Law thereupon handed in a note, asserting that if the French proposals were carried into effect, "they will not only fail of attaining the desired results, but are likely to have a grave and even disastrous effect upon the economic situation of Europe."

Great Britain was unable to accept responsibility for the proposals, he said.

BYSTANDER IS SHOT DOWN IN CHICAGO ROW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Another of Chicago's notorious union-labor leaders and gunman de luxe "bit the dust" tonight when William (Red) Kinsella was shot to death in Liberty Hall, on the West Side, in a gun battle developing out of a meeting of the Hebrew butchers' branch of the Amalgamated Meat-cutters and Butcher Workmen. Paul Rodin, an innocent bystander, was perhaps fatally wounded by a stray bullet.

The police are at a loss to ascribe a motive for the shooting, the twenty-five or more men who were attending the union meeting having vanished within five minutes after the fusillade.

FINDS HALL DESERTED

Patrolman Madigan of the Fillmore-street station was two blocks from the hall when the firing began. He ran to the scene in time to see a dozen men tearing out of the hall and down the street at breakneck speed. Climbing to the second floor, where the meeting had been in progress, the officer found the hall deserted.

Continuing his search, Madigan came upon the prostrate form of Kinsella. The man was dead. He had been shot once in the head, once through the heart, four times in the back and once through the left arm.

Kinsella's body was taken to a morgue, where it was searched. A .38-caliber automatic pistol was found in his pocket. Two cartridges had been discharged, while two others evidently had failed to explode, bearing the marks of the plunger.

HAD BEEN AT SCHOOL

At St. Anthony's Hospital, where he had been taken, Rodin told the police all he knew of the shooting. He had been attending night school, he said, and intended stopping in the hall on his way home to explain why his father had fallen in arrears in paying his union dues.

As Rodin's foot touched the third step from the entrance he said the first shot was fired. Almost simultaneously two men burst through the doors of the hall, their revolvers spitting flame. One bullet went wild, striking Rodin in the right shoulder and tumbling him back down the stairs. He rolled to one side in time to avoid the rush of men that flowed from the building and lay there until a pedestrian carried him into a drug store.

MAY INDICT DRY LEADER

Grand Jury of New York Asked to Find Larceny Bill Against W. H. Anderson

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Acting Dist.-Atty. Pecora today went before the grand jury with the request that William H. Anderson, State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, be indicted on a charge of grand larceny, and presented as his first witnesses the Rev. Dr. George Caleb Moor, secretary, and Bertram H. Fancher, treasurer of the league.

After Dr. Moor's testimony, Mr. Pecora presented books of the league which have been in his possession for several weeks. With the completion of Mr. Fancher's testimony, the grand jury adjourned until tomorrow afternoon, when Miss Maude M. O'Dell, confidential secretary to Anderson, and Miss Mary Hill, assistant treasurer of the league, will be heard.

Mr. Pecora, before entering the jury room, declared it was imperative that the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, president of the league, appear before the grand jury to explain certain aspects of the league's financial relations with Anderson.

He said he explained his attitude today to Edgar T. Brackett, counsel to Anderson, who had notified him that the aged clergyman was too ill to appear before the jury today. Mr. Brackett promised, he said, to confer with Dr. Burrell's physician, and to ascertain whether it would not be possible for Dr. Burrell to come before the grand jury this week.

Mr. Pecora, who for several months has been investigating Mr. Anderson's connection with the league's financial affairs, said his request for an indictment charging grand larceny would be based upon disposition of $24,700 which the dry leader said had been used for publicity purposes.

Mr. Pecora said he had not desired to bring the case before the grand jury, but had been forced to do so by Mr. Anderson's refusal to make any explanation of his expenditure. Mr. Pecora explained that the inquiry began last fall, but was kept under cover during the election campaign to prevent any suspicion of political manipulation to attach to it.

Mr. Anderson, having refused to waive immunity, will not appear before the grand jury, Mr. Pecora said.

Boasts of Bear, Wild Turkey, Great Water Power

United States. Bears, wild turkeys, quail and pheasants are abundant. Our game laws are about the best in the nation.

"The grand national fox hound championship trials were held this year in Mr. Rainey's 30,000-acre estate. At Tippah Lodge he has his trophies gathered from all quarters of the globe.

"Last fall there were polo games three miles south of Granada in which members of all the prominent polo clubs of the United States participated. There were 100 polo ponies in action.

"John Borden has an immense acreage. His country residence and other buildings spread out over fifty acres. His registered cattle, sheep and other stock are of the highest grade. He also has brought in every known kind of pheasant.

"At Pine Crest there is a hog farm on which there is one boar that is insured for $75,000. He has a little bungalow all to himself.

"There has been a large importation of blooded cattle, Jersey and Hereford mostly, yet while we raise the best in America our people buy Chicago meats.

OH, THE CLIMATE!

"We have a benign climate. Our hotels are improving. At Charleston we just have built the finest hotel in the State.

"Now we are going to go after winter tourists—not in competition with Florida, but the people who love nature outdoors. In the string of lakes there is wonderful fishing and we have planted wild rice and celery to bring back the great colonies of wild ducks.

"Our greatest effort will be for industrial development. At Granada we have a miniature Muscle Shoals. The power possible of harnessing is enormous. The cost would be small relatively, for the conditions are ideal. The stream is the Yalobusha. It and the Tallahatchie make the Yazoo, which flows into the Mississippi. Develop the energy of the Yalobusha and manufacturing industries will blossom in Mississippi, for various other of our streams have hydro-electric possibilities of high worth.

In the delta region we have oil richer than in any other section of the earth, barring the Valley of the Nile. There, too, we have baronial estates of 10,000 or 20,000 acres with fine old mansions, of the old south such as you cannot match elsewhere in America. In that same delta region is the greatest stand of hardwood in this country. As it is cut the land is turned to cultivation. At Charlestown, the Lamb-Fikh Lumber Company, has the largest hardwood mill in the western world.

"We want population and capital. We are getting in touch with the immigration authorities to see if we cannot get a fair share of workers and home makers out of the people arriving at Ellis Island.

"We want northern capitalist to know what Mississippi offers.

"We want winter vacationists. They do a lot to spread the story we wish to get out. But when you come down to brass tacks the printed word is what reaches everybody, so I expect we will get around to a broad national advertising campaign.

"Mississippi is well worthy of consideration, I assure you. It has all the charm of the Mississippi of old, but it is a new Mississippi in that we have rid ourselves of our political pests."

PURITY RAID TIP STARTS EVACUATION

Clean-up of Rooming-house Violators Causes Exodus of Masseurs

Women posing as Swedish masseurs and manicurists, but whose names have appeared before on the police blotter as vagrants and violators of the rooming-house ordinance, began a hurried exodus from their massage parlors yesterday when news was flashed over the underground wires that a drive had been launched against them by the police.

Three so-called massage parlors have been closed by Detective Sergt. Mauzy and his raiders. Six others have suddenly gone out of business. About a dozen more are slated for raids.

At 732½ West Seventh street Riciando Balbiano, was arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile. Lenora Smith, 17 years of age, who declared she was a motion-picture actress, was placed in the custody of the City Mothers and later released. Another juvenile, whose name was withheld, also was held, and later released. Balbiano, according to the police, has been arrested before for violation of the Wright Act and as a vagrant.

At 705 Union League Building, Irene Davis was arrested for violation of the rooming-house ordinance and Mrs. B. Rewick was charged with conducting a disorderly house.

At 254 South Broadway, Ruth Davis and G. Lipson were arrested for violation of the rooming-house ordinance. Charges to revoke licenses have been filed against two of the places and will be heard by the Police Commission today. The Purity Squad was assisted in the raids by the Morals Efficiency Commission.

STANDARD OIL DENIES CHARGES OF "FIXING"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Four witnesses were produced by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, including its president and the chairman of its board, before the Senate oil investigating committee today in refutation of charges made against the company by Thomas S. Black, president of the Western Petroleum Company of Chicago.

Dr. W. M. Burton, president, and R. W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard of Indiana, John M. Carson, president of the Taxman Refining Company of Chicago, and E. S. Hughes, former vice-president of the Western Petroleum Company, all categorically denied and declared false portions of the testimony given by Black before the committee two weeks ago to the effect that the Standard of Indiana had fixed prices. W. H. Isom, by telegraph, presented further denial of Black's charges.

Dr. Burton branded as "absolutely untrue" testimony by Black that he, as president of the Standard of Indiana, promised to give the Western Petroleum Company considerable business as oil brokers if Black would take care of his stepson, Mr. Hughes. He further denied that the Standard of Indiana gave Black advance information as to changes in the prices of crude oil and gasoline.

PACKER BATTLE STARTED AGAIN

Steps Taken Against Merger of Armour and Morris

Violation of Packers' and Stockyard Act Charged

Complaints Are Served by Secretary Wallace

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Another battle was begun today by the government against what it asserts would be a monopoly in industry when Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture Department took steps to prevent Armour & Co. from acquiring the business of Morris & Co.

Consummation of the consolidation would result in the largest meat-packing enterprise in the history of the country with annual sales of more than $1,000,000,000.

F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., declaring the present administration had proclaimed its belief in "less government in business and more business in government," said that his company heartily subscribed to that slogan and was willing to meet the issue involved speedily and without fear of the result.

COURT MAY DECIDE

Before legality of the merger is finally decided, several months are expected to elapse and in all probability the case will reach the Supreme Court for determination.

Secretary Wallace, proceeding under authority given him in the Packers and Stockyards Act, served complaints on Armour & Co., J. Ogden Armour and Morris & Co., charging them with violation of the act by entering into a written agreement for the sale of Morris & Co. The complaints said transfer was to be made on or before the 28th inst., and that Morris & Co. would be eliminated entirely as a competitor in the packing business. The acquisition, the complaints set forth, would effect a restraint of interstate commerce and would have the effect of creating a monopoly in many sections of the United States in the purchase of live stock and in the shipment and sale of meat and other live-stock products in this country and abroad. The merger would materially increase the power of Armour & Co., it was stated, to control and dominate the live-stock and meat-packing industry.

HEARING IS SET

A hearing was set for Monday, April 2, in Washington before the Secretary of Agriculture, at which the packing companies specified will be required to show cause why an order should not be issued against the consolidation. Such an order would be subject to appeal to the United States Court of Appeals at Chicago in thirty days. Decree of that court would be final except for review by the Supreme Court.

If the packers, in the event final determination of the issue is in favor of the government, fail to obey the order they would be subject to a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than five years, or both.

Government officials said there was nothing in the Packers and Stockyards Act which would prevent Armour & Co. from completing the purchase of Morris & Co., but that if the government was upheld in the final decision of the case the Armour company would have to divest itself of the Morris plants and business.

Last Curtain Descends for Famous Actor

Felicitations, San Francisco, on Our Weather

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—Spring arrived thermally although it was not due according to the Gregorian calendar. The temperature rose to 70 degrees at 2 p.m. The weather bureau reported it as the warmest day this year and the warmest February day since Feb. 18, 1899, when the mercury went up to 80 degrees.

Parks were filled with sun baskers and many went to the beaches. The weather man said there would be more weather like it tomorrow in the bay region.

Coincident with the warm weather 800 pounds of asparagus arrived on the local markets, and commission men said continued warm weather would mean a large movement of that vegetable.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Feb. 26.—Cutting through a wire fence and breaking open the door leading to the office, burglars early this morning removed a heavy iron safe from the plant of the Crescent Creamery Company on Pepper street, drove to a secluded spot about a mile distant and broke open the safe, from which they obtained about $300 in currency.

RICH BUILDER MURDERED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—In a lonely spot on Sound View avenue, the Bronx, a patrolman tonight discovered the body of Fred Schneider, wealthy contractor, seated in his automobile with two bullet wounds in his head. On the seat, with its muzzle pointing toward him, lay a .45-caliber automatic.

Detectives were told by Nick Fullmer, a farmer, whose home adjoined the road at the spot, that "a blonde woman, well dressed, and carrying a dark bag" had alighted from the automobile and hurried away, just after he had heard two sounds like muffled pistol shots.

The machine was headed in the direction of Schneider's office, a half-mile away. There it was said the contractor had gone to lunch at noon with three of his girl stenographers. The girls had returned.

NOT LIVING WITH WIFE

According to the police, Schneider was married, but had, for some time, been separated from his wife.

The driver of the machine had been shot once in the nape of the neck, and once behind the right ear. Either wound might have caused instant death, and it undoubtedly was a case of murder, said authorities.

Schneider had been making $1,000,000 a year in the contracting business, detectives were informed by a nephew, William Schneider, who is a member of the firm of Frederick Schneider, Inc., which the slain man headed.

STORY OF MOVEMENTS

At 3:30 p.m. today, young Schneder said, his uncle inspected a building going up on Broadway, and, leaving, said he would oe at his Bronx office at 5:30.

Mrs. Mary Mattler, who occupied a floor in the apartment on Grand Concourse, the Bronx, where the contractor lived, reported having seen him drive home at about 5:30 p.m., pick up his pet dogs, and drive off. The dogs were in the machine when found.

CASH SEIZURE STIRS BRITISH

thing up their sleeves, followed by a corroborating statement from London from Charles Schwab, the Ruhr pricked up its ears like a horse that has waited for a long time in a drizzle and finally hears a word indicating that he is going to get somewhere.

While German papers have published whatever information on the subject they could glean from the French press, they have occasionally refrained from comment other than to warn their readers it was a false alarm.

The French here cannot speak officially, but private conversations indicate no particular friendliness for a foreign proposal to arrange the difficulty.

Even here it is apparent that the United States is officially and unofficially exhibiting great concern over the situation precipitated by the occupation of the Ruhr. The American delegate to the International Chamber of Commerce toured the valley a few days ago and made a report. An attache of the American Embassy in Berlin is expected in Essen tomorrow, and correspondents are sitting up nights to receive Charles M. Schwab.

TAKE MORE TERRITORY

The French have taken additional territory along the Rhine, occupying the areas between the bridgeheads at Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne, including Limberg, on the Lahu River.

Three blast furnaces at Rhinehausen shut down for want of coke and a depression is reported in the porcelain industry in Baden for want of raw material.

For three years Kaub has been a hotbed of anti-French agitation on the Rhine. The occupation of the city Sunday was so sudden that the troops arrested twelve of the propaganda personnel, captured records and two tons of literature.

An Italian workman entering the French barracks at Essen disregarded a command to halt and was shot dead.

The 13,000,000,000 marks seized on the Berlin-Cologne express has developed to have been 6,000,000,000 marks for banks in the Rhineland, which will be confiscated, and 7,000,000,000 marks destined for the Reichsbank in Cologne. French and British officers are conferring to decide whether the money was intended to defray the expenses of the English force on the Rhine.

Liner Mounts Gun to Fight Opium Traffic

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 26. — It is learned that a machine gun was mounted on the deck of the China Mail liner China here Saturday night for the purpose of preventing opium smugglers picking up packages of the narcotic thrown overboard by confederates. It is said the gun will be manned by two special investigators employed by the line with orders to fire on any small boats seen picking up packages of opium. The company officials stated they intended to abolish opium smuggling on its steamships. The company was recently fined several thousand dollars as the result of narcotics being found aboard the China. The vessel sailed for the mainland late Saturday night.

REVEAL STRIKE SABOTAGE ACTS

TELLS OF MURDER

The first witness, Rudolph Erspke, machinist, testified that on Sept. 27, 1922, his brother, F. R. Erseke, was murdered in Daly City by six men who beat him to death with gas pipes. Four of them are now in the penitentiary. One of the latter he named as Claude Merritt, who, according to a later witness, was elected officer of a local union after the strike began. The witness declared that he and his murdered brother were both union men who had refused to join the strike.

Ernest O. Preskett, formerly at the Sacramento railroad shops, told of being kidnaped by six Greeks, backed by a mob. He said he was bruised and kicked and carried far into the country, where he was made to hold up his right hand and swear never again to work for the Southern Pacific Company. He said he recognized two of the men as former employees of the shops.

Frank Clark, car inspector, who first gave his age as 23 and then changed it to 43 amid general laughter, said that for four months he went to work accompanied by a guard. This was because he had been accosted by six men who struck at him from all sides, one of them using a club, and when they left him told him if he went to work again "the next thing for him would be in the morgue."

DRAWS SARCASM

Carl Renstedt, machinist of Sacramento, told a hard luck story that drew from the labor federation counsel, instead of cross-examination, a sacrastic reference to the police of California's Capital City. Renstedt said that while he was on his way to work July 18, two men grabbed him, took away his cane and beat him with it, and then, after dragging him to the labor temple, called police officers and accused him of assault. Three officers escorted him to jail the witness said, and he was kept there twenty-four hours, and then he was released without any charge having been placed against him.

Soap in his engine's boiler was testified to by John Le Broke, engineer. Le Broke said that the soap would quickly have caused the boiler to blow up if he had not found it. Mulholland sought to show that such an occurrence was quite usual when alkali water is used, but when the witness said he found powdered soap, package and all, in the boiler, the attorney said he would surrender to the evidence of the package.

At Sacramento there were pickets at all entrances of the company's yards, according to Thomas F. Moore, special agent of the Southern Pacific. Many were armed with clubs and they stopped street cars and automobiles, taking men off.

TRANSCRIPT SENT EAST

Other witnesses testifying to acts of sabotage, violent picketing or assaults were: P. Runyon, H. E. Brown, E. M. Parker, Fred A. Denny, engineers; Joseph B. Neal, engine inspector; William B. Kirkland, train master; Joaquin Costa, yardman; W. H. Locke and Clyde T. Kitchell, special officers of the Southern Pacific, and H. J. Kruse, an employee of the Pacific Fruit Express Company.

The hearing was concluded shortly after noon today and Taylor left at once for the East. He ordered a transcript of the evidence sent to Washington, where it is to be used in connection with the matter of the final hearing of Atty.-Gen. Daugherty's injunction against the union railroad strikers. Hearings similar to the one just concluded here have been held or are in progress in all States affected by the strike, the Attorney-General seeking to show justification for his application for the sweeping injunction which practically put an end to the strike.

Mad Cat Bites Church-Goers; Rabies Feared

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, Feb. 26.—A mad cat at a church meeting here last night caused a panic and bit two persons, who are preparing to take the Pasteur treatment to prevent rabies.

Miss Leila Shattuck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Shattuck, 120 South San Antonio avenue, and Everett Chaffee, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Chaffee, 306 Granada Court, were the victims. The First Baptist Church, where a young people's meeting was being held, was invadee by the cat, which was chased to the street and killed. Dr. S. S. Edwards, City Health Officer, took the cat's head to Los Angeles for examination, and if the animal is found to have been rabid, the two injured persons will take the Pasteur treatment.

G. C. PERKINS IS DEATH'S VICTIM

Former Senator Succumbs at Oakland Home

Had Been Resident of State Since in 1855

Served in Washington and as Governor

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

Senator Perkins had been ill for five years, the malady taking a serious turn five months ago. His five children, George E. Perkins, Mrs. Edward J. Adams, Mrs. George MacKinnon and Mrs. Cleveland Baker, all of Oakland, and Lieut.-Commander Fred E. Perkins, United States Navy, were at the death bed.

One of Senator Perkins's first experiences in California was as driver of a mule team at Ophir, now Oroville, after his arrival in San Francisco in 1855. He laid the foundation for his fortune as the operator of a ferry across Long Bar on the Feather River. He was married in 1866 to Ruth A. Parker at Marysville, Cal., and was a widower at the time of his death.

HIGH IN MASONRY

He also was former Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of California and Past Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of California.

Senator Perkins's home was one of the show places in Oakland, one of the streets bounding it being named in honor of him.

At the age of 13, young Perkins left his home at Kennebunkport, Me., to become a sailor before the mast. For a number of years he followed the life of the sea, visiting nearly every port of the world. Touching, finally, in 1855, at San Francisco, he caught the gold fever and turned prospector and miner.

As a country storekeeper in California, Perkins becomes interested in politics and was elected to the State Senate in 1869 and to the Governorship ten years later. In 1893 he was appointed United United States Senator to fill the unexpired term of Leland Stanford, the appointment being confirmed later by the Legislature. Subsequently he was re-elected to three full terms.

AIDED BY TRAINING

Mr. Perkins's long experience in seafaring gave him recognition as an authority in the Senate on the many measures relating to maritime affairs and the naval establishments. He was constantly consulted on these subjects, and whenever a question arose on the floor of the Senate regarding some technical point in shipping, by mutual consent it was usually referred to the authoritative judgment of the California Senator, who was always supplied with the fullest technical details on such subjects. This led to his rapid promotion to positions of influence on the Senate committees on naval Affairs, Commerce and Appropriations. During the four years preceding the Democratic control of the Senate, Mr. Perkins was chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, and as such became a controlling influence in shaping naval legislation.

On his retirement from the United States Senate, March 4, 1915, Mr. Perkins returned to his home in Oakland, Cal.

AX SHARPENED BY SENATORS

West "all of which is partly true" we are not going into the League of Nations at this session of Congress."

Failure on the part of the Senate to consent to official participation by the United States in the work of the permanent court would be for that body to set itself up in opposition to the manifest wishes of the great majority of the American people, according to administration officials.

It was pointed out that the decisions of the court are not put into effect by force, and that this government would not be called upon to assist by force in the execution of the decrees of the court.

Article X of the League of Nations covenant, for example, has no bearing upon the court. Its decisions, the administration spokesman emphasized, derive their strength from the weight of public opinion. In view of this fact, administration leaders believe, participation by the United States would add much to the prestige of the court and in this way would further the general idea of judicial settlement of international disputes, to which it believes the American people thoroughly subscribe.

LONDON GRATIFIED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—In official circles the proposal of President Harding that the United States become a member of the permanent court of international justice on condition that no legal relation to the League of Nations be involved, is characterized as gratifying, but there is no indication that the Foreign Office sees in the action any suggestion of a general change in the American policy.

The trend of the newspaper comment here is perhaps best summarized in an editorial published by the Yorkshire Post, under the caption: "America's Step Forward."

"Mr. Harding's action," said the newspaper, "need not have caused the surprise which, according to telegrams from America, was expressed in Congressional circles, for three months ago such action was indicated by semi-official announcements in Washington."

ACTION PLEASES BRYAN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MIAMI (Fla.) Feb. 26.—William Jennings Bryan, while expressing his approval of the step taken by President Harding in proposing that the United States take a conditional seat in the international court of the League of Nations, said today in a statement:

"I think our action should be broader than the President's proposals. His appeal is only to the international court. That deals only with matters which can be arbitrated. I think that an investigation of all disputes is as necessary as the arbitration of those to which arbitration can be applied and that therefore we should be represented on the tribunal that investigates only and as well on that tribunal that decides, reserving at all times the independence of action as in the thirty treaties.

"We cannot afford to allow ourselves to be bound by opinions of those who represent other nations, because of their colonial ambitions and commercial aspirations are different from ours."

JAP CONTROL IN HAWAII FEARED

House Reports Bill to Admit Alien Laborers

Only Salvation of Islands' Industry, is View

Financing of Opposition by Nipponese Denied

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—A resolution proposing the temporary admission to the Hawaiian Islands of alien labor, including Chinese, otherwise barred under the immigration laws, was reported today by the House Immigration Committee. At the same time Chairman Johnson of the committee, who opposed the measure, introduced a resolution authorizing members of the committee re-elected to the next Congress to investigate Hawaiian labor needs.

The resolution reported today was introduced in July, 1921, by the late Delegate Kalainanaole of Hawaii. Chairman Johnson, whose home is in Washington, and other members of the committee from the Pacific Coast States, as well as Representative Box Democrat, Texas, said they would submit minority reports.

Representative Shaw, Republican, Illinois, drafted the majority report, which said the purpose of the resolution was to permit a restricted immigration of aliens under the supervision of the Secretary of Labor "for the purpose of providing an adequate supply of suitable field labor for the basic agricultural industries of the Territory without which the Territory cannot continue to exist as an American commonwealth."

CONTROL AT STAKE

Asserting that one practical control of the labor supply in Hawaii was in the hands of Japanese nationals, and American citizens of Japanese descent, born in the Territory, Mr. Shaw declared that political control of this American colonial possession was at stake.

"The industry of Hawaii," the report continued, "must inevitably pass into the hands of the Japanese under present conditions and such a transfer of economic control in the western outpost of America would practically destroy American influence in Hawaii. Considering this fact and realizing the necessity of maintaining American supremacy, the relief to be provided in the present emergency must unquestionably be the best procurable regardless of prejudice against kinds and types of people or labor.

"The essential fact," the report continued, is that Hawaii must be maintained as an American Territory, controlled by American citizens of undivided allegiance. This committee cannot sit by and, by its failure to act, become a party to the absorption of this American territory by the nationals of a foreign power or by citizens of the United States who recognize the suzerainty of that foreign power and admit their allegiance to it. Time has demonstrated that no other means are available, and it is idle to suppose that by further delay the situation can or will cure itself."

DENY JAP SUBSIDY

The report charged that Japanese on the islands had financed the only opposition to the resolution which, he said, had been voiced by the American Federation of Labor organizations in Honolulu. Denying the charge that peonage would be practiced after the importation of labor, the report declared it was highly important that the sugar-producing in Hawaii be maintained, not only because of its effect upon the prosperity of the islands, but in reducing the price of sugar to American consumers. Production, it was announced, cannot be maintained at maximum without additional labor.

Characterizing the proposal as "diabolical," Representative Box in a statement charged that the sugar interests dominated Hawaii and were responsible for the influx of orientals for fifty years, with a resulting destruction of the Hawaiian race.

"If you want to Americanize the island, dumping 40,000 Chinese coolies there is not a good way to do it," he said. "It is for the profit of the sugar gentlemen."

FINISH FIGHT WITH LIONESS

Springville Men Win Fierce Encounter in Mountains

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SPRINGVILLE, Feb. 26.—An exciting battle with an enraged lioness in a pit was the thrilling experience of Irvey Elster and George Webster of Mountain Home, who spend their winters here.

The men were hunting at Lookout Point and their dogs plunged into the animal den for a finish fight. The lioness sank her teeth into one of the dogs and dragged him halfway up a tree, lost her hold and fell back into the pit. The men were afraid to fire for fear of hitting their dogs and jumped into the pit for closer fighting. They got a fatal shot at the maddened animal. She measured 7 feet 11 inches from tip to tip and had been killing deer and livestock in the neighborhood for three years.

Making air the slave instead of taskmaster

WHEN scientists recently found, with a ROYAL Electric Cleaner, that apparently "clean" rugs are filled with thousands of millions of living organisms, they agreed there was only one way to make rugs and carpets safe for the public.

That way was to use powerful air suction, scientifically applied. It was discovered that beating and sweeping and ordinary vacuum cleaners get only surface dirt.

The ROYAL Electric cleaner gets ALL the dirt, no matter how deep it is embedded in the nap. It does it by unhampered, powerful air suction over a wing-shaped nozzle with a 14-inch spread. Sweep your WHOLE HOUSE with air. It's the harmless way.

MORPHINE AND COLD CAUSE NURSE'S DEATH

ANSWER TO IOWA PROBLEM IS SUPPLIED BY CORONER'S INQUEST

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SHENANDOAH (Iowa) Feb. 26. Morphine, exposure and freezing caused the death of Miss Katherine Lukeshavc, nurse, who was found dead in an automobile near here on the morning of the 16th inst., according to the Coroner's jury at the conclusion of the inquest held here this afternoon.

Charles McMahon, Miss Lukeshavic's companion, who has been held in the County Jail at Clarinda since the death, was released from custody, and it is thought the case is ended.

The Coroner's jury made no attempt to explain the presence of morphine in the nurses's vital organs, examined by chemists at the University of Iowa. It was pointed out unofficially, however, that Miss Lukeshavic had just recovered from an attack of influenza and may have taken the narcotic as a stimulant.

McMahon says he and the nurse were automobile riding, and when the car stalled they fell asleep. Nine hours later he awoke and found the nurse dead, and his own hands and feet frozen.

HOUSE IS READY FOR FARM BILL

Credit Measure Due to Come Up Today

Provisions of Two Proposals Are Incorporated

Twelve Banks Provided For; Passage Forecast

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Farm credits legislation, over which there has been a row in Congress for more than two weeks is to be taken up tomorrow in the House under plans contemplating a vote not later than Wednesday. Passage by the House was forecast by leaders who believed there would be comparatively little difficulty in adjusting the differences with the Senate.

Major provisions of the two Senate measures, the Lenroot-Anderson and Capper bills, are incorporated in the bill as reported from the House Banking Committee. The formal report on the legislation was delayed, but Chairman McFadden issued a statement explaining its principal purposes.

"This legislation is an endeavor on the part of Congress," Mr. McFadden said, "to enact a law that will provide intermediary credits for the agricultural interests of the United States, and by agricultural interests is meant all of those people who are engaged in the production of agricultural products, including the warehousing and orderly maketing organizations.

BANKS PROVIDED

"Specifically, this bill provides for the creation of twelve distinct intermediate credit banks, which are to be managed and in the control of the Federal Farm Loan Board. Each is to have a capital of $5,000,000, or a total of $60,000,000 which is to be subscribed by the Secretary of the Treasury and the stock is to become the property of the United States. Provision also is made for the creation of corporations with a minimum capitalization of $350,000,000 to deal in agricultural paper having a maturity of six months or more, and a further provision for the organization or rediscount corporation with a capital of $1,000,000 or more to rediscount such paper for the loaning corporations.

"These intermediate credit banks can issue debentures up to $600,000,000 in addition to their capital stock of $60,000,000. It will be noted in this respect that this intermediary credit institution provides capital for agricultural interests almost double of the amount that was called for during the operations of the War Finance Corporation.

STOCK TO BE PAID FOR

"Provision is made for the reimbursement of the government by the application of one-half of the net annual earnings so that ultimately the government should be fully reimbursed for its capital stock subscription, while still owning the banks with the same original capital and a surplus of 100 per cent. After this has been accomplished, the bill provides that 10 per cent of the net earnings go annually to the surplus and the residue to the Federal government.

"All in all, the bill is an honest attempt to provide all necessary credits which the agricultural interests of the country claim to be in need of. At the same time it has been the honest intent of the framers of the bill to safeguard the provisions of the institutions in their operations that the least possible harm could come to the institutions created and the greatest amount of good to those who are to be served."

Nevada State Senator Demands Revision of Dry Amendment

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RENO (Nev.) Feb. 26.—A resolution calling upon Congress to repeal the Volstead Act, which is branded as "a conspicuous failure" and "a veritable incubator of criminals," and to take the necessary steps to effect a revision of the Eighteenth Amendment, was introduced in the Nevada State Senate at Carson City this afternoon by Senator Cowles of Washoe county.

NORWAY GIVEN CLAIMS IN FULL

America Pays $12,000,000 for War-Seized Ships

Hughes's Note Criticises Way Award Was Made

Congress Authorizes Action by Resolution

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The United States government late today paid Norway $12,000,000, the amount awarded by the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague in settlement of claims growing out of the seizure of Norwegian vessels during the war.

Congress recently passed a resolution which authorized the administration to make the settlement in full satisfaction of the claims of Norwegian subjects arising out of requisitions by the Emergency Fleet Corporation. A draft upon the Treasurer of the United States accompanied Mr. Hughes's note, which declared that in making the payment the American government "gives tangible proof of its desire to respect arbitral awards and it again acknowledges devotion to the principle of arbitral settlements, even in the face of a decision proclaiming certain theories of law which it cannot accept."

AWARD DEFINED

The award, the Norwegian government was informed, recognizes the requisitioning power of a belligerent, but would seem to apply a limitation on its exercise, where the property concerned is that of neutral aliens, by defining the extent of the emergency and its termination, and by enhancing damages accordingly, thus subjecting the government to a different test and a heavier burden, where the property is owned by neutral nationals, than in the case where it is owned by nationals of the requisitioning state.

"No such duty to discriminate in favor of neutral aliens," the Secretary continued, "is believed to be imposed upon a state by international law, with respect to property such as is concerned in the present case."

METHOD CRITICISED

The Secretary of State, contending that the award failed "to give a satisfactory explanation" of the manner in which the tribunal arrived at its conclusions, declared the United States government felt obliged "to direct attention to the requirements of appropriate arbitral procedure, and to state that it cannot accept as proper or satisfactory in international arbitrations the mode by which the tribunal has assessed damages or the absence of a reasoned statement indicative of the methods of their computation."

"In making these observances," the note concluded, "this government has no desire to be controversial, much less to enter upon an exhaustive critical discussion of the award."

TRADE BODY FUNCTIONS ARE SHOWN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Government control so-called trade associations is opposed vigorously by investigators of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who have submitted a report to that organization covering the questions recently raised by Atty.-Gen. Daugherty and Secretary Hoover as to the proper functions of the trade bodies. The report of the committee, headed by Philip Garden of Philadelphia, will be made the basis for a referendum of the chamber's memberships.

The committee expressed the opinion that trustworthy information concerning capacity, production, stocks, sales and prices is essential to the effective operation of industry and trade under competitive conditions. The voluntary reporting of such information to trade associations, and subsequent publication or dissemination of such information, the report says, is beneficial alike to the field of business and the public, and does not constitute a restraint of trade.

"The possibility that a trade association," continues the report, "may err by violating a statute, no more justifies any attempt on the part of governmental authority to control trade associations in their activities than the possibility of illegal acts on the part of individual warrants like supervision over all their actions."

Among the list of services trade associations may perform legitimately are the standardization of goods, reductions of waste in manufacture and distribution and the promotion of trade, both domestic and foreign.

SHORTAGE ASSERTED IN RAILWAY EARNINGS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Railroad earnings during 1922 do not "on the one hand warrant pessimism, nor on the other hand at present, any radical reduction in the total charges to the public," for transportation, according to a report made to the Interstate Commerce Commission by M. O. Lorenz, director of its statistical bureau.

Out of a total of $717,000,000 which the railroads received in 1922, above their expenditures, for operations about $589,000,000 must be deducted for interests, rents and other fixed charges, Mr. Lorenz said, which showed, he added, "that earns did not earn enough in 1922" to meet the "margin above fixed charges obviously necessary in any business."

DEATH HAS RECALLED OLD FIGHT

Berlin Received News of Tower's Death Without Comment From Publicists

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—The news of former Ambassador Charlemagne Tower's death is printed without comment. The impressions of his incumbency of the American Embassy faded under the influence of the war and the revolution, although in the era of imperial brilliancy before the war Ambassador Tower ranked among the most important diplomatic figures at court.

The social functions at the old Tower embassy in King's square, now the home of the Japanese embassy, ranked next to the regular court balls as brilliant features of the court season. The Kaiser picked Mr. Tower for marked personal attentions partly out of a desire to cultivate the graces of the United States, but largely from personal liking for the ex-Ambassador. This favor, however, did not stand the shock of the disclosure of the Kaiser's indiscretion in seeking to influence the selection of Mr. Tower's successor, extending an intimation to the President through Tower of the imperial desire to have Lloyd Griscom appointed to the Berlin embassy to insure a continuation of the social brilliancy of the American embassy.

Wilhelm, with his characteristic aptitude for shifting the blame for his own indiscretions to other shoulders, held Mr. Tower responsible for the diplomatic flurry caused by the event, and withdrew imperial favor from the ex-Ambassador. The two did not meet again until shortly before the war, when a meeting was arranged at a shooting party in Silesia.

GOV. PARKER IN ATTACK ON KLUXERS

Louisiana Executive Comes to Chicago to Campaign Against Masked Order

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Gov. Parker of Louisiana, former intimate of Theodore Roosevelt, arrived in the city today to start a fight against the Ku Klux Klan in Illinois and adjacent States. He granted many interviews during the day and was the principal speaker at a mass meeting tonight, telling in detail of the rise and growth of the Klan in his own State, particularly Mer Rouge.

At the Lexington Hotel, Gov. Parker's headquarters, extraordinary precautions were taken to guard him against possible attack. Detectives patrolled all corridors and admission to the Governor's suite was by card only and after the caller had been thoroughly investigated.

In his interviews and his formal speech, he quoted Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt as condemning secret, powerful oathbound organizations that menace free operation of this government and urged a 1,000,000 people to "rise against the hooded organization which does its work at night."

RAILROAD OFFICIALS WANT CONSOLIDATION

WESTERN AND SOUTHWESTERN LINES COULD MERGE, THEY ASSERT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Projects for consolidation of western and southwestern railroads, which have been tentatively prepared since the passage of the Transportation Act, were favorably discussed today by officials of major carriers in that territory appearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific, said the linking of that system with the present lines of the Chicago and Northwestern would probably work out to advantage, inasmuch as the two carriers at present interchange a large volume of their traffic. The Union Pacific, which has hitherto sought to have the Central Pacific included with it in any consolidation project, now would be satisfied to leave that line to the Southern Pacific, which owns it at present, under terms of a recent Commerce Commission providing for traffic interchange between railroads involved.

Lewis J. Spence, director of traffic for the Southern Pacific, which under the government consolidation plan would be combined with the Rock Island, stressed the necessity which he said existed for keeping all the component parts of the first-named railroad together in any consolidation. The Rock Island could be merged with the Southern Pacific safely, he concluded, only if the Atlantic steamship lines of the Southern system were continued in co-operative operation with the railroad as at present. The Central Pacific likewise, he contended, must be included in the new combination, as it has been held in the Southern Pacific system in order to provide efficient transportation machinery.

NORTHERN IRELAND'S GOVERNOR ON DUTY

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BELFAST, Feb. 26. — The Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, arrived in Belfast today to take up his new duties. In a speech in the Ulster House of Parliament tomorrow, he will announce a bill, under the provisions of which it would be obligatory for all persons employed by the State in the north to take the oath of allegiance to the King and government.

Education and temperance will be the principal subjects of discussion during the session of Parliament.

OPEN SEASON ON KLAN IS URGED

If Antimask Law Fails, Offer Bounty on Ears, Sims Suggests

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—Rear-Admiral William S. Sims, retired, in an address here this afternoon, attacked the Ku Klux Klan, and said that if legislation would not prove effective against the wearing of masks, an open season might be declared for the Klan and a bounty offered for their ears. He spoke before the Chamber of Commerce.

HALT IS URGED IN IMMIGRATION

Owsley Addresses School Superintendents

Department Meets in Annual Convention

Secretary of Education is Favored by Teachers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26.—Delegates to the Department of Superintendents, National Education Association annual convention, conducted several meetings today in which speakers advocated putting a stop to immigration; favored President Harding's reorganization bill which would create a new department in the government to be known as the Department of Education and Welfare, and started a fight for higher salaries for school superintendents.

The suggestion that immigration should be stopped came from Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, who at the same time offered his organization to the educators as an instrument to be used in the building of patriotism.

John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, assigned by President Harding to represent the administration, outlined a plan of reorganization that would place a secretary of education and welfare in the President's Cabinet.

The fight for higher salaries for school superintendents was opened in an executive session by Dr. N. L. Englehardt, of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York City. Pleading for higher salaries for superintendents, Dr. Englehardt said:

Other professions eceive much higher salaries and do not demand as much study and ability."

The first resolution adopted commended the apparent intention of Congress to pass a bill making the school system of Washington, D. C., a model one, expressed the association's favor of this plan and also urged Congress to pass the teachers' salary bill, which will raise the salaries of Washington school-teachers.

Nominations for the next president of the association are to be made from the convention floor tomorrow morning. Jesse H. Newlon, superintendent of schools at Denver, is considered an outstanding candidate, though several other educators are certain of nomination.

TIRE TAXES OF MEXICO PROTESTED

Foreign Article Will Be Forced From Market Under Schedule, Is Charge

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MONTEREY, (Mex.) Feb. 26.—With the placing in effect the 15th inst. of a new import ad valorem duty of 35 per cent on ordinary automobile tires and 65 per cent on cord tires, the use of imported tires may be practically excluded, it is stated by dealers. The prices of tires with the new duty added are regarded as almost prohibitive. When the announcement was made recently of the increase of duties, a formal protest was made by representatives of several thousand owners of automobiles against the changes. It was stated in this protest that it would be impossible to import and sell tires unless the duties were materially lowered.

It is learned from government sources that the chief purpose of raising the duties on tires is to encourage domestic manufacture. It is asserted by dealers and consumers, however, that the tires of Mexican manufacture are of inferior quality, and that they deteriorate so rapidly that in the long run they cost more than imported tires.

HAYES LAND FRAUD CASE NEARS END

SIX CHARACTER WITNESSES TESTIFY IN $6,000,000 BUNKO TRIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Sheriff Peter Hoffman was among the six character witnesses who testified today for the defense in the Hayes land fraud case, now nearing its end before Federal Judge W. C. Lindley.

The six witnesses were called by Attorney Otto Christensen on behalf of M. J. Bence, former controller and director of the land company. Among the other five witnesses were John E. Burns, head of the lumber company bearing his name; Samuel Levin, clothing manufacturer, and James Wilborn, a banker.

The defense is expected to close its case before tomorrow night. The prosecutors charge that the company used the mails in a California land fraud that netted $6,000,000.

HUNT CONDEMNS HIS OWN PARTY

Governor Denounces Bourbon Legislators

Charges Failure to Keep Campaign Pledges

"Whipped" Members Display Small Interest

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Feb. 26.—Gov Hunt's promise to come up and take the hide off the Legislature has been kept. Today he sent both houses a message in which the main padding was about 2500 words of the platform of the Democratic conference at Tucson, a body which he denounced in his primary campaign as not legally representative of the party. He accepted responsibility for the score or so of administration bills that have met with such scant consideration in the Legislature and warned the members:

"Unless the Democratic members of the Legislature in the next few days adopt a different attitude toward legislation introduced in the Legislature, the platform pledges of the Democratic party will not be redeemed, and we shall stand before the people of the State in the position of a party which has repudiated its promises.

CALLS FOR ACTION

"This I shall not be a party to, and I therefore call upon those members of my party who were elected upon the same ticket upon which I was elected, to employ their time during the balance of this session in fulfilling the promises we made to the people of the State, which resulted in the responsibilities of government being placed in the hands of the candidates of the Democratic party."

The message was addressed especially to the Democrats, with a declaration that the Legislature, after an auspicious opening, has failed to live up to expectations. He makes inclusion of the labor planks of the platform, these having all been covered by bills that have failed to pass. Senator Colter, who always trails the Governor, suggested the printing of 2000 copies, but only he and a couple of others supported the motion, Senator St. Charles observing in bitterness:

"If the Governor had kept his fist out of things, we would have passed the Colorado Pact by this time."

PACT UP AGAIN

The pact comes up again in the Senate tomorrow, but there is doubt whether the necessary change of a single vote can be had for its passage. The House adopted a memorial asking Congress to appropriate $20,000,000 for construction of roads through western forest reserves and Indian reservations.

The Governor today signed a bill that cut the term of the State Superintendent of Banks to two years, at the pleasure of the executive, and reduced his salary to $2500. Immediately thereafter he announced appointment, to the place, of A. T. Hammons of Payson, who had been cashier of a Globe bank of which Hunt had been president and who has served as secretary of the State Prison. He succeeds Doane Merrill, appointed when the office was created a year ago.

"GAS" TAX SUGGESTED

The Senate Committee on Finance offered a bill imposing a tax of 5 cents a gallon on gasoline and automobile fuel oil, to be paid by the wholesalers.

Other bills appropriate $20,000 for a Pioneers' Society building at Tucson and provide for compensatory insurance of public employees.

The Senate passed a bill making $500 votes the basis for representative apportionment, this very much in the interest of the smaller and against the representation of the larger counties. The House passed a Senate bill giving the vote to all who are 60 years of age and have lived in Arizona for twenty-five years. This repeals a law under which the Mexican residents of the State have been largely disfranchised.

FEDERAL ACTIVITY IN SCHOOLS ADVOCATED

COMMISSIONER REPRESENTS PRESIDENT AT MEETING IN CLEVELAND

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26. — Increased Federal activity in education was advocated by John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, assigned by President Harding to represent the administration, in an address to the delegates to the annual convention of the department of superintendents, National Education Association, at the opening session today.

Mr. Tigert outlined the administration plan of reorganization which proposes a new department of education and welfare, with a secretary of education and welfare as a member of the President's Cabinet.

Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, another speaker, told the delegates that the legion blives the advancement of American education is the greatest patriotic service its members can render.

Mr. Tigert promised the aid of the government in decreasing educational costs and solidifying the Federal department of education.

SECRETARIES OPEN SANTA CRUZ MEETING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SANTA CRUZ, Feb. 26.—The tenth annual convention of the California Association of Commercial Secretaries opened here today. The meeting was called to order by President Roscoe E. Wyatt, Oakland, who also responded to an address of welcome by Mayor C. C. Kratzenstein.

Harvey M. Toy was the principal speaker of the morning session. He said that while the money lasted, work would go forward on two sections of the Pacific highway and on the Yuma road. The city planning group met this afternoon and a theater party was on the program for tonight.

NEW SUGAR MILLS GET CANE YIELD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN LUIS POTOSI (Mex.) Feb. 26.—American interests are doing much to bring about a revival of the sugar industry in the Micos and Espiritu Santos valleys of this State.

At La Morita a new sugar mill is being built by Eliot C. Hull who was formerly manager of the Rascon plantation of more than a million acres. Mr. Hull says the mill will have a daily capacity of 150 tons. An alcohol distillery will be run in connection with the mill.

At Agua Buena the Southern Sugar Company has a large sugar cane plantation and sugar mill of 600 tons a day capacity. Cane for this mill is also received from many independent growers, most of whom are American farmers who have recently returned to that region after an absence of several years. The sugar company allows the shipper thirty-three kilos of sugar or the market price for its equivalent. The production of the cane varies, running as low as twenty tons to the acre and as high as sixty with the average being somewhere between thirty and forty tons.

PARTY CHAIRMEN ASKED TO TESTIFY

WORK PROGRESSES IN SIFT OF EXPENDITURES FOR CAMPAIGNING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26. — Chairmen of the Republican and Democratic State Central committees and their predecessors in office were asked today to appear tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock before the legislative committee investigating the election expenditures of candidates. This will be the first regular session of the committee, which met here last Friday, outlined its work and then adjourned until today.

The announced plans of the committee called for the examination of the managers of the various Senatorial campaigns as the first step.

When the committee met today the members decided that a better procedure would be to hear the party managers so that they would have a general outline of campaign methods before them. After they have heard the present and former chairman, they will take up the campaign expenditures of candidates for the United States Senate, for the House of Representatives, for State offices and for the Legislature, in that order, and consider each group in alphabetical sequence.

Four members of the committee were here today. They were Chairman Elmer Bromley of Los Angeles, Dr. E. Dozier of Redding, B. S. Crittenden of Tracy and Lucien Fulwider of Santa Rosa. Edwin F. Baker of Los Angeles, fifth member, was expected to arrive tomorrow or Wednesday.

BANANA SHIPPERS LOSE DAMAGE SUIT

COURT OF APPEALS UPHOLDS DECISION RENDERED IN HEARING HERE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—An action by Julius Conrad and Joseph Grande to collect $61,769 from the steamer Mazatlan for the loss of a cargo of 14,534 bunches of bananas being transported from Salina Cruz, Mex., to Los Angeles, was decided against Conrad and Grande today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here. The decision upheld a decision of the United States District Court in Los Angeles.

The bananas were brought overland from El Hule, Mex., and shipped at Salina Cruz under Grande's direction. The captain of the Mazatlan testified in the libel action brought against the ship that the bananas started to decay when the Mazatlan was four days out, and it was necessary to jettison all but a few hundred bunches.

HERMOSA BEACH

A Place That Believes in Quality Rather Than Quantity

When the Mission Fathers, exploring Santa Monica Bay, reached a point on the shore line about half way between Point Firmin and Santa Monica Canyon, they were moved to exclaim: "Hermosa!" In the Spanish language that means Beautiful.

That same shore remains today as beautiful as ever, and it is called Hermosa Beach. The people residing there have decided to tell you about it. Through this space in The Times, on Tuesdays and Saturdays, they hope to win your friendship and approval of what they have done and are doing to preserve for you the most beautiful Ocean strand on the California Coast.

Hermosa is more than a beach. It is a self-governed city of five thousand people that is experiencing a marvelous growth. Its people are native born Americans, and practically all of Anglo-Saxon origin.

Hermosa Beach has a greater number of ocean view home sites than any other city, and has a rich, highly desirable back country. It is easily accessible from every direction.

The beach is owned by the municipality. Not a sewer crosses it or near it. It is wholly uncommercialized, and was deeded to the city on condition that it should never be built upon. It is a home beach; a family beach; a clean beach; the beach where you will eventually come to experience the full enjoyment of surf and sand.

Drive down any day, park your car in safety on our wide, well-paved streets and stroll along the Strand. The breath of old ocean will put more carmen in your blood and you will see how beautiful is a sweet, clean seashore.

Stop at the corner of Fourteenth street and the Strand and see the site of the new Surf and Sand Club which prominent Southern Californians are to build for more perfect beach enjoyment. Ask for other information at—

GRAIN TRADING UP TO TRIBUNAL

Futures Act Brought Before Supreme Court

Congress's Power Questioned by Board of Trade

Government Lawyer Asserts Law is Valid

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — The Supreme Court for the second time was asked today to determine whether Congress in its effort to regulate future trading in grain and to provide for governmental supervision under which farmers' co-operative associations would be admitted to memberships on grain exchanges had exceeded its constitutional authority.

In the former case, when Congress attempted control through its taxing power, the court held the act invalid. The government contended today that, having before it the decision, and the court's decision in the packers and stockyards case, Congress had exercised discretion, which the court had held it possessed. The Packers and Stockyards Act, the government insisted, is in all essential features a parallel for the present grain-futures law.

"BLOC" IN ARGUMENT

Congress having declared that future trading in grain had a distinct relation to interstate commerce, it was not for the court, Solicitor-General Beck declared, to inquired whether Congress was influenced by an agricultural bloc, but it should arrive at its decision with respect to the interstate commerce character of the transactions.

Henry S. Robbins, counsel for the Chicago Board of Trade, challenging the government's contentions, discussed the case with special reference to the Packers and Stockyards Act. He pointed out that Interstate control in the packers' case was based largely on the tangible dealing in an actual article of commerce. The packers' case in no wise referred to future trading, Mr. Robbins insisted, adding that it dealt with a flow of physical property, while the Grain Futures Act proposed to regulate all futures trades in cereals when the government admitted that only a part of such trades eventually would take the form of actual property.

Solicitor-General Beck, during his argument, asserted that the Packers and Stockyards Act was so similar to the grain-futures law that "a distinction could not be made between the two," so far as their validity was concerned.

Peterson came across the two deer in the woods last fall. One did not run, despite rifle shots which killed the other. Peterson approached it and found it to be totally blind.

Walter, 3 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Farley, residing on a farm near Heron Lake, died shortly after the eating of a quantity of rat poison. The poison had been placed about the house in several places and the child, thinking it candy, ate considerable of it before being discovered.

An appropriation of $665,000 for the next three years will be asked of the State Board of Control by Dr. J. N. Tate, superintendent of the State School for the Deaf, at Faribault. KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 26.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Gardner Clothing Company store at Parsons, Kan., doing damage estimated at from $30,000 to $50,000. For a time two blocks of the business section were endangered by the flames when a spark set a lumber yard afire.

MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 26.—Orderly behavior of school pupils and efficiency of fire drills enabled 600 children to escape uninjured in two schools fires at Racine. Three hundred pupils marched out in order when the roof of St. Patrick's parochial school caught fire from an unknown cause. The damage may reach $4000. Within an hour an overturned blowtorch set fire to the roof of Lakeside school. There, also, pupils filed out in order.

INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—Despite the fact that ten deaths from pneumonia and influenza were reported to the City Board of Health yesterday for the last forty-eight hours, Dr. H. G. Morgan, secretary of the board, said he is convinced that the epidemic of respiratory infection is on the down trend. Many persons are ill, he said, and the pneumonia death rate may continue high for several days.

The value of the marketable products obtained from more than 500,000 maple trees in Indiana in 1919 exceeded $1 a tree, says Charles C. Deam, head of the Forestry Division of the State Conservation Department. Sugar camp work should be increased, he says, because it comes at a time when farmers are not pressed with other tasks.

YUCATAN RUINS RICH IN HISTORY

Scientists Plan to Delve Into History of Mayas

Belief Expressed That Finds Will Dwarf Luxor

Investigators Given Mexican Co-operation

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26.—The scientific value of King Tutenkhamun's tomb at Luxor will be overshadowed by the secrets of the ancient Maya civilization in Yucatan, soon to be examined by American savants, official Mexico firmly believes.

Gov. Felipe Carillo, co-operating with prominent American scientists, plans to attract the world's attention to the hidden treasures of the group of ruins at Uxmal, Chichen-itza, Ake and Motul, located in the interior of Yucatan, near the border of Quintana Roo, an isolated territory touching British Belize.

Quintana Roo has been as little explored as Borneo, many places within its boundaries never having been visited by white men. The government of Yucatan has made it possible to reach the ruins with relative ease by building roads from the railroad terminal, and the Socialistic State where Margaret Sanger's book is found in practically every home as cook books are found in American homes, expects that the Maya temples which tower from battered mounds will be the center of the world's interest.

PLAN EXAMINATION

With the arrival here of John F. Barry, New Yorker, heading a group of scientists, to view the ruins, proposed plans for an archaeological examination of Yucatan have been brought to light. In an interview, Mr. Barry stated that all classes in Yucatan are enthusiastic over the excavation and exploration of Maya ruins on an extensive scale. Mr. Barry is one of the founders of the Yucatan Archaeological Institution of New York, which is undertaking the work.

Gov. Carrillo has facilitated the scientists' visit by placing at their disposal guides, interpreters, special trains and automobiles. The party includes Dr. John C. Merriam, Gen. William Barclay Parsons and Dr. Sylvanus G. Morley, the last named being the director of Mid-American archaeology for the institute, and is considered the greatest living authority on Maya hieroglyphs.

Mr. Barry declares that Dr. Morley is credited with having practically solved the problems of Maya numerals which have been found carved on palaces and temples in Yucatan, Chiapas, Tabasco and Guatemala. The key to the Maya alphabet has not as yet been learned, since the language was in its early stages as a phonetic tongue, and numerous difficulties confront the student of its complexities.

SCIENTISTS VIEW RUINS

Other American scientists who recently visited the ruins at Yucatan under the auspices of the Archaeological Institution were Prof. Marshal H. Saville, director of the Heye American Indian Museum, and Prof. Herbert J. Spinden, Peabody Museum, Cambridge, both recognized authorities on Maya archaeology.

Uxmal and Chichen-itza, according to Mr. Barry, represent the full flowering of the Maya civilization. The nearest railway station to the ruins is Dzitas, three miles distant from Chichen-itza by a good road. From Merida, capital of Yucatan, Chichen-itza is reached in about five hours of travel. Ake, nearer Merida, though less important artistically and architecturally, has a many columned temple 500 feet long, without the carved hieroglyphs such as abound at Uxmal and Chichen-itza.

Merida received the American visitors en fete, with banquets and entertainments arranged by the Merida Association for the Preservation of Archaeological Monuments of Yucatan, by Gov. Carrillo, by the various chambers of commerce, and by the State university.

FOUND IMPORTANT

Dr. Merriam, Mr. Barry stated, in replying to prominent Merida citizens who had urged American participation in the discoveries, declared that the Uxmal ruins were far more interesting and archeologically important than he had imagined from the photographs. He declared that the greatest care was necessary in the excavation work in order that the Maya records, now carved on stone monuments under the earth and which have born the ravages of time and the elements, be undestroyed.

Reparation rather than excavation is needed, Dr. Merriam believes, for the damage of centuries is not irreparable, and the ruins represent the history of early times as the Mayas write it, and not as their history might be interpreted by any one individual.

Dr. Morley is expected here next week for a conference with Dr. Manuel Gamio, director of the department of anthropology for the Mexican government, who is in charge of all archaeological monuments within the Federal territory. Dr. Merriam and Gen. Parsons leave tomorrow for Washington, where they will render a report to the Carnegie Institute, which may order the expenditures of large sums if the ruins are deemed valuable enough.

ANXIOUS FOR LIGHT

It is felt in Yucatan that the scientists' visit is the most important step toward lifting the veil which still shrouds the pages of early human history of the period represented by the Mayas. For half a century, scientists have been interested in the Maya ruins in a desultory way, but this is the first serious attempt to take up the matter on an extensive scale.

The universal archaeological interest aroused by the discoveries in Egypt has attracted attention to the possibilities in the Maya ruins, and it is expected that if the Carnegie Institute leads with financial backing, other institutions will follow its example in an effort to share the archaeological treasures which lie in Yucatan.

FEDERATION OF SOVIETS CONDEMNED

Opponents of Recognition by United States Declare Nation Abolished

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Representations that the Russian Communists have abolished the Russian nation and substituted therefor an international union of soviets, repudiating nationalism, have been made to President Harding by the opponents of recognition of soviet Russia by the United States.

In a letter to the President Mary J. Kilbreth, president of the Woman Patriot Publishing Company, calls attention to a Moscow dispatch published by The Worker, official organ of the Workers' party of America and the Communist party of America, which says in part:

"On the first day of the new year, 1923, the Russian Socialist federated soviet republic went out of existence and a new federation known as the Union of Socialist Soviet Republic took its place."

Skull Believed One of World's Oldest Is Found

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—A skull believed to be a half-million years old and contemporaneous with the famous "Java woman"—one of the oldest relics of early humanity extant—is reported from Lehocq Island, Jersey, yesterday. The almost complete absence of a forehead and the discovery near-by of what is thought to be Dolmen ruins are accepted as evidence of the skull's prehistoric origin. It is being forwarded to the Royal Anthropological Society. Should the suspected antiquity find be confirmed, the workmen who made the discovery will have provided science with a treasure perhaps surpassing in importance those recently found in Egypt.

FORD HEADQUARTERS OPENED IN CHICAGO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26. — Henry Ford's Presidential boom formally arrived in Chicago today when headquarters were established in a suite of offices in the City Hall Square Building. This suite houses, according to announcements on the doors, "Ford President Club of Illinois," "National Committee," "State Central Committee" and "County Central Comittee."

Patrick E. McConnell, Republican, formerly connected with Mayor Thompson's organization is in charge of the headquarters. He was candidate for Congress in 1920 from the stockyards district.

McDonnell said an official roster of various officials connected with the Ford boom would be announced later in the week. He said, work of lining up prominent women for the Ford candidacy was already well under way. He announced that, speaking for himself alone, no effort would be made to capture the Republican or Democratic nominations for Ford, but to go after the independent nomination. Of course, if either party finds it expedient to nominate Ford, it is expected he will accept the party title and make his battle under that banner. Manager McDonnell denied that Ford was contributing a penny to the campaign, or that men conducting the independent movement had held any communication with him. He neglected to say, however, where the money was coming from.

ISOBEL

By James Oliver Curwood

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS.

Sergeant William MacVeigh and Private Pelletier of the Canadian Mounted Police are on the hunt for Seattle Deane, wanted for murder. Pelletier is stricken with fever, and MacVeigh goes to headquarters for medicine. While there, half-breed scout reports having seen a white man and woman near an Eskimo camp further north. MacVeigh goes to the settlement. Arriving at night, he learns of the murder of Deane by Pelletier in search of gold. He also learns that Deane's wife and baby girl, Isobel, escaped the murderer and fled into the frozen wastes. MacVeigh finds Pelletier dead in his cabin, and the body of Deane's wife in the snow. Next morning MacVeigh awakens to find Isobel, aged six, beside him. Isobel explains that a man named Jim Scott, whom she met on the trail, killed her father and mother. Scott, she says, is coming to get her, but he is afraid of MacVeigh. MacVeigh promises to protect her, and starts back with her to the settlement. Arriving at Fort Churchill, MacVeigh finds that Scott has left for the north. Isobel is left with Mrs. Peter Cardigan, while MacVeigh goes in search of Scott. Isobel, who has been left at Fort Churchill, is safeguarded both by her and Billy Isobel.

It was the snowman that brought back to him years and years of lost hopes. They flooded in upon him until it seemed as though the old life was the life of yesterday and waiting for him now just beyond the edge of the black forest. Long after Isobel was asleep in the tent he sat and looked at the snowman; and more and more his heart sang with a new joy; until it seemed as though he must rise and cry out in the eagerness and hope that filled him. In the snowman, slowly melting before the fire, there was a heart and a soul and voice. It was calling to him, urging him as nothing in the world had ever urged him before.

He would go back to the old home down in God's country, to the old playmates who were men and women now. They would welcome him and they would welcome the woman. For he would take her.

For the first time he made himself believe that she would go. And there, hand in hand, they would follow his boyhood footprints over the meadows and through the hills, and he would gather flowers for her in place of the mother that was gone, and he would tell her all the old stories of the days that were passed.

It was the snowman!

CHAPTER XV

Until late that night Billy sat beside his camp fire with the snowman. Strange and new thoughts had come to him, and among these was the wondering one asking himself why he had never built a snowman before.

When he went to bed he dreamed of the snowman and of little Isobel; and the little girl's laughter and happiness when she saw the curious form the dissolving snowman had taken in the heat of the fire when she awoke the following visions of happiness that he had seen just ahead of him.

At other times he would have told himself that he was no longer reasonable. After they had breakfasted and started on the day's journey he laughed and talked with baby Isobel, and a dozen times in the forenoon he picked her up in his arms and carried her behind the dogs.

"We're going home," he kept telling her over and over again. "We're going home—down to mama—mama—mama!" He emphasized that; and each time Isobel's pretty mouth formed the word mama after him his heart leaped exultantly. By the end of that day it had become the sweetest word in the world to him. He tried mother, but his little comrade looked at him blankly, and he did not like it himself. "Mama, mama, mama," he said a hundred times that night beside their camp fire, and before he tucked her away in her warm blankets he said something to her about, "Now I lay me down to sleep."

Isobel was too tired and sleepy to comprehend much of that. Even after she was deep in slumber and Billy sat alone smoking his pipe, he whispered that sweetest word in the world to himself, and took out the tress of shining hair and gazed at it joyously in the glow of the fire.

By the end of the next day little Isobel could say almost the whole of the prayer his own mother had taught him years and years and years ago, so far back that his vision of her was not that of a woman, but of an elusive and wonderful angel; and the fourth day at noon she lisped the whole of it without a word of assistance from him.

On the morning of the fifth day Billy struck the Gray Beaver, and little Isobel grew serious at the chance in him. He no longer amused her, but urged the dogs along, never for an instant relaxing his vigilant quest for a sign of smoke, a trail, a blazed tree. At his heart there began to burn a suspense that was almost suffocating.

In these last hours before he was to see Isobel there came the inevitable reaction within him. Gloom oppressed him where a little while before joyous anticipation had given him hope. The one terrible thought drove out all others now—he was bringing her news of death, her husband's death. And to Isobel he knew that Deane had meant all that the world held of joy or hope—Deane and the baby.

It was like a shock when he came suddenly upon the cabin, in the edge of a small clearing. For a moment he hesitated. Then he took Isobel in his arms and went to the door. It was slightly ajar, and after knocking upon it with his fist he thrust it open and entered.

There was no one in the room in which he found himself, but there was a stove and a fire. At the end of the room was a second door and it opened slowly. In another moment Isobel stood there. He had never seen her as he saw her now, with the light from a window falling upon her. She was dressed in a loose gown, and her long hair fell in disheveled profusion over her shoulders and bosom. MacVeigh would have cried out her name—he had told himself a hundred times what he would first say to her—but what he saw in her face startled him and held him silent while their eyes met. Her cheeks were flushed. Her lips burned an unnatural red. Her eyes were glowing with strange fires.

She looked at him first, and her hands clutched at her bosom, crumpling the masses of her lustrous hair. Not until she had looked into his eyes did she recognise what he carried in his arms. When he held the child out to her she sprang forward with the strangest cry he had ever heard, into her cheeks. He gulped hard. "My baby—my baby—"

She staggered back and sank into a chair near a table, with little Isobel clasped to her breast. For a time Billy heard only those words in her dry, sobbing voice as she crushed her burning face down against her child's. He knew that she was sick, that it was fever which had sent the hot flush into her cheeks. He gulped hard, and went near to her.

Trembling, he put out a hand and touched her. She looked up. A bit of that old, glorious light leaped into her eyes, the light which he had seen when in gratitude, she had given him her lips to kiss.

"You!" she whispered. "You—brought her—"

She caught his hand, and the soft smother of her loose hair fell over it. He could feel the quick rise and fall of her bosom.

"Yes," he said.

There was a demand in her face, her eyes, her parted lips. He went on, her hand clasping his tighter, until he could feel the swift beating of her heart. He had never thought that he could tell the story in as few words as he told it now, with more and more of the glorious light creeping into Isobel's eyes.

Isobel stopped breathing when he told her of the fight in the cabin and the death of the man who had stolen little Isobel.

A hundred words more brought him to the edge of the forest. He stopped there. But she still questioned him in silence. She drew him down nearer, until he could feel her breath. There was something terrible in the demand of her eyes. He tried to find words to say, but something rose up in his throat and choked him. She saw his effort.

"Go on," she said, softly.

"And then—I brought her to you," he said.

"You met him?"

Her question was so sudden that it startled him, and in an instant he had betrayed himself.

Little Isobel slipped to the floor, and Isobel stood up. She came near him, as she came that marvelous night out on the Barren, and in her eyes there was the same prayer as she put her two hands up to him and looked straight into his face.

SHIPPING BILL STILL AFLOAT

Measure May be Kept as Buffer Until End

Executives Seek Other Ways to Help Situation

"Startling" Plan is Promised by Chairman Lasker

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The administration shipping bill was kept alive in the Senate today by further debate, but executive officials, recognizing the end to be near, began formulation of plans for dealing with the government's war-impelled merchant marine venture without the aid of the legislation.

Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board conferred with President Harding, then met with the other members of the board, and afterward announced that the policy of the administration would be worked out and made public before the end of the week. He declined to give any indication of the plans under consideration beyond saying they were of a "startlingly novel" nature.

Hopeful until last week that the shipping bill would be enacted, administration officials have given no indication of what alternative they have in mind. President Harding, in making his final appeal for the passage of the legislation in course of his address to Congress, the 7th inst., on the British debt settlement, said that if the legislative branch refused to approve the shipping bill or to submit an alternative, "the executive branch of the government may proceed as best it can to end the losses in liquidation and humiliation."

QUICK ACTION EXPECTED

Inasmuch as the President has declared one of the prime purposes of the bill to be to get the government out of the shipping business, it was generally believed today that the administration's policy contemplated quick and thorough liquidation.

Members of Congress conversant with Shipping Board affairs suggested that the administration, through invocation of such indirect aids as are contained in the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, might endeavor to make operation of vessels under the American flag attractive enough to provide a sale for the government-owned tonnage.

Mr. Lasker and Chairman Jones of the Senate Commerce Committee have urged the President to carry out Section 34 of the Merchant Marine Act, directing abrogation of some twenty commercial treaties with leading foreign nations prohibiting use by the United States of discriminatory duties against products brought to the United States in foreign bottoms.

Because of the international aspects of the matter, Mr. Harding, like President Wilson, has up to the present time, refused to carry out the direction.

Use of this section was advocated in the Senate today during the debate which served to defer action on the pending Robinson motion to recommit the shipping bill.

Senator Ransdell, Democrat, Louisiana, in declaring he regretted the prospective death of the measure, declared abrogation of the commercial treaties would aid in building up of a merchant marine, but expressed doubt whether such abrogation could ever be brought about.

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, deplored the filibuster against the ship measure, said he did not favor a subsidy because it would not be a success, and proposed substitute legislation, making use of reductions of rates on freight carried on American ships, decreased duties on American-carried imports, and lower rates on railroads from points of production to port of shipment provided they are sent in ships of American registry.

He said his plan would involve abrogation of the treaties.

WHIP SAYS NO

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, sought an agreement for a vote on the substitute bill by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, which provides for indirect aids to American ship operators and for abrogation of the commercial treaties by direct action of Congress, but Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, objected, saying an opportunity had been given for a vote, but opponents of the legislation had prevented it by their filibuster.

Further debate is in prospect tomorrow before a vote on the Robinson motion, and some sentiment developed today toward holding the ship bill technically before the Senate until adjournment next Sunday as a buffer against other legislation.

Rodeo contra Presuntos Estafadores

Un rodeo de presuntos estafadores llevado a cabo ayer por investigadores del Fiscal y por detectives de Burns, dió por resultado el encarcelamiento de nueve individuos, dos de los cuales están acusados de intentar hurto mayor, y siete fueron detenidos por sospechosos. Todos se hallan en la cárcel del condado. Los policías del raid salvaron a J. P. Larsen, agricultor retirado de Marquette, Nebraska, de que le estafaran $17,000, que es más de la mitad del precio en que vendió su rancho hace poco. William Burke, alias Mann, y W. A. Johnson son los presuntos jefes de la gavilla de "confidence men." El seguyndo fué detenido en el alojamiento de Larsen, en el Hotel Huntington, Calle Main, esquina a Octava, y los demás, en una casa de viviendas de la Avenida Grand Sur, 1046. Era éste el lugar elegido, según dicen los detectives, para el gran final de los supuestos planes de estafa. Esta iba a consumarse ayer tarde.

Se Hacen Graves Cargos en la Declaración de Lickley

El Dr. E. J. Lickley, Superintendente Ayudante de Escuelas, en formal declaración presentada anoche al Consejo de Educación de la ciudad, afirma que cinco significados maestros de Los Angeles a quienes ha hecho extrañamientos o recomendado para que se les reduzca en categoría o se les despida, fraguaron una conspiración en el departamento de escuelas de la ciudad para desquitarse y vengarse de él. Desmiente las afirmaciones de los cinco maestros respecto a su conducta profesional y privada; ataca vigorosamente las intenciones de sus acusadores, y les hace cargos concretos de carácter grave. Las contracusaciones del Dr. Lickley, en respuesta a los cargos que contra él presentó al Consejo de Educación del Condado, hace más de una semana, John R. Doyle, Director de la Escuela Especial Central, rayan en lo sensacional. Acusa a sus contrincantes de ebriedad, incompetencia profesional, pereza, insubordinación, brutalidad, y "conducta reprensible de grave índole personal."

Matado al Tomar Parte en la Pelea

Los policías que han estado investigando la muerte de Frank Johnson, veterano de la guerra mundial que fué matado ayer de una puñalada, llegaron a la conclusión de que halló la muerte por haber intervenido en la disputa de la Sra. Pearl Peden y Chester Wogoman, con motivo de la partición de una tienda de comestibles que la pareja ha estado explotando en el Bulevar York, 4532. Se hizo declarar a Anthony L. Whitley, de la Avenida 46 Oeste, 1154, donde ha estado viviendo Wogoman, y dice, según la policía, que apuñaleó a Johnson en defensa propia. La Sra. Peden, arrestada con Whitley, se rehusó a hablar, por indicación de su abogado.

HINDRANCE AND AID IN TWO BILLS

British Measures Would Place Men and Women on Equal Court Basis

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Passage of two bills which, this week, will be put before Parliament, will do much toward placing British men and women on the same basis of equality before the law courts as they have at the ballot box. But women do not profit by both measures. While one would assure them the right to demand equal moral standards in marriage, the other would rob them of immunity from prosecution for offenses committed in the presence of their husbands.

This curious bit of hold-over legislation from early judicial practices resulted in the daughter of a prominent race horse owner being exonerated, while her husband, also of a good family, was sent to prison for several months, although the court was satisfied of the wife's participation in the crime.

Women members of Parliament are not so active in supporting the measure which will eliminate this anomaly as in sponsoring the matrimonial charter. Lady Astor and Mrs. Wintringham will both speak in behalf of the latter. It will enable wives to obtain divorces on moral grounds, now a privilege of husbands only, if the accusations of immorality are coupled with cruelty or desertion charges. The proposed elimination of this double standard of morality previously had hard sledding in Parliament, the most vigorous opposition coming from the House of Lords.

Old Tapestries Are Acquired by Rockefeller, Jr.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Six tapestries woven about 1450 for the Duke de la Rochefoucauld, the whereabouts of which recently was made the subject of an official inquiry in Paris, are hanging in the home of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the New York Evening Post said it had learned today.

According to the newspaper, the tapestries were shown in the Anderson galleries here last November, and admission was by card only. On the third day the tapestries were suddenly withdrawn without explanation, and it was understood they had been acquired by an American collector for $1,000,000.

ARNSTEIN IS FREED IN STOLEN GOODS CHARGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Jules W. (Nicky) Arnstein and four of the five men who were arrested with him Friday on a warrant charging suspicion of having received stolen goods, were discharged by Magistrate Levine late today when Asst. Dist.-Atty. Wilson admitted he had no evidence against them.

The defendants discharged with Arnstein were Edward M. Fuller, head of the defunct brokerage concern bearing his name; Albert Exl, Cleveland salesman; Narry Sykes, New York salesman, and S. Milton Small, known as "the boy broker."

Arnstein had hailed his arrest as a police frame-up.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Feb. 26. — A new branch health office has just been opened by the Los Angeles County Health Department to serve the cities of Alhambra, San Gabriel and El Monte and adjacent territory. The office is located at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Bay State street, Alhambra, in a building erected especially for the purpose by Dr. Marion Dillon.

Dr. A. S. Baker, formerly connected with the health department of Seattle, and a graduate of the University of Denver, has been appointed health officer for this district and is already installed in his new headquarters. Assisting Dr. Baker is Dr. F. E. Corey, who was formerly the local city health officer. Mrs. Mamie O'Connor is the community nurse and Miss O. K. Stocke the laboratory technician.

LABORATORY INSTALLED

The local department will handle all health matters which have heretofore been taken care of either by the local health officer or by the main office in Los Angeles. A model hygienic laboratory is being installed, which will make the usual health-department laboratory tests for physicians and the general public, including analyses in connection with communicable diseases, and milk and food inspections. It also is planned to make a grading of milk supplied to the community, tests to be made public every two weeks.

Plans now are under way for the establishment of a community health center for the cities of Alhambra, San Gabriel and El Monte in connection with the new office. It is expected that within the next month these plans will have been worked out by representatives of the various organizations interested, giving to the community an efficient and well-equipped health center.

CLINIC FOR BABIES

Features will be a dental clinic, a baby clinic and other departments of value to the public.

All expenses in connection with the proposed health center will be borne by the cities interested. The regular health-department work now being carried on is paid for by the county. The organization of the health center will, however, have the active assistance and cooperation of the county, and the same offices will be used.

Frost Danger to Orange Crop Declared Past

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 26.—After keeping careful watch over the orange groves here for the last three months to see that Jack Frost did not sneak in and undo a year's work in a few hours, J. W. Arnold, who has been in charge of the frost survey for the government weather bureau in this district, is leaving for his home at Wichita, Kan., in a few days.

Mr. Arnold said today: "I haven't had an opportunity of surveying much frost, but I have observed considerable olimate. This, I gather, has been a perfect year for oranges. At my key station the lowest temperature recorded was 28 deg., and that, once in a while during the winter, is perfect coloring weather. I am sure that it is those temperatures, bordering so close onto the danger line, that give the navels of this section such a wonderful texture, tang and flavor."

The danger of a frost visitation was declared to be over, for the thermographs used here were shipped today to various Coast stations.

PLAN RAIL LINE INTO TEMESCAL

Road Up Canyon Will Afford Outlet for Large Mineral Deposits

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CORONA, Feb. 26.—An extension of the Santa Fe lines up the Temescal Canyon to link this city with Alberhill and Elsinore began some months ago to be talked of as a possibility. Recent developments indicate that the project is soon to materialize; in fact, Santa Fe representatives are now engaged in securing rights of way for the new railroad. Surveying crews finished their work a short time ago.

The Temescal Canyon mineral deposits are a large asset to the city. The builders of the rock-crushing plant, owned by the Blue Diamond Materials Company of Los Angeles, built their own private line several years ago, extending up the canyon a little more than two miles. From information now at hand, the present tracks, which are built to accommodate heavy traffic, will be utilized and the railroad will be carried on past the quarry to Lee Lake and Alberhill and thence to Elsinore. The extensive clay deposits of Temescal Canyon are being worked at this time by several concerns.

A large percentage of the products of the Temescal Canyon, and practically all of the products of the Alberhill plant, are hauled by motor trucks and this method of transportation is more expensive than by shipping by freight, owing to the fact that the trucks can carry a limited number of tons, while the products are generally ordered in carload lots.

HUGE WINE STORES SEIZED

Illegal Manufacture and Failure to Pay Revenue Tax Charged; $1,000,000 Worth Taken

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, Feb. 26.—Revealing the seizure of 245,575 gallons of wine valued at about $1,000,000 and of other valuable property, Federal prohibition and internal revenue agents today arrested Louis Rusconi, operator of the old California Wine Association winery at Wahtoke, near here and cited him into United States Commissioner Samuel Hollins's court on charges of illegal manufacture and possession of the beverage, conducting a public nuisance and failure to pay internal revenue tax.

The wine and plant were seized Saturday night, but all news of the action was suppressed pending the arrest. At least eight other persons, it is understood, are to be taken into custody in connection with the operations at Wahtoke.

It is charged that Rusconi, who obtained control of the big wine plant early last year vinted the larger part of the seized wine without obtaining a permit and without observing any other formalities required by law. Some of the stock is aged goods, however, it is said.

The tax on all of it, revenue agents said, would have amounted to $56,000. Action was taken in the case after prohibition enforcement agents here had wired to Prohibition Enforcement Director Samuel Rutter at San Francisco for instructions. Prohibition Enforcement Agents T. J. Nicely and Paul Emmrich and Deputy Internal Revenue Collector W. G. Walker made the seizure.

The winery, formerly operated by the California Wine Association, is situated a few miles from Sanger, in this county. It was presumed to be a storage place for grape juice. The prohibition agents say this juice tested 9 per cent alcohol.

Rusconi did a thriving business buying wine grapes last fall, according to the officers, because of the car shortage that prevented many vineyardists from sending their grapes to outside markets.

Suzanne Once More Retires "Gracefully"

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American woman lawn tennis champion, survived the first round of the Monte Carlo tournament today only by most strenuous playing. She defeated Miss Howest of Great Britain, 14-12, 7-5.

By carrying Mrs. Mallory to twenty-six games in the first set, Miss Howest forced the American champion to what is said to have been the longest set in her experience as a tournament player.

Suzanne Lenglen, the French star, has withdrawn from the singles. The French champion's default was a last-minute affair and it did not please either players or spectators when it was announced that she had decided to limit her efforts to the women's doubles.

Mrs. Mallory's decision to fulfill her engagement, despite the fact that she was plainly off her game, was favorably commented upon and Mrs. Mallory was voted "a good sport." A general comment was: "Suzanne certainly cannot be in worse form than Mrs. Mallory."

Mrs. Mallory's game improved in the afternoon very considerably. She and Miss Howett, whom she defeated in the morning, won from Misses Brock and Hutchins in women's doubles, 6-1, 6-1. Her service was steadier and she found the net less frequently and kept the ball inside the court with more regularity than she did in her first match.

Mlle. Lenglen will be paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan in the woman's doubles.

Coach Orr is swimming Norton Thornton and Fenton Hamilton against Fred Cad's star, Paul Nelson of the L.A.A.C., in the fifty-yard breaststroke, and predicts that Nelson will have to step out to beat his boys.

Thelma Finn will carry the Venetian colors in the girls' 100-yard Southern Pacific championship and will go against some of her old team-mates of the L.A.A.C., little Helen Vernon, Olive Hatch and Marie Curtis. This race will likely be the hottest contest on the program.

Reginald Harrison of the Venice squad, one of the likeliest looking youngsters in the game, will do his best to capture the Southern Pacific 100-yard championship. He will have the star competitors of the district to beat in Stanley Moss, Guy Sylvester, Rusty Williams, Colin Smith and Johnny Kahaleanu all of the L.A.A.C.

Marion Fletcher, diving star of the Venice Club, who finished third in the Junior National, ten-foot diving championship recently, will give an exhibition of fancy diving.

NEBRASKA WILL DECLINE DATE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Feb. 26. Announcement was made here today by Athletic Director Fred C. Dawson that Nebraska will decline the invitation of the University of Southern California for a football game between the two schools at Los Angeles, December 8. According to Mr. Dawson, Nebraska already has a full schedule of eight games. If the game were to be played it would necessitate a two weeks' trip and the permission of the Missouri Valley conference board would be necessary.

REISLER IN RING DEBUT AT VERNON

New Yorker Takes on Phil Salvadore Tonight; Cole Faces Layman

For the first time since he started boxing here, Phil Salvadore will enter the ring tonight against a man no heavier than himself. Salvadore is matched against Johnny Reisler of New York in the main event at Jack Doyle's Vernon arena and, if anything, Salvadore will be a few pounds to the good.

Salvadore has met and defeated Jack Josepha, Joe Benjamin, Ray Long and Sailor Ashmore, all of whom outweighed him. Ashmore later reversed Salvadore's decision, but the battle was so close that Salvadore has been offered a return bout. Reisler was regarded as a very good featherweight while in New York. He was good enough to meet Andy Chaney, which is a tribute to his ability.

Matchmaker Wadhams believes he has backed the feature scrap with a sensational preliminary card. "Red" Cole, the St. Louis lightweight, who made a fine showing in his one local appearance, will meet Joe Layman in the semi-wind-up. Layman kayoed Sid Bernard in a round last week.

Eddie Bowen, the promising Vernon heavyweight, will tackle Jimmy Dime, the Greek. Jimmy is known as the "Sheik of Spring street," and hundreds of the fairer sex will be out to see him work, he says. See him fail, Bowen says. Steve Bies and Young Wallace, welterweights; Ray Schaner and Art Springer, bantams, and Kid Mex and Eddie Drew, featherweights, complete the card. George Blake will referee.

LEWIS AND KOLOFF TO TANGLE AT ST. LOUIS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—Dan Koloff of Bulgaria and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, titleholder, have agreed to meet in a match for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship here March 7, John Contos, wrestling promoter, announces tonight.

TRACK MARK PERMANENT

Murphy's Record Will Stand for a Long Time is the Opinion of Art Klein, Driver

BY PAUL LOWRY

"The world record of 115.65 miles per hour for a 250-mile motor-car race which Jimmy Murphy established at Beverly Hills on Sunday will stand forever." So spoke Art Klein, our old college chum with the handsome Irish face, in the outer sanctum of A. M. Young's palatial suite of offices in the Chapman Building yesterday afternoon.

Brother Klein had to do his talking in the space reserved for the proletariat because Young had the inner sanctum all cluttered up with gentlemen from foreign parts. J. Francis O'Connor, president of the Cotati Speedway Association, was there, and H. E. Patterson, manager of the Fresno Speedway; L. G. Smyth, manager of the Kansas City Speedway; William Schimpf, chairman of the A.A.A. contest board, who brought Jimmy Murphy's A.A.A. championship medal for 1922 all the way from New York to present to him, and Fred Wagner, sometimes dignified with the title of starter.

Resuming where we left off with Mr. Klein, the latter pointed out the fact that Sunday's race was one of the remaining few races in which the 183-cubic-inch cars will be entered. Between now and the classic at Indianapolis in May there are only a couple of races on the calendar and none on a track where the drivers can figure on a chance of smashing Murphy's mark.

The 122-cubic-inch cars will be raced at Indianapolis for the first time, and the drivers all figure they will not be as fast as the 183-inch cars.

And yet the history of the 183-cubic inch racing would indicate that perhaps Klein is wrong. From the time the 183-cubic-inch buggies were first raced in Los Angeles the speed has crept from 103.2 miles per hour to 115 65-100 miles per hour. Consider if you will what the experts said before the race of Nov. 25, 1920. Here's a sample:

"The little cars ought to average over 100 miles per hour with a bare possibility of approaching Murphy's record of 103.6 miles per hour, the present world's record, which was made with a 300-cubic-inch racing car."

The boys who believed that statement, and a lot of them did, would have fainted with surprise had you suggested that in just a little over two years' time their guess would be bettered by over fifteen miles per hour. It is said that the 122-cubic-inch cars will be somewhat slower than the present racing cars, and yet Tommy Milton had his tuned up to do something like 110 miles per hour the first time he put it on the track for a secret practice.

The following summary of Beverly Hills races, which shows the increase in speed from the time the 183-cubic-inch cars made their first appearance in Los Angeles down to the present time, will prove interesting to the race-track follower:

Nov. 25, 1920, 250 miles, won by Ralph De Palma, 197.3 miles per hour.
Feb. 28, 1921, 50-mile sprint, won by Ralph De Palma, 197.3 miles per hour.
Nov. 25, 1921, 250 miles, won by Eddie Hearne, 159.7 miles per hour.
March 5, 1923, 250 miles, won by Tommy Milton, 129.8 miles per hour.
Dec. 4, 1922, 250 miles, won by Jimmy Murphy, 114.6 miles per hour.
Feb. 26, 1923, 250 miles, won by Jimmy Murphy, 115.65 miles per hour.

* * *

Yesterday was pay day at the speedway office for the race pilots, and most of the prize winners were on hand early for their checks. Bennett Hill, who drove a wonderful race every inch of the way and was beaten by a scant 6-100ths of a second, came in disguised like Jimmy Murphy, but the disguise lacked $4000 of being perfect and Bennett had to be satisfied with $5000.

Jimmy Murphy failed to show up for his $9000 check, but Fred Comer plucked the stipends for Eddie Hearne, Dario Resta and Art Klein, who finished fourth, eighth and ninth, respectively. None of the other drivers had been heard from at closing time.

Crown City Trackmen Beat Long Beach Preps in Dual Meet

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Feb. 26.—Pasadena 71, Long Beach 42. Crown City tracksters topped Long Beach on the Jackrabbit field yesterday enough points to show the superiority of the Pasadena boys in both track and field events. Coach Kienholz of Long Beach had a poor turnout of youngsters for the several events.

Long Beach secured five first places, Pasadena eight. A whole flock of alibis, however, emanated from the Long Beach camp. Alibi No. 1, many athletes ill., Excuse No. 2, Pasadena flyers got in the way of the beachites in the dashes, Explanation No. 2, the day was too cold for Long Beach speed.

Hurtle, dusky Crown City sprinter, was high point winner, sacking the 220 and broad jump and being second in the century. Pollack, who did not enter in the 220, ran away from a numerous field in this event in 10 and 1-5 seconds, although one of the timers caught him in 10 seconds. The best shot put mark on the Long Beach oval in years was hung up by Coburn of Pasadena, who hurled the sphere 41 feet 4 inches.

RANCHO PLANS BIG PROGRAM

A Golf Event for Each Week is Club Motto

Women Golfers Will Perform at Park Links

Round Robin Tournament Is Also on Bill

BY BOB LOCKE

The Rancho Golf Club has arranged one of the most ambitious programs for a local club that has been set up for some time. Starting on March 3 a high-toned tournament will take place every week-end and on a couple of special occasions two tourneys will take place on the same day.

The women of the club are to have a tournament all their own on July 18. This event, being the only exclusively ladies' affair on the bill, is being planned for by the women as the biggest and best day in the bunch. In their fight for more ladies' days the women are doing all they can to make July 18 a sure success.

The women players on the municipal course at Griffith Park are due for a treat next week. On March 6 a round robin tournament will be played off among the fair members on the public course. The first round will be played off a week from today and will probably be finished by the end of the week. Handsome prizes are up for the winner and for the runner-up in this event. The Oakmont Country Club trophy is up for the winner.

A little later in the month a tournament, the winner of which gets the Tuft's trophy, will be played off. The entry list is open now and a few have signed up already. By the time the tournament starts at least 100 golfers are expected to have signed to play.

The men's round-robin tournament of the Angeles Vista Golf Club got off to a flying start yesterday morning, when nearly fifty players teed off in the first day of play.

According to the plans which have been made, there will be two matches played by each man during each week of the tourney, thus keeping the affair from dragging to a dull finish. Before the end of the tournament, it will be necessary for every man entered to have played one match with every other entry, and the one who wins the largest number of matches will be awarded a cup.

A number of the best players at the local course have entered, and there seems to be a great deal of excitement, as a large number of the entrants turned out yesterday.

It is believed that this round-

WINNER COMES FROM BEHIND

Three Straight is Record of Contestant

Bungay Close Second, Who at One Time Led

Lou Reed Also in the Money With a Third

Coming from behind, three birds to the bad, Frank Troeh, again showed the many visiting shooters and the local gunners that he is about the best dog-gone gun pointer ever to visit these parts. Yesterday Troeh at the Vernon Gun Club finished high amateur in the club's third annual Midwinter Handicap classic, with a total score of 441x450. His win makes the third consecutive victory in as many years at the Vernon club.

Troeh overtook Bob Bungay in the first 100 targets and even went one ahead and got the other in the last fifty. Bungay held the first two days of the tournament right in his gun case and always by three birds. At that the Canal City shooter broke second high amateur with 439x450. The high run of the tournament also went to Troeh with his big mark of 151. A mark of 150 even was made by Bangay on the opening day.

Lou Reed, the Tufts-Lyon gunner, got some honors for the local, grabbing third high amateur for the tournament with 437. Strange as it was the three high shooters finish, two targets apart.

Another handicap at fifty targets, closed the Vernon winter shoot, the high score being tied up by Troeh, Fawcett and Callers.

Cash prizes, moneys, and other trophies were taken away by the intrepid Red Coated Troeh. He, along with the other northern shooters and visitors from the East and South, are to remain over for the Pacific Zone shoot, which opens at the Vernon Club grounds tomorrow with a practice day event. The scores:

PASSAIC PREPS SET UP VICTORY RECORD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PASSAIC (N. J.) Feb. 26.—Passaic High School basketball team broke the world's record for successive victories today, defeating Ridgewood High School, 53 to 11, in a Northern New Jersey league game, here. Passaic has won 112 consecutive games in four years.

Passaic tied the world's record Saturday when they defeated Paterson. The record was held by the Buffalo Germans, of Buffalo, N. Y.

FISHER FOLK CAPTURE THE LIMIT OF TROUT

With several of the limits of trout still intact, R. N. Webster, Mrs. Webster and a party of friends are back from a trip to the Rainbow Angling Club. They caught quite a number of trout, quite a few which disappeared when the party had lunch.

Louie Breer, who bears quite a reputation as a huntsman and fisherman, caught a limit at the club recently consisting of brook, steelhead and rainbow trout. His wife also caught a limit.

Percy Wilding and H. P. Platt caught limits in gig time.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Referring to a recent article pertaining to Henry J. Killefer, who spoke at the Frank Chance banquet, a gentleman signing himself the "St. Louis Kid" desires to know if Mr. Killefer really ever was an owner of the Browns.

The records do not show him as having ever been listed as such, but he was introduced at the banquet as one of the early backers of the Browns as well as principal owner of the Boston Red Sox. Possibly he was temporarily back of other teams. If so, it was not for purposes of syndicate baseball, but to meet an exigency when the league was young and it was difficult to interest capital.

Killefer's interest in any of the clubs was only transient in a financial sense. He took the Boston club off the hands of Charley Somers largely as a financial favor to the league, and held the presidency only one year. Mr. Killefer, a railroad attorney of note, easily could have made millions out of baseball, but he did not care for that end of the great national pastime. He preferred to enjoy the game solely as a fan, once the new league was established.

Mr. Killefer told of having picked Ban Johnson for the job of league president. Ban received $150 a month at the start, which gives some idea of the uncertainty of baseball at that time and the limited resources of the young league.

* * *

The "St. Louis Kid" says, and after reading, you will agree that he is A youngster the same as Kid Gleason:

"I believe I can recall all the owners of the Browns back to Chris von der Ahe (der poss President) but I do not remember Killefer among them.

"Cy Young, who was, I think, every bit as good as Christy Mathewson, came to St. Louis with the old Cleveland Spiders when Frank de Haas Robinson took over the St. Louis franchise from Von der Ahe or his creditors. Among the Spiders were Pat Tebeau, Jack O'Connor, Bobby Wallace, Ed McKean, Chippy McGarr, Jess Burkett, Emmett Heidrick, Harry Bay, Chief Zimmer, Nig Cuppy, Jack Powell and Lon Criger.

"At one time Criger boasted that he would stop Ty Cobb from stealing. Ty at that time was new in the game and 'fresh,' and the first time he played against Criger he showed the latter up by stealing four or five bases. McGraw boosts Matty to the skies. This is all right, for Mathewson was a great pitcher, but the records will show that whenever he and Miner Brown of Chicago tied up the latter won. His most renowned victory over Matty probably was in the playoff of the famous failure-to-touch-second-game which gave the championship to the Cubs."

"St. Louis Kid!" Sounds like the nom de plume of a hobo, and looks like those hieroglyphics which you find scrawled on the side of a box car. His handwriting is that of a business man or a college professor. Who are you kid?

It is very true that Brown seemed to have something on Mathewson. Brown was a wonderful pitcher. However, the fact that he could vanquish Mathewson doesn't necessarily prove him greater than Big Six. Certain pitchers have certain clubs beaten whenever they toss their glove into the box, and it makes little difference who is pitching for that club. Many will contend that Brown, except in length of effectiveness, was as good as Mathewson. Baseball thrives on arguments. Brown put all of his great heart into the game. He always was ready and willing. This cut down his span of service. In this he may have shown poor judgment, but it was fine loyalty.

McGraw recently spoke of Mathewson's ability to sense out the weakness of a batter, and his wonderfully retentive memory. A new man in the league might bump Big Six all over the lot the first day, but when he called around again Matty generally had him meekly nibbling out of his mitt. Ask Rube Ellis.

Rube at the time was with the St. Louis Cardinals. The first time the Pride of Rivera faced Mathewson it was a gala occasion for the former. He slammed out three hits, including a double, as I recall it. "Where do they get all this about Mathewson being hard to hit?" remarked Ellis after the game. He was little more than a major league rookie at the time. The older hands merely smiled a sage, wise smile. In the next game, Matty pitched to Rube in such a way that the latter completely revised his opinion to coincide with that of the great majority.

JAPAN AFTER DAVIS TROPHY

Best Nipponese Tennisers to Swing Rackets

Fakuda is Most Promising of the Invaders

Kumagae Has Beaten Some American Stars

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—Japan invades America! No, it is no cause for war, nor yet breaking off diplomatic relations. Rather, it is a cause for rejoicing, for it means that Japan has again challenged for the Davis cup, and is sending to our shores a team of tennis players which will uphold the honor of Nippon.

Our old and esteemed friends Zenzo Shimidzu, who is now a resident in this country; Ichiya Kumagae and Seichiro Kashio head the invading army. These thre men, by their courtesy, sportsmanship and splendid tennis, hold unique places in the heart of the American public. The new members of the team, youngsters who are being groomed for future Davis cup teams, will undoubtedly prove the same sterling sportsmen as our old friends.

IS PROMISING

The most promising young star is the present champion of Japan—Fakuda. He won the tournament decisively. Kumagae did not compete, but many critics believe that even if he had, Fakuda would have defeated him. In speaking of Fakuda and the Davis Cup matches for 1923, my friend Zenzo Shimidzu, who will captain the Japanese team, intimated that Fakuda would play in the singles, while Kumagae would appear only in doubles. This is, of course, tentative, and may be only an erroneous impression of my own, for Shimidzu made no direct statesas to personnel.

It is not the individuals who will play on this year's team which is important interesting as the men are personally. It is the motive behind the invasion that should be recognized. There is no cleverer, no more adaptable nation than Japan. The oriental is always willing to learn and use the best of the occidental. The Japanese team's association has studied American methods of development, and with that in view, Kumagae (since his return to Japan two years ago) has spent much of his time teaching the youth of the country the American game.

There is a definite policy of world supremacy in tennis behind this splendid organization. The Japanese are wonderful tennis players. Kumagae and Shimidzu, with their defective technique, have reached the world's first ten. What will be the result when the correct fundamentals of the game are taught the boys of Japan? It is but a matter a few years before the Davis cup itself is in imminent danger, if not actually in Japan.

OTHER SPORTS SHOW DEFICIT

And the facilities which can not be supplied by appropriations of the Legislature, will be met largely by revenue from the sale of athletic tickets at a reasonable price to thousands of lovers of clean amateur sports, who while getting a full return from the contests themselves, may at the same time feel that every cent of profit on their dollars will be devoted to rounding out the development of young men and women of their State university.

robin idea will be very popular, as it is for week-day players only, play being suspended on Saturdays and Sundays. In this way, some of the poorer players have more of a chance, as there are many stars who play only on Saturday or Sunday, and thus are not able to enter. According to a number of experts, this is an excellent system for developing good players and getting tournament experience.

Baseballers Working Out at Redlands

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Feb. 26.—Malcolm Smith, coach at Redlands High School, has his baseball players working, and he expects to have as good a team this year as he has had since he has been coaching at the high school. He will have Appelton and Brown do the twirling for him this year, and he expects these two men to be working well, especially Appelton.

Smith lost a four-year man last year when Brumbaugh, the first baseman for four years, graduated, but he has a wealth of material to step into the position. Sturtevant will probably do the receiving this year, with Reitzell, Sutt, MacCubbin, Davis, all holdovers from last year.

The baseball season in the Citrus Belt League does not start for over a month yet, but Smith expects to have several practice games before that time with Beaumont, Banning, Sherman Indians and other teams.

BOYD COMSTOCK TO BECOME YALE COACH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Conn.) Feb. 26. Boyd Comstock, former track coach of the University of Southern California, has been appointed coach at Yale to take charge of candidates for the field events. The position is temporary in the absence of Head Coach Johnny Mack, was is convalescing from an illness.

INNOCENT BYSTANDER'S OBSERVATIONS

BY W. M. H.

The one and only May Sutton Bundy may have had her star slightly dimmed by the stifling heat of summer in her last couple of eastern invasions, but she is far from "through" as a tennis player of championship caliber. The May Sutton of 1923 is still the fightiest woman tennis player that ever waved a racket at an opponent, as was plainly shown when she turned back Miss Eleanor Goss after a bitter three-set match last Sunday.

Mrs. Bundy's game, always best on the swift concrete, where her heavily topped, hard-hit drives hold their pace, is still good enough to turn back her opponents. No woman player has yet been found who is capable of beating Mrs. Bundy on the concrete. She has turned back Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, Helen Baker, Mary Browne and now Eleanor Goss, fresh from a victory over the sensational Helen Wills, and unless all signs fail Miss Wills will follow in the footsteps of her predecessors if she meets Mrs. Bundy this spring at Ojai or Santa Barbara.

OUR TRACK HEROES

Unless all signs fail, Southern California this year has the greatest crop of track and field athletes that ever flaunted their parades before a gasping gallery. There are more stars of the first magnitude now wearing the colors of Southern California institutions of learning than there have been in any previous half a dozen years.

A track team could be assembled from the Southern California colleges that would sweep the intercollegiates. Paddock is without question the greatest sprinter in the world and Cliff Argue can place in the sprints in any meet in the country. Yale Marts of U.S.C. looks the finest quarter-mile prospect that ever drew up a shoe in these parts. He will disappoint a lot of people if he doesn't beat 49 seconds this year. Tony Spangler of Occidental is another eligible for the hall of fame in the one-lap race.

DISTANCE STARS

Phil Ellsworth of Occidental is apparently about due to run a half in 1:58 or better, having run under two minutes last season. In Doug Keech Coach Stanton at Caltech has an athlete who will run a mile in under 4:30 as surely as green apples give cramps and there is every reason to believe that Handley of Pomona and Carter of Occidental can do as well. Keech is equally sure to step the two mile in well under ten minutes.

In the hurdles events Charley Daggs is probably the greatest in the country. He will run them in fifteen seconds any time he has to and can step off the low sticks in twenty-four flat if hurried. Otto Anderson of U.S.C. can beat anybody but Daggs and might do that, but hasn't shown any signs of it yet. Maxwell of Pomona is a youngster of promise who ran the lows in twenty-five flat two weeks ago.

* * *

FIELD DEMONS

In the field events the south is equally strong. Dick Emmons of U.S.C. clears better than twelve feet any old day in the pole vault, and Goodenough of Occidental does the same, although he has been down with the flu lately. Oliver Corey and Grandpa Richards of U.S.C. and Cliff Argue of Occidental are consistent at better than six feet two in the high jump; Corey quite a bit better. Anderson and Jimines of U.S.C. both can beat twenty-two feet in the broad jump, and Anderson looks good for better than twenty-three feet. Argue of Occidental did twenty-two feet eight inches as a freshman, but hasn't been heard jumping this year. Fulton of Occidental has done twenty-two feet this year.

Swede Anderson of U.S.C. is the lone athlete capable of making anybody sit up and take notice in the shot-put, but his mark of better than forty-six feet is good enough to score in any meet. Anderson and Grandpa Richards both hurl the discus better than 130 feet. Young Eaton of Pomona is a genuine star in the javelin and is consistent at 180 feet.

* * *

THOSE FRESHMEN

Aside from the athletes named, all of whom are eligible for college competition, the local institutions have a flock of freshmen who are real rivals of their older brethren. Bud Houser and Thomas of U.S.C. are real stars in the weights. Johnson and Shaw, the two negro quarter-milers at U.S.C., are wonders; Ryder, a Tropan freshman, is a fine high jumper; Ellwood looks like a good distance man; Wilson is a broad jumper with a wonderful reputation, and the other colleges have young men with less reputation, but probably equally good futures.

SOLONS BLOCK AUTO CLASSIC

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26. The Indiana House of Representatives today passed the Senate bill to prohibit all commercialized sports on Memorial Day, including the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The bill now goes to the Governor. The House vote was 53 to 38.

When the service must not fail

Numbing cold . . . the thermometer stubbornly hovering around the zero mark. All day . . . all night . . . the fires seethe and roar in the three big plants of the Detroit Edison Company, turning coal to steam and sending its comforting warmth to a hundred thousand people in 2,200 office buildings and apartments.

J. A. Mercier's fleet of Heavy Duty Pierce-Arrows for years have hauled every ton of coal used by the Detroit Edison Company. Eleven 5-ton dump trucks, towing trailers, serve the heating company's three plants. Each truck and trailer hauls 200 tons of coal a day. One of the trucks has traveled well over 200,000 miles. It is ten years old. Three others are nine years old.

How well, and how profitably Pierce-Arrow Trucks serve in the coal business and in nearly two hundred other industries can best be told by examining the facts and figures which have been assembled for your consideration. No matter where you are located, no matter what conditions of load or road you must meet, we can give you definite information covering your particular haulage problem.

Angels Gather at Camp Under Killefer's Wings—Tigers Get Busy

"TO ELSINORE," SERAPHIC CRY

Killefer Skipper Regulars in Training Camp

Rank and File Will be on the Job Today

Tigers Gather at Vernon for First Airing

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

A deep bass note was intruded into the high childish treble at Elsinore yesterday when the veterans of the Los Angeles club invaded the Angel training quarters, heretofore monopolized by the rookies.

Radiant Red Killefer yesterday piloted the first echelon of Los Angeles regulars to the lakeside training grounds. Others will follow today. Throughout the forenoon the players reported to Secretary Weber at Washington Park and received their credentials. When all had assembled they were placed in automobiles and motored to Elsinore just in time to get comfortably settled for the night.

FIRST PRACTICE

Today they will embark on their first practice and will be worked regularly until March 16, weather permitting, when they will come to Los Angeles for a series of games with the Chicago Cubs. Then when the Cubs vacate and leave for the East, the Angels will move over to Catalina and complete their training among the ideal conditions of that place.

Those leaving for Elsinore yesterday were Lindimore, Carroll, Baldwin, Rego, Hughes, Wallace, McQuaide, Lyons, Douglas, Beck, Reed, Krug and Jones. Rego and Lyons were at Elsinore last week, but came up and reported here and made the trip back down with the regulars lest they inadvertently be listed with the rookies. With fourteen youngsters on the ground, held over from last week, Killefer will have a numerically impressive squad with which to start work today.

REPORT TODAY

Secretary Weber yesterday received a wire from Billy McCabe in which the latter stated he will report today. The whereabouts of Babe Twombly do not seem to be known, but he has already wired to Elsinore for accommodations. Shadow Griggs is expected to join us Wednesday. Lefty Thomas, who has been selling automobiles, will report today. Then, with the arrival of York, Ponder, Crandall, Galvin, McAuley and Daly, the squad will be complete, unless there are others of demonstrated merit who desire to enroll. Charley Deal was already on the ground.

President Joe Patrick, who has been at Catalina with Owner William Wrigley, Jr., for a month past, came over to the mainland last night and may take a run down to Elsinore today. Business Manager Lockard was forced to leave the training camp because of illness in his family, but will rejoin the Angel forces in a day or two.

TIGERS TRAIN

Full - fledged training was launched by the Tigers at Maier Park yesterday, where for a week past Bill Essick had been conditioning the pitchers and catchers. Reporting to Baffin' Bill were Dai Lesher, Rod Murphy, Carl Sawyer, Charley Gorman, Al Prince, Matt Batt, Chester Chadbourne, Parry O'Brien, Vernon Blenkiron, Norman Peterson and Al Miller. Miller, a right-hander, regarded as one of the best semipros in these parts, signed only yesterday morning after several days of dickering.

Spud Murphy also was among those present, having made satisfactory salary arrangements with the club. Secretary Lorens has received a wire from Hughie High, ing barring delays the latter will report on March 2. J. Carlisle Smith, who is employed by the Edison Electric Company, will join the team on March 1.

Those still officially on the other side of the fence are Wheezer Dell and Ray French. Neither has signed his contract. What terms were offered Dell is not known. It was stated, however, that French was offered a substantial increase over last season. In fact, it was declared that an increase had been handed every man on the club.

Vernon seems to have picked up a ballplayer of unusual possibilities in Harry Trautwein, a local semipro. Trautwein was signed as a pitcher, and has been showing a world of stuff in that department, but his hitting may result in his being transferred to some other position.

CREB ACCEPTS TERMS FOR BOUT IN LONDON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26. — Harry Greb, who lost the American light heavyweight to Gene Tunney last Friday, announced that he had accepted terms for a bout with Jack Bloomfield, English pugilist, in Albert Hall, London, some time in June. Greb said he had been offered $50,000 and 15 per cent of the motion-picture receipts.

Eddie Welch of South Bend and Johnny Tillman of Minneapolis were matched to box ten rounds in South Bend on March 16.

TEAMS LINE UP FOR POLO TILTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DEL MONTE, Feb. 26.—Present indications are that six senior teams will take the field for the Pacific Coast polo title which is to be contested at Del Monte on March 23 to April 15. Nine or ten entries will be made for the junior and novice events. This will make the biggest polo tournament ever held on the Coast and will furnish daily games for three weeks. It is the first time that the American Polo Association has sanctioned a Coast championship. Polo-ists are naturally keenly interested in striving for the honor.

WOMEN BOWLERS WIL CUT LOOSE TOMORROW

A special bowling watch between two-women teams is scheduled for the Angelus Academy alleys next Wednesday night. Mrs. L. D. Meador, former women's Pacific Coast champion, with Mrs. Robert Warner, women's Los Angeles city champion will form one team, while Mrs. Ballard and Mrs. Bohen, two well-known women bowling stars will compose the other duo.

The play will be at ten straight games, no stops between. The team having high number of toppled pins will win.

GOSSIP FROM TRAINING CAMPS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AVALON, Feb. 26.—Spring training for Bill Killefer's squad of Cub hurlers and infielders is now at a stage where the boys will have to hustle. After a week of somewhat easy toil, during which the athletes were able to harden up their muscles, the program was elaborated today to the extent of letting the pitchers put something on the ball.

Nothing fancy was attempted by the mound experts, but before the week is up they will be able to burn 'em with increased abandon and by that time Killefer will be able to tell whether or not he has any real finds among his collection. Right now the sheep look like the goats and vice versa, but the key manager has hopes. He is particularly impressed with Mike Dumovich, the star southpaw purchased from the Los Angeles club. Nick is constructed on the Slim Sallee style and looks like a pitcher even in his street clothes.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HOT SPRINGS, Feb. 26.—Hal R. Hyne, the Reno infielder, signed his contract today, according to word received this afternoon from San Francisco, and is expected to report in the morning. Word also came that Pitcher Jim Nash had arrived from his winter hunting trip into Canada and that he will arrive shortly in camp.

Sherd Hedge also arrived this afternoon, which was the total of activities outside of the training quarters.

Miller outlined his work for today and there was nothing but batting on the program. All the pitchers save those who worked in the Sunday game took their turns in the cage, and they pitched until everybody was ready to say quits.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MYRTLEDALE HOT SPRINGS, Feb. 26.—When the Cubs put the full strength of their company here, which will not be until after the first of March, Del Howard will have some thirty-two ball players, including several who are recruits, from which to pick the team that will represent Oakland in the coming pennant race.

This last week the camp was filled with youngsters and, although the Howard brothers have a fairly good line on these novices, they are hardly in a position to predict just how the team is likely to shape up.

With the exception of Del Baker, the Portland catcher, and Claude Cooper, all of the men have either reported at Myrtledale or are on their way.

This morning's train brought with it Brubaker, Ken Wiley, Ted Cather, Gerard Lafourcia, Ray Kramer, who signed Saturday; Orville Ely, Andy Phillips of San Jose, T. J. Mandil, Harold Chaves and Ed Madeiras. The last two named are by Raiders who were with the Oakland club the closing week of the 1922 season.

Earl Arlett, Harry Krause and Reed ware have with this youngsters last week. The regulars who are still to put in an appearance include Walter Mails, Marty McGaffigan, Jack Knight, Frank Weaver, the outfielder from the south, and Smith, an infielder from Peoria. They ought to reach camp by Thursday, according to their arrangement of departure from home.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 26.—The training squad of the Sacramento Coast League baseball team will reach its full quota Thursday. All candidates except pitchers and catchers are ordered to be on hand that day to start the real training grind. Most of them have already reported and have been working out during the past week.

Those who are out to report are Martin Kopp, Charley Carlson, H. Brown, Claude Rohner and Ed Hemingway. The local magnates are pleased with the start the club has made and are sure the team will be in first-class condition for the race which starts April 8. The Paddy Shillerace which starts April 8. Losses Appear in Wheat; Corn Is Sold Freely

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Liquidation was on in the grain markets early and prices declined to a new low on the present downturn. While short covering made a strong rally from the inside figures, closing trades were at net losses of ⅛@1⅜c on wheat, ⅛@⅝c on corn and 1¼@1⅝c on rye. Oats showed independent strength and was unchanged to ⅛c higher.

A breaking of the dry spell over parts of the Southwest had considerable to do with the decline and new crop deliveries showed the most weakness. Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down, but under 1.17 for May there was persistent buying by commission houses which gradually absorbed the surplus in the pit and offerings were light on the way up. Sentiment, however, remains distinctly bearish.

An improvement in the export demand with sales of 350,000 bushels in all positions, largely Manitobas, had little effect on values. Foreign statistics were not as bullish as expected, but the clearances of 450,000 bushels in the visible supply was a surprise. Demand for cash wheat from mills is rather slow.

Longs were free sellers of corn and, with a local professional active in liquidating and with stop-loss orders, prices at the inside showed 1½c under the finish of Saturday. Under 75c for May there was good buying and a rally of 1c from the inside figures came toward the last, but the undertone was heavy at the last. An increase of 1,591,000 bushels in the visible supply had some effect. Bulls in the sample market was easier with receipts 315 cars. Country offerings continue light. A moderate export business was under way at the seaboard with sales of 250,000 bushels.

Oats broke early with other grains, but there was better support than of late and as soon as aggressive buying started the market advanced quickly, more than recovering the early losses. Cash houses were on both sides. Visible supply is commencing to decrease rather rapidly, the reduction last week being 1,823,000 bushels. Receipts, 314 cars.

Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered in rye and at one time May was off 3½c from Saturday's finish. Export demand was fair and there was some inquiry here from the seaboard. The two northwestern markets had 218 cars.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Imported lemons today at the sale of 2100 boxes of Palermos, ex SS Conejos brought full prices as follows: First choice, 300s, $5.25 to $5.62½; seconds 300s, $4.25 to $4.87½; first 360s, $4.25 to $4.37½; second 360s, $4 to $4.37½.

Florida oranges were strong and active. Californias declined 25 cents per box. Prices of Californias: 80s, $2.75; 100s, $3.10 to $6.20; 126s, $3.15 to $6.20; 150s, $3.45 to $6.05; 176s, $3.55 to $6.15; 200s, $3.30 to $6.05; 216s, $3.25 to $5.25.

California lemons were in good demand, the market being steady on 300s and lower on 360s, two cars being sold at $4.20 to $6.45 per box.

FRUIT MARKET

In an effort to speed up the movement of their stocks Coast fig packers have reduced prices on black figs which are now held at 15 cents per pound for standards; 16 cents for choice; 17 cents for extra choice and 19 cents for fancy all in 25s. The market for white Adriatics in 25s is held at 6½ to 7 cents for standard; 7½ to 8 cents for choice; 10 to 10½ cents for fancy and 11 to 12½ cents for extra fancy. The Smyrna fig competition has grown a little keener during the past several weeks.

Distressed lots of raisin offerings in this market by outside interests have been generally cleaned up and the market, although still weak, shows signs of getting back into normal line with consequent restoration of more healthy trading conditions.

The market for standard California cling peaches is still somewhat upset on the Coast, and prices of the various canners show material variance. Sales and quotations have been reported down to $1.65 f.o.b. cannery, and from this figure the market is quoted all the way up to $1.90. Some of the standards offered have been rather dubious as to quality and count, and would grade as good seconds with New York buyers. However, selling pressure on the part of some of the smaller canners is reported to have put some good bargains on the market during the past few weeks, and eastern distributors have been availing themselves of these opportunities to pick up cheap peaches.

TOMATOES

The tomato market has shown a little easiness, and offerings of standard twos for prompt shipment are reported at 95 cents per dozen, although most canners quote 97½ cents, and some are holding up to $1. Standard ones are held at 75 cents, while threes range all the way from $1.60 to $1.70, according to brand and seller. The market for tens is steady at $5.50, with few offerings at 10 cents under that figure.

SUGAR FEATURES

The opening of the sugar market was at a decline of 2 to 20 points, the liquidation coming from trade and commission houses as well as interests with Cuban connections. The early decline resulted in sales on the street at 5⅝ to 5¼ cents, cost and freight. The futures market snapped back to the extent of 11 to 14 points, but the list slumped badly toward the close. The futures market is for the time being attracting the attention of the sugar world in general. At the close today the principal weakness was in the far months, but the list was net 10 to 45 points lower. Sales estimated at 81,500 tons included switches from May to July at 9 points spread, and from March to May at 11 points.

Only a comparatively small business was reported in refined sugar. Another reduction of 10 points was announced by the Federal, whose latest quotation is 8.65 cents a pound, less 2 per cent.

COFFEE, TEA

March notices to the amount of 101 lots weakened the coffee futures market to the extent of 10 to 14 points on call.

After May had declined to 11.18 it recovered all of its loss, closing at 11.25 cents; the improvement in the early part of the afternoon carried prices up 5 to 11 points.

At the close the market was 8 to 11 points lower, with sales estimated at some 27,000 bags. March and July switched at 16 points, and March and September 47 points.

Spot coffees are quiet and nominal as a rule. Offers in the cost and freight market were irregular. Rio 7s were at 12.19 to 12.15 cents; Bourbons 2-3s at 16⅝; 3s, 16 to 16.20; 3¼s, 15.45 to 16.25; 4s, 15½; part Bourbons, 2-3s, 16.30; 3s, 13⅛ to 15.80; ⅝s, 15⅝ to 16.50; 4s, 14⅝ to 15¼; 4-5s, 14.80 to 15.20. Futures shipments, 9; futures shipment 4s part Bourbon, July-August, 14.20, and October-December, 13⅛.

Teas continue to meet generally satisfactory call from consumers the country over. For the time being on the part of out-of-town consumers such buying is mostly in fermented varieties. There was nothing in the day's news to indicate any change from the fundamental conditions of the market.

RICE, BEANS, PEAS

The general position of rice was again described as firm. The outlook for increased exports is regarded as good. Shortages are indicated in Japan and other Far Eastern producing sections. The position of foreign rice generally was firm.

In dried beans and peas, marrows at 10 3-4 cents do not sell with any freedom and to move lines of size 10 1-4 cents would be all the market would stand. Peas are offered at 8½ cents but certain dealers insist upon 8 3-4 cents. Red kidney are much steadier than for some time past. Coast small whites are no more than steady. Lima beans quiet but still held with confidence.

COPPER, ZINC

Copper advanced 3-8 of a cent and the market closed firm at 16 3-4 cents a pound for electrolytic delivered through the next few months.

London reported prices advanced as follows: standard spot showed a gain of 15s at £71, 15s; futures a gain of 12s 6d at £72 7s, 6d; electrolytic spot was up £1, 10s at £79.

Zinc today gained another ten points the St. Louis market closing at 7.60 cents for practically all deliveries although reports of sales for April delivery at 7.55 cents were heard.

BUTTER, EGGS

The butter market opened with fair supplies of table grades and the late sharp advance was sustained. Call sales were two 100-tub lots of extra creamery seller February at 52 cents. There were no sales made for spot delivery.

Pacific Coast white extras 43 cents.

GASOLINE

Standard Oil of New York announced a general increase of 1¼ cents a gallon in tank wagon prices of gasoline in its territory of New York State and New England. This increase places the tank wagon market at 24¼ cents a gallon making the cost 27 cents a gallon to consumers.

An Opportunity to Own an Interest in a Well Drilling Just 350 Feet from the Largest High Gravity Oil Well in the World.

The opportunity is extended to one man, who will furnish $100,000, or to a group of men, who will furnish this amount, to join, at 20% above his actual costs, a prominent local oil producer in the development of a lease at Santa Fe Springs, which is surrounded on every side by producers from both the Bell and Meyer sands and which has the 6000-barrel Babonnet well east of it, the 6000-barrel Foix well north of it, the 6000-barrel Petroleum Midway well northeast of it, the 6000-barrel Elliott well west of it; and the Hamilton 4 south of it.

This lease is on one of the highest points of the Santa Fe Springs structure—is located in the townsite, was selected for this operator by two of the best known California geologists. It is conceded to be a location that will yield at least a 5000-barrel-per-day producer of $1.50 oil.

This lease is not for sale at any price—the opportunity to share in its production is extended only because of the heavy drilling commitments, on other properties, that face this operator.

This lease cost the operator $25,000 in cash and a 50% royalty. He has let a turnkey contract for $150,000 to a reliable drilling contractor who has bonded himself to complete the well to the Meyer sand.

This operator will sell 49% of his interest in the production of this lease, which is 24½% of the total production from this lease, for $100,000.

This leaves the operator with a 51% interest, after royalties are paid, in the production of this lease, which has cost him $75,000, plus his per-head charge—while the man, or group of men, will own a 49% interest, after royalties are paid, which has cost $100,000.

On this basis, a 5,000-barrel well, after all royalties are paid, will net the owners of this 49% interest in excess of $80,000 per month.

Ever fact concerning this offer is contained herein, except the name of the operator, the name of the drilling contractor—and the exact location. These three are guaranteed to meet with the approval of the most discerning, as both the operator and the drilling contractor are well known, while the location will be approved and recommended by any recognized geologist in Southern California.

This operator will have associated with him in the development of this lease no one who is not prepared to invest at least $5,000, and he prefers one man who will furnish $100,000.

I represent this operator, but both he and myself are too busy to be annoyed by curiosity seekers, so, unless you are prepared to do business immediately, provided the operator, drilling contractor and location are satisfactory, please save your time and mine.

I have contracted to drill eight wells to the Meyer sand on fifteen of the choicest acres in Santa Fe Springs.

I own the lease—I own five complete rotary drilling outfits.

This fifteen acres cost me almost half a million dollars—to complete the eight wells to the Meyer sand is going to cost me another $1,200,000.

Some big man or group of big men, who do things in a big way can join me.

My representative will interview you, if you are interested—have the money—and can do business in twenty-four hours. No investment of less than $25,000 will be considered.

BANKER TALKS ON MUNICIPALS

Bond House Head Discusses Securities in Lecture

Describes Phases of This Type of Financing

Tax Exempt Amendment May Mean New Deal

Robert H. Moulton, head of R. H. Moulton & Co., addressed the class studying investments in the extension course of the University of Southern California last evening. The investment banker's subject was "Municipals," and he discussed it from an expert's standpoint to the enlightenment and edification of his audience. He confined his remarks to California issues and said in part:

The handling of municipal bonds in any quantity only began in about 1890 and have been distributed by all of the bond houses doing a general business up to 1917 when the income Tax law became a real factor. During this first period from 1890 to 1917 there were only a limited amount of bonds available and they were purchased by ultra-conservative investors and institutions as the highest type investment available and were frequently regarded in bank statements as secondary reserve. There was little or no advantage in these bonds from a taxation standpoint, as there were no surtaxes that were particularly burdensome, and as a result these bonds were purchased primarily by banks and trust companies during that period.

The second period in the history of Municipal bonds commenced in 1917 when the surtaxes became of such a character that the tax exemption of Municipals forced the wealthy men to invest in this class of security. At the same time there were, of course, a large number of government bonds issued in the open market and the institutions were able to select these as an ultra-conservative investment instead of the Municipals. As a result the principal buying of Municipals since the beginning of the income tax period has been by individual investors as compared with institutions in the first period.

The most interesting phase and feature of the Municipal situation today is whether or not we are in the beginning of a third period, or whether or not we will soon be in a third period. The market position is already somewhat reflecting the possibility that such is to be the case. This question involves the point of a constitutional amendment which shall prohibit the issuance of further tax-exempt securities.

A very wide divergence of opin-

DAILY TRADE TALK

Record Bank Deposits; Improved Business Conditions Warning to Security Holders

Record bank deposits, better conditions in the money market, greater employment, with a general increase of wages, a large volume of petroleum production, with the greatest amount of oil stored in the history of California, and increased business in lumber, flour and general wholesale and retail trade prevailed in the West, in the opening of 1923, according to a report issued yesterday by John Perrin, chairman of the board and Federal reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Mr. Perrin's report says:

"Not since 1920 has the opening month of the year been characterized by the industrial and business activity which marked January, 1923. The total volume of business transacted, as indicated by debits to individual accounts at banks in twenty clearinghouse centers, was 16½ per cent greater than in January, 1922, 5.9 per cent greater than in January, 1921, and 1½ per cent greater than in January, 1920.

"A recent survey conducted by this bank showed that there has been an average increase of 27.2 per cent in the number of men employed in the principal industries of the district during the year ended Feb. 1, 1923. In the majority of cases increases in employment had been accompanied by advances in wages.

"The lumber industry is experiencing great activity. Production during January, 1923, was 17 per cent greater than during January, 1922, shipments 29 per cent greater, and orders received 52 per cent greater.

"New records of production are reported from the oil fields of California; the daily output of petroleum during January, 1923, having been 530,895 barrels, an increase of 6.6 per cent over the previous month, and 68.1 per cent over January, 1922, raising the amount of oil in storage to 62,635,588 barrels, a new high record.

"Expansion of productive and distributive activity has increased the demand for bank credit. Loans and discounts of sixty-six reporting member banks stood at $919,162,000 on the 7th inst., $16,735,000 above the figure for January 10.

"At $1,275,000,000 on the 7th inst. their deposits were $185,000,000 above the low point of 1921-1922 and $90,000,000 above the high point of 1920.

"There was a gain of $210,077,000 in total discounts of the Federal reserve bank during the period from January 10 to February 14, all of which occurred in the city of San Francisco. Borrowings of country member banks were practically uncharged at $18,000,000.

"Prices of the principal products of the district fluctuated within narrow limits during the month, but disregarding seasonal changes, the general trend was upward. Important increases in the prices of cotton, wool, lumber, copper and lead were reported."

NOTE OF WARNING

Holders of Cleveland Discount Company first mortgage collateral trust bonds, on which principal and interest payments were suspended last week through receivership action, are advised by Corporation Commissioner Edward M. Daugherty to refrain from selling their bonds at less than face value. Assets behind the bonds have a value of $125 to every $100 in bonds outstanding, and the security has sufficient liquidity, Mr. Daugherty declared, to warrant the retention of the holdings for eventual return of the original investment.

The present instance is the first since 1914 in which the Corporation Department has been faced with a suspension of interest payments on collateral trust bonds, but as the security, in accordance with the terms of the permit, is deposited with a Los Angeles trust company, and consists of first mortgages and first trust deeds, Mr. Daugherty is of the opinion that bondholders have no cause for fear. The mortgages were passed on by a reputable law firm here, and the appraiser of the trust company rated the security as having a value of 60 to 65 per cent of the District real estate on which it is based, where 75 per cent is generally conservative.

Interim receipt holders and preferred and common stock interests are not in such a safe position, the commissioner's office believes. Some of the bonds were sold on the partial payment plan, and receipts given for the money paid, but it is asserted that these funds have been transferred to Cleveland since the beginning of the Cleveland Discount Company's troubles, and the owners of the interim receipts may experience some difficulty in getting their payments returned. In an attempt to protect both these holders and the owners of the stock, Mr. Daugherty has asked the receiver of the company's affairs in Cleveland to appoint an ancillary receiver to handle affairs in the State.

The Cleveland Discount Company operates in several States, conducting a business in the discounting of commercial paper. The company was headed by Joseph Kirby, whose resignation precipitated the investigation which led to the declaration of receivership. Fred C. Emde has been chosen as acting president by the controlling interests, and according to a recently published statement, a thorough reorganization of the company's affairs is in progress.

J. C. Nimmo, rancher; liabilities, $27,835.49; assets, nothing.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Stocks, after selling off during most of the session on the Stock Exchange today, following a firm opening, took a turn for the better in the last hour of trading, but the tendency to rally was not sufficient to offset the earlier pressure. Stock-market circles were still obviously under the influence of the idea that the New York Federal Reserve Bank aimed at curbing speculation when it advanced the rediscount rate late in last week.

The opening was affected at levels higher than those obtaining on Saturday, but the promise of a forward swing was not fulfilled, notwithstanding that the quality of the buying in United States Steel and in the leading railroad issues was excellent. As it turned out, however, this very buying afforded a screen for profit taking from professional sources, which laid bare the underlying character of the market. All offerings were readily absorbed and in a manner to convince the most skeptical that a definite bear position was not tenable. There was no definite suggestion of weakness in any quarter.

At the low points of the day stocks were down 2 to 3 points, in many instances, from their recent highs, but in a majority of cases the declines were confined to fractional limits. There were a few strong spots, such as Associated Dry Goods and Eastman Kodak. At one time United States Steel was up more than a point, but lost most of this gain. Standard Oil shares were early disposed to advance into higher ground, but these, like the general list, yielded as the session progressed, then firmed in the later trading to a close fractionally higher.

The attempt to rouse greater interest in the railway division did not in the end prove a success. Railway stocks lost all, and in some cases, more than their first-hour gains in the midsession selling. New York Central pushed upward to 93 3-4 before it, too, gave way and closed a point under the day's high and a small fraction net lower. Northern Pacific gained 1 3-8 points but held only half a point of its gain to the close. The whole movement, indeed, represented a momentary lull in which buying was sufficient merely to combat any suggestion of weakness or liquidation; in other words, nothing happened to prejudice the market's position.

Though price fluctuations, within narrow limits, were irregular well into the afternoon, in the last hour's firming of prices several representative issues made up their losses of the morning, and not a few others achieved net advances. Baldwin Locomotive, Bosch Magneto, American Agricultural Chemical, Studebaker, Nash Motors, Pacific Gas and Electric, Tidewater Oil and various of the sugar shares, however, were a point or more off at the close.

The Stock Exchange was not the only quarter in which a halt upon speculative activities appeared to have been called. In the grain markets and sterling exchange the same sort of check showed. Prices eased off in the curb market after opening steady, but the losses were generally small. Oil issues were lower; trading interest centered in the motor shares, with industrial trading generally quite active.

London sight drafts were fractionally lower at $4.69½, 3 points under the recent high. The continental exchanges, however, did not move with sterling. Francs advanced 3 points to 6.98½ cents, and lire a fraction to, 4.30 1-4 cents. Marks were quoted at .00000442½, which was the same price as at the close of the week. Swedish and Norwegian kroner were down to 2 to 6 points. Danish kroner unchanged and the Dutch guilder slipped a trifle.

The course of the money market indicated a somewhat easier trend. Call loans were renewed at 5½ per cent and at mid-day the loaning rate was marked down to 5 per cent and later to 4 3-4 per cent.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—The American farmer is getting a pretty fair share of this country's comfortable export trade, and this despite the fact that he is insistently told that we must help cure Europe's ills else our foreign sales of farm products will go to pot.

The Commerce Department reports that our grain exports last week totaled 4,351,000 bushels, an increase of 663,000 bushels over the preceding week; while flour exports amounted to 284,500 barrels, an increase of 107,000 barrels. Furthermore, a large part of the week's increase was the result of the large amount of corn, which totalled 1,777,000 bushels, taken by European countries. England and The Netherlands particularly expanded their purchases, while Germany cut down. Wheat and barley exports were somewhat less, but increases in corn and rye made total grain exports higher.

Today brought further evidence of active business. The unusually heavy movement of goods is suggested in increasing railroad earnings. Reports of 178 class 1 roads and fifteen switching and terminal companies to the interstate commerce commission show that December gross and net earnings increased $28,200,000 and $29,498,000 respectively, while for twelve months gross and net earnings rose $44,099,000 and $160,720,000 respectively.

The trend of commodity prices continues slowly upward. Copper metal again was advanced today, the new price being 16 5-8 to 16 3-4 cents a pound delivered. Gasoline and naptha were advanced 1½ cents in the East. Zinc was quoted at 8½ cents a pound, New York, with 30 cents per 100 pounds freight allowance. On the other hand, raw sugar declined 1-4 cent and refined was reduced from 8.75 to 8.65 cents a pound, New York.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company today completed details whereby it obtains a controlling interest in the Chile Copper Company. The Anaconda stockholders authorized increasing the capital stock from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 shares of $50 par value and also authorizes the directors to acquire 2,000,000 shares, or a majority, of the outstanding stock of the Chile Company and to complete the financial program announced at the time the Chile deal was made a few weeks ago.

The Coca Cola Company declared a dividend of $1.50 and an extra of 50 cents a share on the common stock, payable in April. The quarterly dividend was increased from $1 to $1.50 in November. All officers were re-elected and five new directors were chosen. The Columbia Gas and Electric Company has changed its common stock from $100 par value to no par and increased the number of shares from 500,000 to 1,500,000.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Higher money rates brought a large volume of selling orders into today's stock market, which closed irregularly lower. Further study of the cause and effect of the raising of the local Federal Reserve rediscount rate encouraged operations on the short side of the market and these were particularly effective in a number of industrial shares which had been up sharply in the last three weeks of rising prices.

Bidding up of the steel shares to cover distribution elsewhere was again resorted to. Considerable significance was attached to the fact that such constructive trade news, as higher prices for crude rubber, zinc and copper, were virtually disregarded; these sharps making little or no headway in the face of the realizing movement in other quarters.

Steel shares have been lagging behind the rest of the industrial list so that a forward movement in them was not unexpected. United States Steel common was heavily traded in, duplicating its previous high of 108 3-4 but falling back a point at the close, where it was up only 1-8 on the day. Republic Steel closed 2 points higher at 58½, the early gains in Gulf States and Vanadium were reduced to fractions and Crucible, after touching 80 7-8, dropped to 78½ for a net loss of 3-4.

Baldwin and American Can yielded readily to selling pressure, the former getting as low as 125 2-8, and the latter as low as 95 5-8, but both made partial recovery later. Food, chemical, public utility and oil shares also were conspicuously heavy, losses of 1 to 2½ points being registered in many issues. There were a few exceptions to the downward movement in these groups, California Petroleum advancing 1 5-8 points and Pan-American B. Simms Petroleum and Punta Alegre sugar, fractionally.

Louisville and Nashville established a new peak at 155 and then broke to 148 1-4, closing at 149 for a net loss of nearly 6 points. Atlantic Coast Line pursued a similar course, creating a new high price at 127 and then dropping to 121 3-4, where it was off 3-4 on the day. Some of the other dividend paying rails also enjoyed a brief period of strength.

Call money opened at 5½ per cent, the highest renewal rate this year, but eased off to 5 and thence to 4 3-4. Time money was firmer, brokers bidding 5 and bankers demanding 5 1-4 per cent for all maturities, with little business being transacted. The commercial paper rate also stiffened, little new paper coming in and the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 per cent.

The foreign exchanges were irregular, but the fluctuations were within a narrow range. Demand sterling sold around $4.69 11-16, a week-end loss of nearly ⅛ cent, but French Francs improved 5 points to 6.10 cents.

SECURITY: These bonds will be secured by Trust Deed constituting a closed First Mortgage on a 99-year leasehold estate comprising the 12-story, Class "A" office and store building, located on the southwest corner of Eighth and Spring Streets in the City of Los Angeles, fronting 50 feet on Spring and 155 feet on Eighth Street, and the 99-year ground lease on which the building is erected. They will be executed jointly and severally by Mr. C. R. L. Crenshaw and Mr. Joseph H. Smailes, both substantial business men of Los Angeles.

LEASEHOLD: The ground lease covers that property described. The lease is dated September 1, 1921, and extends for 99 years at a flat rental of $12,000 per annum, the lessees agreeing to pay all taxes and assessments; to maintain the premises and to provide adequate insurance.

APPRAISAL: The leasehold estate with the building has been appraised by two of Los Angeles' foremost experts on downtown business property: Mr. Wm. M. Garland, at $300,000, and Mr. W. I. Hollingsworth, at $350,000, or twice the amount of this bond issue.

Income:
Rented to date	$118,833.00
Estimated for balance	69,000.00
	187,833.00	$187,833.00

Estimated net income available for bond interest and retirement		$137,833.00

Estimated net income is 5.3 times maximum interest requirements and is over 2¾ times average annual requirements for interest and serial bond retirement.

The Trust Deed securing this issue will be supported by a Bondholders' Policy of Title Insurance, in full amount of bonds outstanding, issued by the Title Insurance & Trust Company of Los Angeles, guaranteeing the validity of this lien.

The legality of this issue will be certified by Messrs. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher of Los Angeles.

One of the outstanding features of trading in the market by the use of Puts and Calls, is the fact that irrespective of what happens, Margin calls are impossible.

For Over 17 Years
"NOTHING BUT BUSINESS PROPERTIES"

LET'S DISCUSS IT—

Los Angeles' History Began With the Plaza

Main Street was then the important center of all activity—business, social and festive. The Plaza still lives. It is now the "hub" of a greater portion of Los Angeles' foreign population. Their labors may carry them afield, but their buying and trading is religiously confined to the Plaza district. The volume of business done here is surprising when the figures are reviewed.

A "Buy" Close By

Right near the Plaza, where business is "best" for those who serve the foreign trade, you can get a three-story brick building at a figure that marks this as one of the best purchases and investment opportunities on the market. Now fully leased and making healthy return.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Reactionary Trend

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Bond prices turned decidedly reactionary today in sympathy with lower stock quotations. All sections of the list participated in the decline which is believed to have been influenced, sentimentally at least, by the raising of the local reserve rediscount rate last Wednesday and the higher rate for call and time money.

The only two outstanding exceptions to the downward trend were Czech-Slovakians 8's which advanced a point, and Cerro de Pasco 6's which jumped 2½. Other changes in the foreign group were limited to fractions.

Seaboard Air Line adjustment 5's, Iowa Central refunding 4's and New York, Westchester and Boston 4½'s dropped on to 15-8 points, losses among the other active and popular railroad issues being held within a point. Sugar, steel, and public utility company liens also receded moderately.

United States government bonds registered losses of 2 to 8 cents on $100.

METAL MARKETS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLEVELAND (O.) Feb. 26.—Metal Trade today says: "American Sheet and Tin Plate Company advances sheets $3 and $5 a ton to level of independent mills, while leading Pittsburg independent tin plate makers put up price to base of $5 box. Buffalo and Valley furnaces advance foundry iron to base of $28, with ironton at $29 and Alabama furnaces selling into third quarter sparingly at $26. Coke demand becomes heavier in Middle West and our supply only fair. Copper is higher at New York at 13¾@13¾c. Zinc still advances to 7.55c, and lead is strong at 5.15c, St. Louis. Tin is easier at 44¾@44¾c."

PROBLEMS OF INCOME TAX

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made public a ruling of far-reaching importance to persons owing shares of stock in building and loan associations. Until this decision was promulgated, it was held that the difference between the amount paid on shares and that received on maturing shares of building and loan stock represented taxable gains subject to both normal tax and surtax. An exception was made by the Revenue Act of 1921, however, exempting $200 of such gains when received in 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926.

This interpretation has now been liberalized so as to interpret building and loan profits as dividends from domestic corporations and, as such, subject only to surtax.

Furthermore, in view of the fact that the law specifically states that distribution of profits accumulated by a corporation prior to March 1, 1913, shall not be held to be a taxable dividend, such accumulations prior to that date are now held to be exempt.

In the case of building and loan shares, the Collector of Internal Revenue at Philadelphia gives as an illustration of how the new rule works the following example, a salary of $2200 being assumed in the case cited:

Payment on ten shares paid in for 136 months, $10 per month	$1360.00
Maturity Value	2000.00
Profits realized	$ 640.00

Against the $640 a profit of $2 per share was made prior to March 1, 1913, leaving $600 profit earned subsequently. Inasmuch as March 1, 1913, was the beginning date of income tax, any profit made prior to that date is not taxable. Building and loan stock maturing in 1922 began about eleven years and six months ago, and the profit made before March 1, 1913, is approximately $2 per share.

Of the $600 earned subsequent to March 1, 1913, an exemption of $300 applies, leaving $300 subject to surtax. Inasmuch as the taxpayer has an income below $4060 no surtax applies, hence the entire profit of $640 is relieved from taxation.

The taxpayer is married, an exemption of $2500 applying, leaving $700 taxable at 4 per cent, equaling a total tax of $28. Prior to the ruling of a specific exemption of $300 and classifying profits as "dividends" there would have been a tax of 4 per cent on the profit of $600 earned after March 1, 1913. A saving of $24 is had in this illustration.

A MAN who has accumulated money is rated a success—justly.

Because it takes character, self-denial, vision and courage to invest regularly a portion of your income instead of spending it all on self-indulgence.

It is evidence of weakness, unsound judgment and irresponsibility to go on year after year without making provision for the inevitable time when your earning days will be over.

In the offering of the Federal Discount Corporation, of one share of preferred and one share of common for $12.50, we believe you will find the opportunity that will create for you a comfortable income on your purpose.

TRADING IS MIXED IN COTTON OPTIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Quotations were steady and trading mixed in today's cotton market. The opening was lower and prices continued downward for about the first half-hour until under new buying initiative it rallied and around midday was some 14 to 20 points above Saturday's close. Scattered realizing sales and southern and commission-house selling caused the initial decline, the trade buying on a scale down. Further buying was traced to Liverpool, the West, Japanese interests and local operators.

Early in the afternoon the market rallied somewhat above Saturday's close, but this rally was not maintained and quotations reacted under profit-taking and some new selling prompted by the recent rapid advance.

There was further buying near the close and final prices were 10 to 17 points net higher.

Spot cotton was quiet, 10 points advance, 29.85 for middling upland.

Southern spot: Galveston, 30.00, 25 points advance; New Orleans, 29.88, 13 points advance; Savannah, 29.85, 22 points advance; Norfolk, 29.75, 12 points advance; Memphis, 29.50, unchanged; Houston, 30.05, 30 points advance; Little Rock, 29.35, unchanged.

ions is bound to develop on this question, and there will be just as many arguments for as against, and in the final analysis the determination of this question will have to be made by the State Legislature, assuming that such an amendment is passed by the House and the Senate and signed by the President. There seems reason to believe that this latter will be the case, but there seems every reason to believe at the same time that this amendment could not become a law for at least two years, even though the Federal government in its various branches should pass it as this time.

The usual method of procedure would then have to be followed of submitting the amendment to the Legislatures of the various States, and on which there would have to be favorable action by three-quarters of the State Legislatures. This could not be done for at least two years, as practically all of the State Legislatures are in session at this time and most of the States follow the procedure of biennial session the same as California, with a few exceptions where Legislatures meet every year. The only other method of the adoption of this amendment would be by direct submission to the voters at a Federal election, though this system has not been followed for any of the recent amendments.

Discounting the market on a basis that this amendment will become effective in the near future, may result in advancing prices beyond levels that are justified, as it will probably not be certain for at least two years whether or not this proposed amendment is to become a law.

The outline on the subject of Municipal bonds included a discussion of irrigation and reclamation district bonds and other special assessment district securities. This, however, is entirely a different subject and there is not an opportunity to discuss it in detail at this time.

The principal feature to remember, however, of securities of this class is that none of these districts are by law limited to the amount of bonds that can be issued, while the direct Municipal obligations which have been previously discussed, all have a definite debt limit which necessarily requires a much more careful and distinct analysis of every special assessment district bond in order to determine its security on the ratio of its debt to the valuation. This does not mean that there are not many thoroughly sound and safe special assessment district bonds, but there are some on the market and there will undoubtedly be more in the future that will require the most careful analysis and examination.

BUILDING BONDS

The California Company and the District Bond Company are offering $400,000 Crenshaw & Smalles 6½ per cent first mortgage serial gold building bonds at 100 and interest to yield 6½ per cent. The bonds will be secured by a trust deed constituting a closed first mortgage on a ninety-nine-year leasehold estate, comprising the twelve-story class A office and store building located on the southwest corner of Eighth and Spring streets. The issue is exempt from the personal property tax in California.

SIGNAL HILL WELL

Production of the California Petroleum Corporation received another increase yesterday when the Petroleum Midway Company's Ryder No. 1 at Signal Hill suddenly increased its flow from 4000 barrels to a production said to be at the rate of 20,000 barrels each day. The well came in November 20 at 2800 feet, and has been producing about 4000 barrels daily. The increase to the 20,000-barrel mark came without warning, and the company's equipment was inadequate to handle the additional oil, causing a loss from a large amount of the black fluid wasted. The Petroleum Midway Company is owned by the California Petroleum Corporation.

SPRING LAMBS SOLD

A double-deck car carrying 325 spring lambs came into the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards yesterday from Porterville, in the San Joaquin Valley. These are reported to be the first California spring lambs of the year, and were probably the first in the entire country. They were consigned to the Spellmeyer Live Stock Commission Company, one deck being sold to the Hauser Packing Company and the other to the Standard Packing Company of Los Angeles, bringing $10.16 per hetd. They were 4 months old, and averaged sixty-three and one-half pounds in weight, selling for 16 cents per pound live weight in the wards.

DIRECTORS ELECTED

The election of Lawrence Barker of Barker Brothers, and of T. H. Dudley, vice-president and managing director of the Bay Cities branches, as members of the board of directors of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, was announced yesterday. Mr. Barker is first vice-president of Barker Brothers of Los Angeles, he is the son of the late W. A. Barker, who died about a year ago, and who was succeeded by his brother, C. H. Barker, as president of the company.

Mr. Dudley was president of the Ocean Park Bank, with branches at Venice and Santa Monica, at the time of that institution's merger with the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank.

LARGE HARVEST

Farmers in the Glenn-Colusa district, the farming region north of Sacramento, are preparing for the largest harvest of fruits and grain in the history of the two counties, according to advices received here by Stephens & Co. The report was received by E. H. Wotkyns from Raymond Matthew, manager of the Glenn-Colusa Irrigation Company, together with the financial report for 1922 of the water concern. The latter shows the affairs of the company to be in excellent shape, with a cash balance of $169,880.37 at the end of the year.

THE Marbelite Corporation of America has acquired the properties, assets and business of the American Cement Products Company of America. The former company has been in successful operation for ten years, manufacturing street lighting standards and a wide range of other cement products. Centrifugal force is used in manufacturing these products. The process employed is completely protected by basic United States patents, and is known as the "Marbelite" process.

THE leading product of the Marbelite Corporation of America is an extensive line of street lighting standards. 99% of all cement standards used on the Pacific Coast are Marbelite. For durability, utility and beauty these standards have no equal. No Marbelite standard has ever worn out. Being manufactured from cement, crushed granite and other materials, they are impervious to the elements and are practically indestructible. Many of the standard designs are replicas of classic pillars and columns of ancient Europe. Over $400,000 has been spent in developing and perfecting the process.

ORDERS now on hand for Marbelite standards greatly exceed the total available output of 1923, notwithstanding the fact that production will be approximately 150% greater than in 1922. These orders are for equipment in California cities alone. With increased manufacturing facilities the field of operation can be extended gradually to every portion of the United States and Canada.

In addition to the acquisition of all interests of the former company, the proceeds of this issue will be used for the making of such improvements and additions to the present plant as conditions warrant. They will include the purchase of property held under a lease purchase contract that has advanced 100% in value, the addition of approximately 25,000 square feet of space to plant, the installation of labor-saving equipment and the manufacturing of additional products for which extensive markets already exist.

Sold only in units of 8 shares Preferred and 4 shares Common: $300 Per Unit

This issue provides opportunity for your participation in the extensive earnings of a manufacturing concern that completely dominates its field.

WIFE CHARGES SOUL-MATE

One night her husband came home and said he didn't love her, and the next night he told her that he had found his "soul-mate." Mrs. Ruth L. Seals asserted in a divorce complaint against Ransome C. Seals, filed in Superior Court yesterday. Mrs. Seals said that her husband repeated this statement frequently thereafter, until she was compelled to leave him.

LIVE-STOCK MARKETS AT VARIOUS CENTERS

Los Angeles

[Furnished by Federal-State Live-Stock Market News Service, 207 Exchange Building, Union Stockyards, Los Angeles.]

Receipts and disposition of live stock at the Los Angeles Union Stockyards:

Disposition Saturday, February 24: Los Angeles packers, 67 cattle, 190 calves, 100 hogs; other killers, none; feeders, none.

Cattle: Brisker trading marked the day's transactions than on any session of last week, with a slightly firmer undertone. Eight loads of 1139-pound Nevada steers dressed the scales early, followed by seven loads of the same cattle, averaging 1123 pounds, at 7.20, three heavy stags from the lot going at 6.00. One load of 999-pound California steers stored 7.50, with a short string of 945 pounds going at 7.25. Another string, averaging 1040 pounds, cashed at 7.00. A short string of 999-pound steers from a local feed lot went at 7.00.

She-stuff of butcher grade looked a shade higher. Two loads of Colorado 1044-pound cows went over at 5.75. One load, averaging 1043 pounds, went at 5.50. A short string of 850-pound heifers scored 5.40. Some short strings of northern cows sold at 5.25. A small lot of cows from a local feed lot, averaging 1031 pounds, cashed at 5.25. A few medium kinds went at 4.50. Sausage and butcher bulls sold at 4.00 and 4.75. One large string went over at 4.85.

Calves: No fresh receipts. Quotations nominal.

Hogs: Market weak on good killer kinds. One load of good 180-pound Kansas killers went at 9.00, with a load of 167-pound Oklahomas following at the same figure. One load of Utah killers sold at 8.60, with a few bearins at 8.50. Four loads of 155-pounders went over at 8.35. A short string of 130-pounders scored 8.50. One small lot of feeder pigs went at 8.50.

Sheep and lambs: The first consignment of spring lambs arrived on this market today, two decks of 65½-pound Californias crossing the scales at 16.00 per cwt. Since these are the first milk lambs of the season and local packers were anxious to be first on the market with this grade of stuff, bidding was keen. This consignment was too small to really test the market and the price paid could not be quoted as establishing a steady market figure. Two hundred and sixty-six head of 98-pound Utah old crop lambs went over at 13.50, with 71 head of 68-pounders going at 10.00; 43 yearling wethers, averaging 94 pounds, went at 9.00, with 12 aged wethers, averaging 139 pounds, going at 5.00.

A Tremendous—Uncontrollable Gusher Running Wild and Impossible to harness—Showering Oil All Over the Landscape—

At An Estimated Rate of 20,000 Barrels per Day—The Marvel of the Petroleum World—A Sensation People Are Hurrying Miles to See—Thunders In on Signal Hill

THE Petroleum Midway Company's Ryder well is flowing a veritable river of oil down both Walnut and Cherry Streets. It is believed to be the most gigantic well ever uncovered in California, and at the hour of this writing, it has been a physical impossibility to control it. It is estimated as high as 20,000 barrels a day. It is one of the marvels of the age—a sight that can never be forgotten. Tens of thousands of people are watching it. Regardless of whether or not you have the slightest interest in oil—the sight of this monster thundering out its petroleum will give you the thrill of your life. It will probably be brought under control tomorrow, and to see it, you must go to Signal Hill today.

Wells are coming in on every side of Miracle's great leases — tremendous gushers are making Miracle's leases surer of production every day — immense storage tanks are being erected—tens of thousands of dollars are being offered for mere drilling sites—roaring gushers within 200 feet of Miracle have thundered in with such an output that they were with difficulty put under control — a veritable river of oil is flowing down Cherry Avenue. Miracle Lease No. 1 is soaked with oil. Miracle Leases No. 3 and No. 6 can be reached only by fording a small lake of oil.

What Signal Hill has done for other operators—other investors—you can expect it to do for Miracle—for Miracle investors. What the Fosters have paid in dividends with small Texas wells, you can expect them to treble and quadruple with Signal Hill gushers.

Miracle's oil goes only to Miracle unitholders. Each unit entitles its owner to one barrel out of every 4300 received by Miracle from all of its six wells on all of its six leases. Those units represent the purchase of oil—not stock. In buying them, you incur no liabilities—you pay no assessments.

NO MIRACLE UNITS ARE FOR SALE TO THE PUBLIC TODAY

Tomorrow morning, at 9:00 o'clock, the option that Foster clients have on Miracle units at $100 each expires. If any remain for sale after this option has expired, they will be offered to the general public at $100 each. The orders that have reached us by wire, telephone, mail and at our offices—and which have been held in abeyance—and the orders that reach us tomorrow—will be filled in the rotation in which we have received them. Oversubscriptions being returned. Telegraphic information that remittance is in the mail considered as orders.

"I am—ON MY WAY STARTING TO PAVE EASY STREET FOR YOU—

BUT HURRY—THERE ARE ONLY 150 UNITS LEFT

Old Hawkeye's Drill has started down toward the Big Pay Sands, so in the regular course of events we are expecting that Easy Street will soon be paved for the unit holders.

Hawkeye Units have sold very fast—there are only 150 left—just $15,000 more to be sold and then you've lost the chance forever.

These last few units would have been gobbled up long ago if we hadn't restricted the amount that any one man could put in. We prefer a large number of unit holders.

And we haven't raised the price—the units are still selling at $100 and you can now get them either on the property at the intersection of American Avenue and Frankfort Street, Signal Hill, or at this office.

It would be a shame to pave Easy Street unless you are interested there, so don't delay—get your share of this last $15,000 worth.

FIVE OFFICIALS ACCUSED IN SCHOOL SCANDAL

Lickley Hurls Sensational Charges in Statement Declaring His Innocence

Asserting that five prominent Los Angeles school men whom he has disciplined or recommended for demotion or dismissal have formed a conspiracy in the city school department to seek retaliation and revenge, Dr. E. J. Lickley, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, in a formal statement submitted to the city Board of Education last night denying assertions of the five school men concerning his professional and personal conduct, vigorously attacks the motives of his accusers and makes specific counter-charges of a serious nature.

The counter-accusations of Dr. Lickley in response to charges filed with the County Board of Education more than a week ago by John R. Doyle, principal of the Central special school, border upon the sensational. He variously accuses his attackers with drunkenness, professional incompetence, laziness, insubordination, brutality and "reprehensible conduct of a serious personal nature."

In addition to naming Mr. Doyle and citing specific asserted offenses committed by the school principal, Dr. Lickley accuses the following well-known school men of being a party to the asserted conspiracy of retaliation and revenge:

Raymond B. Dunlap, supervisor of attendance for boys, department of compulsory education, who he charges with "dishonest practices and failure to do his work," and with insubordination.

OTHERS ACCUSED

Clifford S. McKnight, principal of the Grafton special school, whom he accuses of "misbehavior" and of "serious and reprehensible conduct."

Clarence E. Cronkhite, assistant supervisor of attendance, whom he charges with "incompetency, laziness and objectionable conduct to other members of the department."

J. S. Lacy, teacher in the Central Special School, whom he charges with "misappropriation of the funds of the Schoolmasters' Club" and with drunkenness.

Mr. Doyle, who, in charges filed with County Superintendent of Schools Keppel and the County Board of Education asserts that Dr. Lickley has "played politics in the schools," attempted to "undermine" three superintendents of schools, slandered various prominent Los Angeles citizens, used binoculars to watch guests disrobe in the Alexandria and utilized the work of school employees for his private profit, is accused by Dr. Lickley of keeping "liquor of an intoxicating nature in the Central Special School," and also of brutally assaulting and beating David Rutberg, a pupil.

Dr. Lickley's statement follows:

Anticipating early action by your honorable board in the matter of the charges made by John R. Doyle, the undersigned, E. J. Lickley, is addressing this communication to you, specifically and categorically denying each and every one of the said charges. A detailed answer to each charge will be submitted to your honorable body in a few days.

SEES CONSPIRACY

In the meantime, however, the Board of Education and the public are entitled to know the motives which have prompted the persons who have brought these charges.

These charges were made by John R. Doyle, as a method of retaliation against the undersigned, who, in the discharge of his duties as Assistant Superintendent of Schools, had been obliged to report certain serious irregularities on the part of said John R. Doyle, which irregularities are hereinafter set forth. The charges made by the said John R. Doyle are also the outgrowth of concerted action on the part of several disciplined and demoted employees, namely, John R. Doyle, J. S. Lacy, Clarence E. Cronkite, Clifford S. McKnight and Raymond B. Dunlap, all of whose names appear as witnesses in the said charges presented to the County Board of Education.

John R. Doyle, at the time of filing charges with the County Board of Education against the undersigned, was facing a recommendation of dismissal fro mthe Los Angeles City School Department tion of dismissal from the Los

SERIOUS CHARGES

(1.) It is specificially charged that on repeated occasions between Feb. 1, 1922, and June 30, 1923, said John R. Doyle, in violation of law, had and kept in the Central Special School Building, of which he is principal, liquor of an intoxicating nature. The said John R. Doyle drank this intoxicating liquor in the school building, repeatedly, in the presence of other persons, and also offered this intoxicating liquor to several different people. This intoxicating-liquor charge against the said John R. Doyle is substantiated by several

WETS MAY BE FINED OR JAILED

Important Supreme Court Decision Expounded by Police Judge

A decision of the Supreme Court upholding the Wright Act was announced yesterday by Police Judge Crawford, who said the right of courts to impose alternative sentences of fine or jail had been established by the decision.

The Volstead Act, Judge Crawford said, has no specific provision for alternative sentences, and neither has the Wright Act, which follows the Federal statute in phraseology. In the case of John Frankovich, Judge Crawford said, he held that the right of giving an alternative sentence was established by the State Penal Code, and he sent Frankovich to jail in default of payment of a fine of $500.

Attorneys for the convicted man took the case to the Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus. In denying the writ the higher court upheld the police judge and declared that any person sentenced to pay a fine may be imprisoned in the event he fails to do so, even though the act does not provide specifically for such imprisonment.

Oakmont Club to Build Home Near Glendale

Plans are being prepared for a large clubhouse to be erected at the Oakmont Country Club, near Glendale, on Verdugo Road.

The building is being designed in the English domestic style of architecture. It will be of frame construction, with an exterior finished in shingles. It will contain a lounge 40x60 feet, a dining-hall 40x70 feet, a grill 35x40 feet, an adequate kitchen, a locker-room capable of accommodating 360 persons, a billiard room and a completely equipped ladies' wing containing showers, lockers, rest rooms and dressing-rooms.

The building will have a number of exterior terraces. It is planned in such fashion that the dining-hall, the lounge and the terraces can be united to form one large dancing-hall.

Construction is to be started on the clubhouse in the near future. It will cost approximately $60,000.

WIFE'S WORDS WERE SHOCKING, SAYS SUIT

A sizzling vocabulary invoked on occasion by his wife made married life anything but a happy state for Fredric W. Goulding, according to his complaint for divorce filed yesterday against Leonora Jane Goulding.

Mr. Goulding declared he is exceedingly sensitive and was brought up in a religious atmosphere. His wife insisted on quarreling, he stated, and on frequent occasions used language which shocked his mother, according to the complaint.

VOTE ON BUSSES LIKELY

Indications Are That McAdoo Project Will Be Put Up to People in Form of Repeal Petition

The fight started by the McAdoo interests for a franchise from the City Council to permit operation of busses on the streets of the city in competition with street cars will be carried to the people, it was learned yesterday.

Several men, who stated they represented Mr. McAdoo and the interests behind him in the bus project, called on the City Clerk yesterday and inquired as to the steps and procedure necessary for the circulation of a petition to repeal the competitive ordinance enacted by the council people in 1916. This ordinance permits busses in the congested districts of the city.

TO CIRCULATE PETITION

These inquiries have led to the belief that the bus men plan the circulation of a petition to call a special election for the repeal of the ordinance so that busses may operate to the downtown sec-...

The board yesterday heard from residents of Highland Park and Garvanza.

BETTER SERVICE ASKED

These declared they were not particularly in favor of busses, but demanded that street-car routes be extended to tap sections in these two districts, which they asserted were not receiving adequate service.

Residents of Rose Hill also appeared before the board and made similar requests.

It is expected that the board hearings will be completed this week. A comprehensive report on the traffic needs in the various sections of the city will then be submitted to the City Council. The report also will include recommendations as to the disposal of the various applications made by the street-car company for permission to operate busses. The applications of the independent bus men and the McAdoo petition also will be taken up in this report.

STEPHENS FUND QUIZ TO START

Asserted Coercion Subject of Investigation

Legislative Committee Will Sift Serious Charges

Inquiry Opens in City Today at Angelus Hotel

Campaign contributions to the election fund of former Gov. Stephens, asserted to have been obtained preceding the primary last August from State civil service employees through methods of coercion and intimidation on the part of prominent State jobholders will be investigated in Los Angeles when a special investigation committee of State Legislators meets here today to question present and former State officials.

The committee was created by the Assembly in January as a result of charges that members of the Stephens-McCabe machine forced civil service employees to donate portions of their salaries to the Stephens campaign fund and, in certain instances, disciplined employees who refused to contribute.

Assemblyman Henry E. Carter of Los Angeles, who introduced a resolution in the Legislature demanding an investigation of the charges and punishment of any guilty persons, is chairman of the committee, the other members of which are: Assemblyman Edgar Stow, Santa Barbara; Herbert McDowell, Fresno; C. E. Christian, Alameda, and Louis Erb, San Francisco.

THREE DAYS EXPECTED

The opening session of the committee will start in Room 336, Angelus Hotel, at 10 a.m., and it is expected that the hearings will continue for three days in this territory, to be resumed in San Francisco and Sacramento after the Legislature reconvenes next Monday.

Those subpoenaed to appear at today's hearing include:

E. J. Delorey, member of the Los Angeles Board of Public Works, and formerly connected with the State Department of Agriculture; W. F. Lemon, State Department of Transportation Service; D. W. Davis, State Department of Finance and Accounts; Helen Specks, State Department of Education; W. R. Williams, examiner, State Railroad Commission; Mrs. Adelaide Calhoun, State Immigration and Housing Department; W. E. Steinick, Raymond Shively, Mrs. Mary Lyons, State Department of Labor; W. E. Easton, custodian of buildings; E. M. Keef and James P. Britt, State Department of Agriculture.

SHORE TO BE CALLED

Summonses to appear and testify at the legislative investigation were served by C. E. Whiteside, Assembly Sergeant-of-Arms, who will serve additional subpoenaes today. Among others to be asked to tell their knowledge about the fund-raising methods of the Stephens administration leaders is Egerton Shore, member of the Railroad Commission and former member of the State Board of Control.

"The members of the committee wish it to be distinctly understood," said Mr. Carter yesterday, "that this investigation is not a 'political fishing expedition,' but is an honest and earnest effort on the part of the Legislature to insure complete protection to State employees and prevent those higher in authority from disregarding the law prohibiting them from coercing or intimidating or harassing those who may be under their supervision.

"This investigation is to learn whether or not civil service employees of the State have been asked or required to make contributions to political campaign funds and the methods employed by those who obtained such contributions. It has appeared that many employees have contributed to campaign funds preceding the August primary, in some instances voluntarily and in others in such manner as to amount to duress.

CHARGE GOLD MINE SALTED

New La Paz Company Denied Right to Sell Stock in California After Report is Made

Long before Barnum made his memorable observation about suckers, mines were being "salted" and gulls were being duped by assay reports on the salted ore. Charges that a method of "salting" samples taken from the claims of the New La Paz Gold Mining Company was used, led to suspension of the permit granted the company to sell its stock in California by Corporation Commissioner Daugherty, it was learned yesterday.

A confidential report to Commissioner Daugherty by a reputable mining engineer declares the mining claims of the company on the Colorado River are worthless, and that other reputable mining engineers have been victimized by salted samples.

CLAIMS IN ARIZONA

The claims are located in Yuma County, Ariz., near the town of La Paz, one of the early trading posts on the Colorado River when steamboats plied from La Bolsa to the lower end of Boulder Canyon. The La Paz placers have been before the investigating public for at least twenty years, according to Commissioner Daugherty.

The first permit to sell stock in California, issued in 1915, was revoked two years later when the late A. J. Condee told the Corporation Department that he believed samples taken by him had been salted. A second application here was acted upon favorably after a report made by John F. Duling, local mining engineer.

Duling obtained an option on the properties, but his financial backers refused to put up any money until a disinterested engineer had surveyed the claims. This engineer's report asserted the La Paz claims to be worthless. Mr. Duling then appeared before the Corporation Commissioner and declared his belief that the samples taken by him had been salted.

$2 TO THE YARD

His samples, taken with the assistance of employees, of the company, had run $2 to the yard. Samples of the same gravel taken by the disinterested engineer showed the gravel to have no value.

W. D. Abel, mining engineer for the corporation department, and E. K. Hartman, deputy commissioner, who conducted the series of hearings, suggested that an independent investigation be conducted before the company's permit was restored, and also recommended to Commissioner Johnson of the Arizona State Commission, that one Ramon Roble, employee of the mining company, be questioned.

FAIR TRIAL URGED FOR LOAD ZONES

Traffic Commission Sure Ordinance Will Do Much to Relieve Congestion

Leslie Williams was chairman of a special committee of the Los Angeles Traffic Commission which appeared yesterday afternoon before the Public Safety Committee and asked that a fair trial be given the ordinance now in effect under which thirty-spaces are marked off on the curbs in the downtown section of the city and designated as loading zones. At these zones, passenger vehicles may stand one minute and commercial vehicles may stand fifteen minutes for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers and consignments of goods.

The Traffic Commission committee and Councilman Mallard of the committee agreed that the present ordinance will do much toward eliminating the second-line of parking nuisance and would relieve street congestion by permitting street railway and vehicular traffic to move more rapidly than when machines stood in the second line of traffic because of lack of space at the curbs.

Chairman Conaway of the committee said that while nothing would be done for the present to amend the ordinance he personally believed that loading zones were a step in the right direction of relieving traffic congestion, but that four loading ones in each city block would be found sufficient.

The special Traffic Commission committee submitted to the Council yesterday formal communication on the traffic situation in which it was declared that no large cities can indefinitely permit unlimited and unrestricted parking on downtown streets.

THANKS "TIMES" FOR BRINGING HIM BRIDE

Young Frank Buttiglieri, who sells newspapers all day long in front of The Times Building, believes he has the best job in the world. He is convinced of this because the job led to his meeting with Miss Lillian Grossman, whom he married yesterday afternoon.

"You see," he says, "if I hadn't been on the corner all day long, I never would have met her. I looked up one day from counting some pennies—and there she was. Say—she's a knockout. No fooling. I didn't know whether I was peedling papers or fish when I saw that girl. And now she's my wife. Great, eh?"

LITTLE LOVE GOD VICTOR

Joins Veteran and His German Woman Despite National and State Marriage Laws

The little love god cut another notch on his well-scarred bow yesterday morning when the giant Dutch liner Dinteldyk docked at Los Angeles Harbor from Hamburg and London. Dan had heavy odds against him, too, for Neptune, who rules the sea, old Minos and the combined immigration and marriage laws of the nation and State seemed in league to prevent Damon D. Brodie from claiming his German bride after she had traveled 9000 miles to meet her man.

Mr. Brodie, an overseas veteran of 366 Orange avenue, Long Beach, met Fraulein Mila General in Trier, Germany, three years ago when he was serving with the Army of Occupation.

Fraulein General sailed for Los Angeles from Hamburg on the Dinteldyk January 9.

But when Mr. Brodie applied for a marriage license of the Los Angeles County Clerk he was informed that his bride must also appear. And when he asked the United States immigration authorities about taking his girl ashore to get a marriage license he was told she could not land in America before she was married.

When Capt. Hartogh Heys of the Dinteldyk heard of the situation by radio he immediately wirelessed a way out of the tangle by offering to perform the ceremony.

Then U. S. Immigration Inspector C. G. Gatley decided to use his discretionary powers and when the Dinteldyk arrived Fraulein General was placed in the custody of Mr. Brodie's parents until the marriage in Los Angeles today.

Fraulein General is a girl of striking beauty and a graduate of two German universities.

FLIRTATION LEADS MAN TO BASTILE

Woman Causes Arrest in Connection With Loan of Cash and Jewels

What seemed to be a harmless flirtation in Pershing Square developed into the loss of $800 in cash and two $500 diamond rings to Mrs. Eva Lindenmuch, she told Dep. Dist.-Atty. Thomas McClelland yesterday in asking a warrant for the arrest of H. P. Davis.

The warrant was issued and Davis was arrested by Officer Jarvis of the detective squad. Arraigned before Justice Hanby, Davis pleaded not guilty and hearing was set for March 2. Bail was fixed at $3000, which was furnished.

Mrs. Lindenmuch said that she met Davis one day while sitting on a bench in the square. He told her he was a wealthy mining man with extensive Alaskan properties, she said. Finally, he invited her to luncheon and they parted good friends.

The acquaintance ripened rapidly, Mrs. Lindenmuch said, and after a whirlwind courtship, Davis obtained her consent to marry him. She said the date for the wedding was set, but not long before the date Davis came to her in distress, saying that he was in need of money to settle tax difficulties concerning his Alaskan holdings.

Mrs. Lindenmuch declared she sold an apartment-house she owned and gave Davis the cash and the rings. Shortly afterward, she said, she became suspicious that she had been swindled, and sought help from the District Attorney's office.

Actors Burned in "Prop" Fire at Universal City

A "prop" fire at Universal City yesterday afternoon became a genuine blaze and damaged a cabin set and singed every actor participating in the filming of a serial episode.

William Desmond suffered slight burns and minor lacerations when he dragged Kathleen Calhoun from the flaming cabin with her costume ablaze. Estelle Ralston, leading woman, suffered scorched hands, arms and back. Robert F. Hill, the director, was burned about the neck and ears. "Buddy" Harris, cameraman, had his right hand severely burned. Three electricians and a property man also sustained minor injuries.

The fire was caused by flares, used to simulate flames igniting woodwork of the set. All of the injured were given emergency treatment at the studio hospital and then taken home.

NINE TAKEN AS CONFIDENCE MEN

Banker's Advice to Nebraska Farmer Outwits Gang

District Attorney Set Trap for Suspects

Old Telegraph Bunco Game Used on Victim

A round-up of asserted confidence men by the District Attorney's investigators and Burns detectives yesterday lodged nine prisoners in County Jail, two charged with attempted grand larceny and seven held on suspicion. The raiders saved J. P. Larsen, a retired farmer of Marquette, Neb., $17,000, they declare, which was more than half of the apount for which he sold his ranch recently.

The prisoners are: William Burke, alias Mann, and W. A. Johnson, asserted to be the leaders of the gang, and John Williams, C. D. Cryer, James Gilbert, J. C. Burns, A. R. Turner, C. A. Cooper and Samuel Johnson.

W. A. Johnson was arrested in Larsen's rooms at the Huntington Hotel, Eighth and Main streets, and the others at an apartment-house at 1046 South Grand avenue. This was the spot selected, according to the detectives, for the grand finale of the asserted confidence scheme, which was to have taken place yesterday afternoon.

PARAPHERNALIA SEIZED

In the raid on this apartment-house two suit cases full of asserted bunko paraphernalia were seized. This included racing charts, letterheads of fake companies and other similar material, the detectives assert.

Larsen had three weeks of entertainment at the confidence men's expense, according to the officers, during which time he saw Los Angeles in style, visited all the parks and other points of interest, saw all the motion-picture shows and theatrical entertainments and smoked plenty of good cigars. All it cost him was one round-trip ticket back to the old home town. And this was a good investment, because the trip and the advice he got from a Marquette banker put him on his guard and enabled him to dupe, instead of be duped, when he returned to this city, the detectives say.

The arrests were made by Investigators Clark Kirkman and Charles Riemer of the District Attorney's staff, and Detective W. F. J. Weiss of the Burns Detective Agency. Dist.-Atty. Woolwine cooperated with advice and furnished, personally, a fake cashier's draft for $17,000 to be used in trapping the confidence men.

Larsen arrived in town the 9th inst., having sold his ranch near Marquette for $27,000. While he was taking the air in Pershing Square a day or so later, the officials say, he met Johnson, who struck up a conversation with him and told him he was a cattleman from Crawford, Neb.

Johnson seemed to know a good deal about both farming and cattle, Larsen said, and to have a good deal of information about Nebraska affairs. They talked politics and farming implements for a couple of days, and Johnson, Larsen says, insisted on paying for everything. Then they met Burke, whom Johnson introduced as Mann.

"He's the man who knows Judge Fisher," said Johnson, according to Larsen's story. Larsen said he did not know Judge Fisher and Johnson, expressing surprise, said he was an eminent Nebraska lawyer and jurist of an adjoining county to Larsen's.

Mann, or Burke, met the pair again the next day and told Johnson he had a job as betting commissioner for a New York millionaire horseman.

"I get a wire at 10 a.m., every day telling me what horses are going to win," he said. "If I were

ACCUSED DRY AGENTS MAKE NO APPEARANCE

Four prohibition enforcement agents accused of assault upon James Fiore on Jan. 30, 1922, failed to appear in Judge Reeve's court yesterday for arraignment and their case was continued until Thursday. The four are C. H. Wheeler, J. M. Krumhansel, James Pierce and J. A. Doyle. The latter three are not now in the government service.

It is charged that the four hung Fiore over a curtain rod and beat him in an effort to get information from him. They are accused of assault by means likely to do great bodily harm, and assault under color of authority.

CHOY LING FOOS CARRY ON

Tragedy Which Cost Two Lives of Troupe at Pantages Theater Will Not Deter Other Three

Choy Den, the fire-eater, has swallowed his last flaming torch. He was reported yesterday at the County Hospital to be hovering near death from a wound in his head.

The fire-eater sent a bullet into his own brain last Saturday night in his dressing room at the Pantages Theater, after killing his cousin, Choy You Chung, the contortionist, for being tardy at rehearsals.

But the Choy Ling Foo troupe of mystic chinamen, of which Choy Den was the master, will have another fire-eater before the passing of many moons. Choy Ko, plate-spinner, swears it shall be so.

Choy Ko is the brother of Choy Den, the dying-fire-eater. He is the youngest of the troupe, little more than a student. He has many difficult steps to climb before he can reach the height of perfection in oriental mysticism which his brother, Choy Den, held. Plate-spinning is the first step, and Choy Ko is only the plate-spinner of the Choy Ling Foo troupe.

INHERITS TALENTS

To the younger brother descends the talents of the older brother. It is the hereditary rule of the Chinese mystics. So Choy Ko, the younger brother of Choy Den, the dying fire-eater, shall eat fire. And the Choy Ling Foo troupe must carry on.

Formerly there were five. Now, there are but three—Choy Ko, the plate-spinner; Yet Chung, the knife juggler, and Men Gon, the one who hangs by his hair.

The plate-spinner and the knife juggler and the one who hangs by his hair sat in council over the problem at the Yorkshire Hotel yesterday afternoon. They agreed to take up the burdens of the dead contortionist and the dying fire-eater, as well as to continue with their own tricks of mysticism.

But Choy You Chung, the dead contortionist, leaves no heir who can twist his body into hideous shapes. His body, once lithe and sinuous, reposes in a casket at the Button funeral parlors. His home was in the Chinese quarters of New York, where his family resides. The family has been informed that Choy You Chung is dead, but they do not believe. The Chinese place no faith in modern things such as telegraph wires.

DEMAND PROOF

Choy You Chung's people demand to see his body before they will believe he is dead, so the contortionist's body will be shipped to New York today to prove to the Chung family that he is dead.

An emissary will accompany the body to New York to seek for an heir who can twist into hideous shapes like Choy You Chung once did. If an heir is found he will be conscripted into the Choy Ling Foo troupe. If he cannot be found, then the knife juggler or the one who hangs by his hair will take up the duties of the contortionist. But they are not so young as Choy You Chung was and their bodies are not so sinuous. Choy Ko cannot take the place of the slain contortionist, for Choy Ko must eat fire.

FOUR BANDIT SUSPECTS HELD

Man's Bluff Foils Robbery at Long Beach

Much Valuable Plunder Found in Rooms

Police Believe Break-up of Crime Wave Near

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Feb. 26.—The long series of hold-ups, robberies and automobile thefts which have kept the city in a ferment for several months will be cleared up soon, police believe, as a result of the arrest early this morning of four asserted members of a daring gang of bandits and the recovery of a great quantity of plunder in the suspects' rooms.

The four men held are James and Joseph E. Fite, Howard Davis and J. Thurman. They were arrested at 3 a.m. today by Detective-Sergeants Woodruff, Costigan, Harris and Pridley after an asserted unsuccessful attempt to hold up and rob W. E. Dotwiller in front of his home at 3289 Lowena Drive.

Dotwiller was accosted by two men as he drove into the yard of his home. The bandits covered him with their revolvers and commanded him to hold up his hands. The victim, however, proved too much for the bandits. He retreated a few paces and stuck his hands into his pockets. Then, bluffing, he declared he would shoot if the bandits made a motion toward him. Apparently frightened by this unexpected development, the two bandits fled and Dotwiller called the police.

The three detectives responded and scoured the neighborhood. They found Thurman and James Fite in a car at the intersection of Seventh street and Temple avenue and placed them under arrest. After several hours' grilling, the two suspects directed the detectives to their room at 1898 Vine street. There the detectives found Joseph Fite and Davis and arrested them.

A search of the rooms disclosed several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry, furs, automobile accessories and other valuables, which, the police assert, were stolen. Police also say that Dotwiller has identified James Fite as one of the two men who attempted to rob him.

REPORTS HOUSE ROBBED

A. M. Paul of 311 South Kenmore avenue reported to police yesterday that his home had been entered by burglars during the family's absence and approximately $5000 in jewelry, furs and other valuables taken.

CITY WINS VERDICT IN DAMAGE ACTION

The City of Los Angeles was awarded $1600 damages by Judge Dehy in Superior Court yesterday in the suit against the Los Angeles Pacific Navigation Company and the San Pedro Transportation Company. The judgment was returned solely against the Los Angeles Pacific Navigation Company.

The city sued for damage resulting to the municipal dock at Los Angeles Harbor and to the municipally owned motorboat Thais, as a result of a collision between the steamer Haxson of the Navigation Company and the ferryboat T. S., of the San Pedro Transportation Company.

Five School Men Accused in Scandal

Denial Tells of Plot to Get Even for Discipline

Sensational Statement Read to Board

sworn affidavits now on file, together with the testimony of several other disinterested witnesses.

(2.) It is further charged that on the tenth day of October, 1922, the said John R. Doyle brutally assaulted David Rutberg, a pupil in the Central Special School by striking the pupil with his fist, knocking him to the floor and striking the said pupil repeatedly while the pupil was lying on the floor.

(3.) The said John R. Doyle has been repeatedly disciplined for his failure to properly perform his work. He also has been demoted twice for inefficiency and nonperformance of his duty, as follows, to wit:

DEMOTIONS CITED

(1.) John R. Doyle was demoted from the position of assistant director of compulsory education and child welfare in August, 1921.

(2.) He was dropped from the principalship of the Fourteenth-street Evening School September, 1922.

Several other charges are pending against the said John R. Doyle.

Because of these charges, demotions and reproofs, the undersigned has incurred the ill will and enmity of said John R. Doyle. The said John R. Doyle has repeatedly boasted that he would "get even" with the undersigned, even if it was necessary for him to "frame" charges against him.

J. S. Lacy, one of the witnesses cited, and who has been active in framing and giving publicity to the charges made against the undersigned, was formerly principal of the McKinley Home School, a school under the supervision of the undersigned. The said J. S. Lacy was obliged to resign said principalship on recommendation of the undersigned for the following reasons:

(1.) Drunkenness. The said J. S. Lacy came to the school of which he was principal in such a state of intoxication that he was unable to perform his duties.

HITS LACY

(2.) Misappropriation of funds of the Schoolmasters' Club, of which said J. S. Lacy was financial secretary in 1911. The father of this same J. S. Lacy is now a member of the County Board of Education and can hardly be an unbiased judge in a matter so seriously involving his own son.

Clarence E. Cronkhite, another witness named by said John R. Doyle in his charges, has a deep and abiding enmity against the undersigned because the undersigned has been obliged to demote and discipline the said Clarence E. Cronkhite repeatedly as follows, to-wit:

(1.) The said Clarence E. Cronkite was demoted from the position of supervisor in 1920 because of incompetency, laziness and objectionable conduct to other members of the department.

(2.) The undersigned was obliged as a result of repeated complaints to discipline the said Clarence E. Cronkite for reprehensible conduct of a serious personal nature.

Said Clarence E. Cronkite was also dropped as a teacher from the Polytechnic High School in 1912 because of unfitness.

There are other charges against Clarence E. Cronkite.

DISCIPLINE TOLD

Clifford S. McKnight, named as a witness by John R. Doyle in the charges against the undersigned, has been disciplined, reproved and demoted by the undersigned as follows, to-wit:

(1.) The said Clifford S. McKnight was formerly principal of the Annandale Special School, but was demoted from the position of principal because of nonperformance of duty.

(2.) The said Clifford S. McKnight was obliged to leave the principalship of the Fourteenth-street evening school because of serious and reprehensible misconduct.

(3.) The undersigned has repeatedly reprimanded the said Clifford S. McKnight for misbehavior and personal misconduct.

Raymond B. Dunlap, mentioned as a witness in the charges of John R. Doyle, has for some time past been facing a recommendation of dismissal from the school department for dishonest practices and failure to do his work. The undersigned has been obliged in the performance of his duty to repeatedly reprove the said Raymond B. Dunlap for the following offenses, to-wit:

(1.) The said Raymond Dunlap conducts a personal-insurance business for gain and maintains an office in the Stock Exchange Building under the name of Raymond B. Dunlap & Son. The name appears in the current telephone book. The son is a boy of high-school age.

DUNLAP HELD DEFIANT

(2.) The same Raymond B. Dunlap transacts his insurance and oil business not only on school time but over school telephones and in the Board of Education offices.

(3.) The said Raymond B. Dunlap boasts that he makes more money from his business than from his salary.

4. The said Raymond B. Dunlap is guilty of the unfair and unprofessional practice of urging employees under his supervision, who are dependent upon his good will for promotion and success in their work, to buy insurance, oil stocks, automobiles, real estate, etc., in order that the said Raymond B. Dunlap may make a personal profit at their expense.

5. The said Raymond V. Dunlap openly defies any effort on the part of the undersigned to prescribe, regulate or supervise his hours and duties. The said Raymond B. Dunlap defiantly boasts that he will do exactly as he pleases, and that no one can regulate or supervise his work. He comes when he pleases, goes when he pleases, works when he pleases and is so busy with his personal interests that he is of little value to the school department, although the Board of Education pays him a substantial salary for full time service.

Other charges have been made against the said Raymond B. Dunlap.

These demoted and disciplined employees who have failed because of their own inefficiency are now banded together seeking personal revenge by attempting to discredit the undersigned by preferring charges which are wholly untrue and with out any basis in fact.

E. J. LICKLEY.

The Board of Education last night received Dr. Lickley's communication and referred it to the committee as a whole, which means that it will be considered by the board in executive session.

DOYLE MAKES DENIAL

When communicated with last night, Mr. Doyle made a sweeping denial of all Dr. Lickley's charges, stating the assistant superintendent of schools was wholly aware of the falsity of his accusations.

"I have known Dr. Lickley for many years," Mr. Doyle said, "and have been associated with him professionally, but it was not until the last two years that I learned of his unfitness to hold any office in the school department of any city, in fact, any public office whatever.

"Of one thing I am sure—Dr. Lickley would not have made the charges he did had he not been first accused. He has never disciplined anyone, for first he will have to learn to discipline himself. And I might conclude with the significant fact that these men he has accused have been associated with him for years and they are still in the school department, and still under Dr. Lickley."

Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Cronkite also made complete denials of all Dr. Lickley's statements, but announced they did not wish to discuss the matter for publication at present. Mr. McKnight and Mr. Lacy could not be reached last night.

CHARITIES CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESS

Catholic Aid Fund Drive Records Several Districts as Nearly Over Top

With approximately 3500 volunteer workers actively in the field, the Catholic charities campaign for $75,000 has recorded splendid progress throughout the entire city and diocese.

Each parish of the diocese has been assigned a quota and today's report at the campaign headquarters is expected to place several of these parishes over the top.

In the downtown district the garnering of funds is being carried on by a committee of business men under the direction of Joseph O'Connor, while Gerald Delamer heads a flying squadron of prominent men who are meeting special emergency phases of the campaign.

Members of the flying squadron include John Dockweiler, M. J. Donohue, J. Oberele, Dr. T. M. Savage, William M. Curran, J. S. Moroney, Dr. H. C. Werts, William J. Phee, William H. Ternath, Joseph Brady, Walter Paul, Thomas Duggan, John P. Reidy, Henry Moss, Leo Ward and Walter Clune.

Of the big fund to be raised during this annual campaign, conducted under the direction of the Bureau of Catholic Charities, a large proportion is being used in caring for children. Last year's total budget of $134,000 provided an outlay of more than $71,000 for the board of children in the several institutions and homes maintained under the direction of the bureau.

Through the child-welfare department of the bureau more than 400 children were placed in homes, this number representing an increase of nearly 100 per cent over the year preceding.

only allowed to place bets in my own name I could clean up a lot of money for myself, but I don't dare take a chance."

Johnson said, according to Larsen, he would be glad to place any bets his friend wanted to make. Mann, or Burke, then gave Johnson a $50 bill and the name of a horse. Johnson disappeared and came back presently with $100 which he handed to Mann, Larsen said.

"If you fellows will let me use your names we can make a killing," Mann remarked, according to the farmer. "I'll put up $2100."

Johnson and Larsen agreed to this proposal, Larsen said, and the next day Mann informed them they had won $82,000. He sent Johnson to collect the money and Johnson returned with a third man. This man confirmed the amount of the win, but said he must first be convinced the trio could have paid had they lost.

Johnson, according to Larsen, said he could raise about $20,000, and the stranger agreed, at last, to give them thirty days in which to make good. The next day Mann showed a telegram which said $5000 was on its way from New York City. Then Johnson and Mann told Larsen, he says, it was up to him to furnish $17,000. They hurried Larsen to a train and told him to bring back a draft on Omaha for the amount.

BANKER OBDURATE

But out in Marquette, when Larsen had explained the matter to his banker, the banker flatly refused to give him a draft, and told him to have nothing more to do with the scheme. Larsen said he was only half-convinced the plan was a fraud, and on the train on the way back talked it over with a train acquaintance. This man notified the Burns agency and a Burns agent found Larsen at his hotel and took him to the District Attorney's office.

In Larsen's room at the hotel yesterday, with the three detectives in an adjoining room, Larsen handed Johnson the fake draft prepared by the District Attorney, according to the detectives' statement. Johnson handed it back and said he would go to a safe-deposit box and get his own money, and would meet Larsen in a few minutes.

The detectives then came in and placed Johnson under arrest, following which they went to the apartment-house and arrested the others.

Cooper, who described himself as a newspaper man from Nebraska, declared he had arrived in Los Angeles only yesterday morning, and had merely happened to be in the apartment at the time the officers came. The District Attorney's office announced, following the arrests, that it would be glad to hear from anyone who had lost money in confidence schemes lately. Any confidence victim will be given an opportunity, it was said, to look over the men under arrest to see whether they can be identified.

HUSBAND WINS DECREE

Wife Sues, But Her Spouse Convinces Court

After Mrs. Bessie Doaslaugh had filed suit for divorce against Virgil Doaslaugh, charging cruelty, the latter filed a cross-complaint, naming Edwin Fink as co-respondent, and yesterday, in Superior Court, Judge McLucas awarded the husband the decree.

He introduced letters and evidence tending to show that his wife had left him to go away with Fink, and after leaving Fink, had failed to return to him. Judge McLucas awarded the custody of the couple's two children to Mrs. Doaslaugh's mother.

RADIO MONITOR CONCERT CRITIC

Florence Middaugh Arranges Excellent Program

BY BEN A. MARKSON

[illegible] radio monitor has [illegible] had an opportunity to be heard on the subject of a concert. Imitating that well-known [illegible] had received too much credit in his recent descriptions. So on [illegible] you have the air.)

Possibly the jealous radio fan [illegible] with whom I work will remark, "There goes the loud speaker blowing his own horn again," but such shafts fail to injure my standing.

The microphone's ego was so apparent when it covered a program last one would think it was the radio works. On the contrary, I am the party who judges the standard of music, I decide on the quality of voices. I amplify, I diminish, perfect at will, solely on my own judgment. In appearance I'm only a funnel, an ebony fiber of secret composition, metallic in appearance—but, in fairness to myself, let me say that I am a true confidante overflowing with golden thread.

SOME PROGRAM!

Last night Florence Middaugh, soprano, arranged the program, Raymond McFesters, pianist, was the accompanist. No flaw in voice or chord escapes me. I repeat everything with the fidelity of a parrot, but I also detect with a fidelity no parrot ever had. Which means, in short, that the program was remarkably free of defects.

Florence Middaugh sang "If Winter Comes," by Tennent. A song is a volume. A volume is a book. Her voice had wonderful tones, and so I can say with truth that she told a long, wonderful story in few words with exquisite phrasing and sustained interest of theme.

She sang "Charity," by Hageman, with a bounty, a generosity of sweetness, and followed with that lilting, birdlike number, "Caprice," by Valverde. "Lullaby," by Norris, had a soothing, magical charm, and "The Old Road," by Scott, was a colored print, a picture, winding pathway sheltered by mossy trees, and ending in the glow of a sunset over the hills.

REAL ACCOMPANIMENT

To all these numbers Raymond McFesters lent that embellishing touch of harmony, bold strokes in the interervals, and blending tints through the scores. His solo numbers were of musical opulence. "To Youth," by Schutt, was a request, a harmonic dedication to [illegible] time; and "Rhapsody C Minor," by Dohnanyi, was poured out like as one would up-end a [illegible], costly urn of sound philter. I had suffered from stomach trouble for two years and was in a terrible run-down condition. My appetite went back on me and I did eat a little something I would suffer pain and misery afterwards. My nerves were all out of order. I would lie awake tossing and tumbling until almost day, and I would get up weak and tired all the time. I had no energy to do anything and in fact felt any way but right.

Mary Ia. Tyner, 'cellist, had a fitting instrument for a giant trumpet, like myself. She can bring the distant roll of thunder creeping from the strings, but stranger yet, one wonders at the manner in which she achieves the faint stirring of woodland boughs, the low throaty call of resting birds, and the singing strains of a southland wind. "Musette" and "A Dream" were two of her splendid offerings.

The evening program brought us Aileen Rohrer, soprano, artist pupil of Lillian Backstrand, who was accompanied by Isabel Ginter. Miss Rohrer puts such feeling into her words, I didn't see her but the microphone told me that she clasps her hands, raises her eyes and bends softly forward when she sings. "The Little Chies of Yesterday," "My Shadow," "The Little Pink Rose," and "Sweet Miss Mary," were among her numbers. A sweet, plaintive voice, and given the right tone setting by Isabel Ginter's capable accompaniment.

Florence Yarrow, reader, told the lads and lassies and me about "Prince Gloom," her own story. A strange story, absorbing to the youngsters, and told in exactly the way to hold one's interest.

Lillie Reinholt, the pianist, gave us "The Sparks," by Moskowski, scattering tiny red embers of music into the velvety dusk. "Fantasie Impromptu," by Chopin, was ably rendered, subtle, careful expression being given to the passages.

Mrs. Ray Woodward, contralto, and her accompanist, May Edwards, came in from Whittier to give the noon program. The titles of Mrs. Woodward's selections show a lovely picture. Listen: "Mother, My Dear." In an Indian Village," "By Weeping Waters," "Dawn," "Rain." The interpretation of the selections was an accomplishment. "I an Indian Village," and "By Weepink Waters," are by Lieuranee. An Indian village in Minnesota, a massacre, the waters red with blood, moaning and swirling, while the squaws weep and plant red roses on the brink. The legend was revived in the singer's voice.

MOTHER OF GIRLDOM TALKS TO RADIOLAND

Mrs. Frances Neth, known in the United States and Canada as "The Mother of Giridom," talked to Radioland during the Sunday-night program on the Girls' Corner Club, an organization for business girls.

Mrs. Neth told of how she founded the original club with only a few young women, and of its growth to a point where there are now seven large organizations. The Los Angeles Girls' Corner Club has a membership of more than 1500 business girls, she said.

With Mrs. Neth was her daughter Frances, who sang "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," by Monroe, as part of the program arranged by Mrs. Guy Bush. Miss Neth nas a mezzo-soprano voice, clear and effective.

TOO MANY OF THEM

President Harding is kindly and good natured, but he can hardly be expected to serve as a guardian angel for all lame ducks.

THE HIGH SEAS

Some politicians think that as long as they are able to keep the ship of state afloat Uncle Sam doesn't need any merchant marine.

THE BIG BUGS

There's a beetle in Venezuela that is as long as the human hand and weighs eight ounces. Maybe they could be trained to take the place of Fords.

BARBAROUS

Speaking of dumbbells, a customer in a barber shop the other day wanted to know what the Poles and Lithuanians were fighting about and not a solitary knight of the razor could tell him. Are we losing all our interest in world affairs?

IDENTIFICATION

When the Coroner comes to hold his inquest it would be quite a shock if it should turn out that the remains are not those of Tutenkhamun at all. It now appears that Baktuth was reported missing at about the same time.

THE YOUNG IDEA

A San Francisco youth of 11 summers touched the family exchequer for $6 and eloped with a 10-year-old girl. They were on their way to Reno to get married when they were interrupted by the law. The ruling passion seems to be as vivid in youth as it is persistent in senility.

THE HOME BUILDERS

The own-your-own-home idea has finally found lodgment in Uncle Sam himself. He can borrow money and build cheaper than anybody else and yet he pays more rent than anybody in America. The government should have title to its own postoffices, courts and ambassadorial quarters as far as possible.

A POSTLE OF HARMONY

Paderewski has been adorned with the degree of doctor of laws by the University of Southern California—the highest honor which the institution can confer. Paderewski is a man of note—in fact, one of many notes. He has always sought to create harmony. When his homeland was rent with strife his heart and hands were seeking to create concordance and symmetry. His magic touch invites accord. Here in California we cherish him as a long-time neighbor. He had found a home with us and was indulging his love for the pastoral.

REMEMBER OLD FRIENDS

Now that horses on the highway are becoming scarce we are losing some of our humane impulse. There used to be corner fountains at which horses and dogs might refresh themselves. But these we have no more. There are thousands of places at which Lizzie may be stimulated with gas, water or air, but no pool or fount for the comfort of our four-legged friends. If dogs could always find water to drink rabies would be unknown and there would be no call for our annual scare. While man is filling the veins of his car with gasoline let him also be reminded that the birds and beasts crave liquid refreshment. [C.]

SLANGUAGE

Tom Skeyhill, Australian lecturer, has been having his troubles with the American vernacular. He has found out that a language as it is written and a language as it is spoken are as different as chalk from cheese.

Tom had been giving a group of his San Francisco friends a long talk on the strange things to be found in the Antipodes; on the relation of something especially unusual a bright girl broke in with an enthusiastic, "You don't say so!" Tom explained later that, as he had just been doing that very thing, he was decidedly peeved at the remark.

But the worst was yet to come. On being introduced to a fair girl graduate at Berkeley she asked him what he was going to do in America. On his replying that he had come here to write and to lecture, she exclaimed, "Well, what do you know about that?" and, taking her too literally, Tom grew hot under the collar.

And, of course, both girls meant to be complimentary.

Slang is supposed to have its hold on the language because it is apt and emphatic and picturesque and forceful. In the two instances just given it was merely contradictory and confusing.

Can it be that modern slang is losing its virility? Does this mean that good slang will soon be a thing of the past? No one who loves his native tongue, not as it is written by Emerson or Howell, but as it is spoken by the up-to-date college freshman, will contemplate a weakening of slang with any other than feelings of horror.

Because the American language of the future will be either made or marred by the nature of the slang that colors general conversation today. As we speak today we shall write tomorrow and the next day it will be too classical for the average intelligence. Scholars today are glorifying the slang of the Elizabethans.

SENATE OBSTRUCTIONISTS

In a city of Holland stands an imposing edifice built by American capital and dedicated to international peace and justice. But it is a building from which the representatives of the American government alone are barred.

It is now the seat of the International Court of Justice. Elihu Root, a great American, helped to constitute that court. An American citizen, John Bassett Moore, is one of the judges. The Hague tribunal is the realization of an American ideal; but America, after having put its hand to the plow, weakened at the supreme moment and looked back.

President Harding and Secretary Hughes have formed a commendable resolve to have our government take the place in this court for which it is so plainly predestined. The President has sent to the Senate a message asking for its consent and co-operation; and, lo, the bloc that defeated protection for the American merchant marine by "talking it to death" is organizing a similar filibuster to keep our government from becoming a member of the International Court.

Never, perhaps, has the American Senate fallen so low. Never has partisan interest and individual ambition been placed so continuously before the national interest. The group of former "irreconcilables" again have their eyes on the Presidency. They do not hope to make themselves greater by their continued opposition, but they hope to make Harding less. Incapable of exalted views and broad visions, they view every proposal for international co-operation through petty partisan glasses. The important question to each of them is, "What can I get out of it"?

Why should the government of the United States refuse to accept membership in the International Court of Justice? There can be but one answer: because it would deprive demagogues in this country of a fertile means for winning temporary notoriety by appealing to popular prejudices and passions. Demagogues thrive through fishing in muddy waters. Aught that tends to clear the international stream threatens to deprive them of a lucrative means of livelihood.

Why should our government hold up the hands of such a court by accepting membership and taking part in its deliberations? Any schoolboy who has studied the history of the founding and development of the United States can answer that question. Because it is a development of the basic idea on which our government is founded: equal justice for all, without reference to race, color or previous condition of servitude.

For more than twenty years our government had taken a conspicuous part in the movement for the establishment of an international court of arbitration. Roosevelt hoped to see such a tribunal created during his term of office. By whom was it then blocked? Germany. We are being placed, against the will of the great majority of our people, in the position which Germany occupied for twenty years prior to 1914.

In his message the President admirably says:

> Deliberate public opinion today is overwhelmingly in favor of our full participation and the attending obligations for maintenance and the furtherance of its prestige.

While it is possible that the present Senate might pass a resolution supporting the idea, it is hardly probable. For the Senate will adjourn in a week, and the spirit that killed for the time being the ship subsidy bill is rampant. There are a few petty intellects that crave the temporary notoriety of being able to talk a commendable measure to death.

WHAT COMMUNISM BREEDS

Despite the efforts of the soviet government to restore order and re-establish civilization in Russia, the menace of Bolshevism continues to increase. The Communists loosed forces when they destroyed the government and the disorganized society that they have not been able to bring again under control.

Europe is not menaced by the saber of the Cossack and the bayonet of the Slav, but by the malignant diseases which broke from their leash when law and order ceased to exist. The Communists were not aware of all that government means to civilization. They did not know the menace to civilized communities of great maladies. They were ignorant of the necessity of organization to protect and preserve the public health.

Life in civilized communities is much more intricate than they knew. Anarchy carries its own punishment. There is a mutual dependence in community life that they never suspected. Man owes his domination over other forms of animal life to his power for organization. Once that power is abandoned the brute forces of nature unite to challenge his supremacy.

Dr. Eversole has returned to Los Angeles after spending several years in Red Cross work in Eastern Europe and in Siberia, bringing with him a serious warning that the rest of the world must be prepared to combat not only the armed forces of the Communists, but the scourge of malignant disease that has deprived Russia of one-fourth its former population.

He was one of the most intrepid Red Cross workers overseas. Fearlessly he visited the plague spots of Russia, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and the Danube states. That he should himself have escaped contagion is little short of the miraculous. Interfering nowhere in politics, but interesting himself wholly in caring for the physically afflicted, he was welcome in every country. In Czecho-Slovakia, where he was head of the national Red Cross for two years, his name was associated with that of Hoover.

Dr. Eversole related, in an interview given to The Times last week, many startling facts concerning the prevalence of disease in famine-stricken and plague-stricken Russia. More millions have died of preventable diseases in that country alone since 1918 than suffered injury in all the armies engaged in the World War. He pointed out that, in case Russian troops should enter Central Europe, they would carry numerous plagues with them.

Most distressing of all the things he said, perhaps, was the assertion that the Russians are not able to make headway against plague and famine. Typhus, tuberculosis and malaria are on the increase. The health service, destroyed by the Bolsheviki, has not been restored. There are few physicians—for the physicians were numbered among the intelligentzia that the Russians destroyed—and a terrible shortage of medical supplies. The progressive depopulation of the country is going steadily forward.

While this process lessens the menace of Bolshevist arms—forming a formidable military force under such conditions is not possible—it is a severe arraignment both of the Bolshevist system and of the policy of the other nations in the world in permitting such self-destruction. Before the revolution the Russian death rate was low compared with that of other nations; the Slavs were a healthy people. During the last four years it has been five times that of the United States and, in some sections, more than 100 times as great as our own.

Here we have nature's answer to the proponents of anarchy and Communism. It is necessary to the preservation of life itself that the individual shall suffer the restraints that society imposes. Time is a relentless critic. It has proved that, whatever the suffering of the poor under the so-called capitalist systems, it is infinitely superior to their condition under Communism.

ENGLAND'S STAKE

Replying recently to an interpellation in the House of Commons, Bonar Law presented a side of the Mesopotamian controversy that has not before been exposed to American view. It has been often repeated that the British are fighting for oil in Arak, that, but for the discovery of petroleum, the British occupation would have ended two years ago. Bonar Law is pained at this interpretation, because it is a reflection on the sagacity of the English business man.

The total wealth of the Mosul oil fields has been estimated at $1,000,000,000. The cost of British occupation of Mesopotamia under the League of Nations mandate is already in excess of $800,000,000. As a business venture it would be the height of folly to expend on holding a territory more than the territory itself is worth.

During recent years it has become a habit for one people to accuse another of ulterior motives, of material interest, whenever an international question rises. Each arrogates to itself all the virtue in the world. We are not free from this fault ourselves. We insist that our own government is always right, that it considers only moral interests in its relations with other nations; but that the governments of the rest of the world consider only material interest. The average citizen cannot conceive that any other government but our own can be actuated by a generous impulse, that it could be capable of making a personal sacrifice for the benefit of the world at large.

Personal interest is as essential to a government as an individual. Pure altruism, as Herbert Spencer pointed out, leads to suicide. But a wholly selfish personal interest often defeats its own end. Great Britain has a personal interest in the restoration of a stable peace in Europe and the Near East. For the English are a nation of traders. They are a great industrial and commercial nation. England cannot prosper, can hardly live, if external wars and internal disturbances stop production in the countries upon which she depends for raw materials and to those upon which she depends to purchase her manufactured goods.

England expends more than any other nation to promote production in the rest of the world. She must protect her markets. That is why her stake in the Far East is vastly greater than the Mosul oil field, which, as The Times has already noted, produces less than half as much as the oil fields in Los Angeles county alone.

MOONSHINE ON PARNASSUS

Comment has been made upon the apparent reversion of Parnassus. It has been given back to the goats. The trysting place of the Muses is but pasturage for the flocks of Grecian shepherds. The voice of the Delphian oracle is lost amid the raucous bleating of the young goats. Possibly the moonshiners will return. According to the ancient myth the goats that once fed on the brow of Parnassus would be affected by a strange intoxication when they inhaled certain vapors or odors that arose from a deep cleft in the side of the mountain. Under the influence of these pungent perfumes they would cavort like kids. A goatherd who once inhaled these sensuous vapors was affected like unto his goats. He babbled strangely and spoke in words and terms which his fellow-shepherds could not understand. He was thought to be under some godlike inspiration and was hailed as a prophet. Thus the Delphian oracle was created. The temple to Apollo was reared and successive priestesses or pythias bathed their senses in these intoxicating vapors and then gave to puzzled visitors the words that were supposed to come from Apollo. For a long time the problems of the world were thus solved by the Delphian oracle. What probably happened was that one of the girls got a sniff of the mash from the original home brewery until she got garrulous but slightly incoherent. She could not be understood readily and was therefore presumed to be inspired. It seems simple enough now.

Our century has grown weary of the heroic drama, not because we lack the culture of our fathers, but because the great poets are dead. The verses of the modern dramatists are only so many courtesans.

RIPPLING RHYMES

MY NEIGHBOR

I do not know my neighbor's creed nor how he likes to vote; I know that he's a friend, indeed, when I have lost my goat. When I am stricken in my shack with spasms dire and fell he puts a poultice on my back and soothes me when I yell. He herds the hens and milks the cow and gives the pig its swill and hands me, as he fans my brow, the powder and the pill. Men do not know what he believes, they know not where he stands; and this condition rather peeves the chew-and-argue bands. He is a strangely silent man, who sticks around his shack, and people do not like this plan—they say all tongues should clack. He never will get out and root as statesmen wise direct, he doesn't seem to care a hoot what has-been we elect. We've heard him say it makes no odds who triumphs at the polls, that all the candidates are frauds, out to increase their rolls. And people roast him pro and con and also to and fro, and gossips gather on my lawn and ask me, "Ain't it so?" And I reply, "My neighbor, Jinks, does me a kindly turn; he brings me large and cooling drinks when I with fever burn; and when my corns are burning red with fierce internal heat he deftly stands me on my head and poultices my feet. I know not what my neighbor thinks nor what his faith may be, but I am always strong for Jinks, who is so good to me."

King George and Premier Bonar Law now have the English Parliament on their hands and it promises to keep both busy.

A man who owned a hotel with a small brewery attached in Goettingen, Hanover, was offered 190,000 marks for the property. That is equal to $1.85 in American money. Here is a concrete example of what a debased currency means to Germany or elsewhere.

Boston, the birthplace of Edgar Allan Poe, has dedicated to his memory a square in that city at Broadway and Carver streets. It is an honor long delayed. The name of the truant son of genius is written so high upon the tablet of American letters that it is beyond the slurs of the churlish. In honoring the author of "The Raven" Boston has honored itself.

The trouble about the drug habit is that it does its damage almost before the victim knows he is in danger. At first there is no noticeable outward manifestation of mental and nervous collapse. The victim is conscious that the thing he has taken has braced him. There is none of the pallor, the twitching mouth, the haunting eyes, the shuffling step that the normal man has come to associate with the drug habit. But all these come later. The habit has him.

THIS IS THE DAY

Congress adopted the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution in the year 1869. Vote in House—145 to 44; in Senate—39 to 13. The amendment was afterward ratified by thirty States. It was rejected by California, Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey and Oregon. Tennessee did not act upon it. The amendment read as follows:

> The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

EASY-CHAIR SCIENCE

III. THE NATURE OF THE ATOM

All that science knows about the nature of the atom has been discovered by men and women of the present generation. It is new knowledge, revolutionary in its possibilities, which may mean more to mankind than the benefits which came from the discovery of the uses of fire. The story reads like a romance, wherein several actors perform important parts.

In 1869 Prof. William Crookes, while passing an electric current through a vacuum tube, noticed a green phosphoresence on the walls of the tube. The phosphorescence was caused by rays of a kind he had never seen before; they emanated from the negative pole of the current called the "cathode."

Twenty-four years later William Roentgen, repeating Crookes's experiment, discovered that the strange rays resulted from the impact of the electric current upon particles of air which remained in the nearly-vacuum tube. He did not know much about the nature of electricity. What he did know was that, despite his efforts to withdraw all the air from the tube, about one-twenty-millionth of the air remained and that the current caused the remaining air molecules to glow with a strange flourescence. Like sunlight, the new light passed through the walls of the glass tube; unlike sunlight, it also passed through an opaque screen and retained sufficient power to act upon a photographic plate. It was found that the new light would shine through all sorts of substances, therefore considered opaque, and render them translucent. Within a short time the world learned with astonishment that, by means of these rays, the skeleton of a man could be photographed through the flesh and that any foreign substance, such as a bullet, could be located in the body. Knowing no name by which these mysterious rays could be designated, Roentgen named them X-rays.

Quite as startling was the discovery made, by Henri Becquerel, the following year, 1896. As in the case of Roentgen, this discovery came by chance. Becquerel suspected that the phosphorescence, which comes from certain natural substances when exposed to sunlight, might be identical with the X-rays. Procuring a sample of uranium salt, which was known to glow in sunlight, he put it away to wait for the sun; next morning he was surprised to find that, during the night, rays had streamed through cloth in which he had wrapped the sample sufficiently to produce an impression on a photographic plate. From this substance, then, the same kind of rays were emanating spontaneously as Roentgen had produced artificially by means of an electric current in a vacuum tube.

As a result of Becquerel's discovery Mme. Curie was led to surmise that uranium contained some substance, as yet unknown, which yielded these emanations of still greater power. As a whole, uranium ore gave out a feeble glow, whereas certain of its points glowed brightly. The search for a new element, whose properties were unknown and whose existence only suspected, required exceeding patience as well as penetrating insight into the chemistry and physics of matter. Tons of pitchblende tailings, somewhat rich in uranium, were obtained and, as the culmination of long series of analyses, there were but two new elements to be discovered: Polonium, named by Mme. Curie after her native land, and another element which, though a million times more radioactive than uranium, received the name of radium.

The discovery of radium rendered all the older conceptions of the atom obsolete; for, since these rays were found spontaneously throwing out emanations, they could no longer be regarded as solid particles nor as the indestructible building stones out of which the universe was supposed to have been created. Many theories as to the nature of atoms, including all of them that had weight, were found to be more or less radioactive, which would indicate that they were spontaneously breaking down, and it was soon discovered that radioactivity could be produced artificially by bombarding lighter atoms. In other words, the atoms of several chemical elements themselves disrupting and transmuting into others can be made to disrupt, the process of disrupting, radium gives off three kind of rays: the alpha rays, being positively charged atoms of helium; the beta rays, or the negatively charged electrons, and the gamma rays. In the final analysis, then, all atoms are seen to be composed of electrical units.

The nature of the atom will be discussed in the next article.

A MARBLE OPHELIA

BY S. FRED HOGUE

[Written after seeing a marble statue of Shakespeare's virgin of the North in the studio of the Swedish-American sculptor, David Edstrom.]

Ophelia! Drooping white lily; phantom of the snows. How my heart went out to you as I saw you standing there on a tiny pedestal in a dark forest of bronze and granite busts; amid fragments of clay and the dust of the studio.

For you were only a dream. Never through that marble bosom did the breath of life pass—not when Shakespeare painted you and Edstrom modeled you.

But never was flesh of Dane more delicately modeled by nature; never was a virgin of the North more pure.

Your lovely head droops forward and your step falters; your body inclines like the stem bending under the weight of a luxuriant flower. For you are bowed down by the burdens of life in a court where all is corruption, intrigue and passion.

You loved a god; and found only a madman; and you feel your life as broken as the rose bush mutilated to form the garland that you are telling like a chaplet of beads. It is your rosary of love.

How lightly the marble chiffons rest on your throat and bosom; but how your frail form bends under the weight of the flowing trail, symbolical of the conventions of life that drag you down.

I seem to see the shadow of the willow trailing above the dark, swift stream in which you are about to plunge; for you are treading your own funeral march, your despairing eyes resting on the wilting roses your sweetheart has spurned. You are melting from life like a snowflake under the sun.

Edstrom saw me standing there and turned from modeling a heroic figure for his "Man Triumphant" to lay his hand on your sloping shoulders, with a touch as gentle as that of a mother brushing the cheek of a sleeping babe.

"Heavy on your shoulders hangs the mantle of life, oh, Ophelia," he repeated in an undertone, as though fearing to disturb your reverie.

Yet you are only a dream and never were a woman. Shakespeare dreamed of you first and Edstrom symbolized that dream in marble.

And those of little understanding say that dreams are fragile. As I gazed at you standing there I realized that dreams are the only things in the world that are indestructible. The flesh passes, mountains are rent by convulsions; seas have been known to run dry; marble crumbles and canvas fades. Only our dreams endure.

Had you been a daughter of the flesh your dust would have been scattered to the four winds centuries ago, after age and maternity had disfigured your waist and wrinkled your brow. But you still live, as pure and dainty as when the great bard first envisioned you. And you will continue to live and droop after my dust has been scattered and the Los Angeles of today shall have become to a new race a city of antiquity.

Perhaps the archeologist of yet unborn centuries shall excavate in the ruins of an ancient city and find you sleeping among the ruins; shall marvel at your grace and beauty and place you in a museum as one of the best examples of the art of the twentieth century.

Dream on, fair Ophelia, and perhaps we shall one day [illegible] that dreams are worth [illegible] the rarest treasures of [illegible] a dream is a whisper [illegible] the lips of the infinite.

Long Beach Men Seek Seven Instead of Five
Supervisors Petitioned for Election on Plan
San Pedro and Wilmington Inclusion Asked
Demanding that the county Board of Supervisors grant seven instead of five supervisorial districts in redistricting Los Angeles county, so that Long Beach might include San Pedro and Wilmington in one district, on the basis of 65,000 population as a total, a protest meeting was held yesterday at 2 p.m. in one of the meeting rooms of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. At the meeting J. [illegible] Davis, chairman of the Long Beach citizens' committee; F. B. Dunn, president of the Long Beach Property Owners' Association, and [illegible] O. C. Hull, president of the Long Beach Manufacturers' Association presented arguments demanding that the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Fourth District Chamber of Commerce secure secession from the parent organization, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, in protesting to the County Supervisors.
It was the general sense of the meeting that the County Supervisors be appealed to to permit a election to be held to create two additional districts, making the city of Long Beach one district and creating another district from contiguous territory in that section.
Under present plans five supervisorial districts are planned. Those attending yesterday's meeting desire an election so that direct appeal can be made to the State Legislature.
The meeting was arranged by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, but Secretary Frank Wiggins of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce stated no representative of that organization was in attendance. The Los Angeles chamber was not represented.
FINED FOR FRACTURE OF PROHIBITION LAW
Holding that a stock of corn sugar, corks, bottles, yeast, capping machines, flavoring extracts of various liquors and wines, was not usually used to manufacture drinks for Sunday picnic purposes, Judge Modene yesterday fined J. Maurer said that a lot of folks in Fresno were engaged in the business, and had been undisturbed, but that did not excuse him for a violation of the law in the opinion of the court.

ANNEXATION ELECTION IS POSTPONED

Council Sets March 30 as New Date; Laurel Canyon Lines Changed

As the result of the presentation of a petition from Laurel Canyon residents, the City Council yesterday rescinded its former action calling an annexation election in that district for tomorrow and setting March 30 as the new date for the election. Objection was made by E. L. Doheny and others to the district lines drawn for the next Wednesday's election as they would include a part of Mr. Doheny's ranch and other property the owners of which did not desire to be included within the city of Los Angeles.

Under the new lines of the district under which the March 30 election will be held, Mr. Doheny's ranch, Beverly Glen and Franklin Canyon will be eliminated from the district on the annexation of which to Los Angeles the voters will cast their ballots. Had the old district lines stood, the Council was informed, litigation was threatened which might prevent the Laurel Canyon section from being annexed for three years during which time the section could not receive city water, which was the main reason why the annexation movement was started. After the Council had called off tomorrow's special election, former Superior Judge Charles Wellborn representing Mr. Doheny, handed to the City Clerk a check for $366.73, the amount the city had expended in preliminary arrangements for the election.

Busy Burglar Earns Vacation at San Quentin

An industrious job hunter by day time, Walter J. Scheivli was just as busy as a burglar by night time, he told Judge Reeve Yesterday, during his hearing on an application for probation. He was sentenced to San Quentin prison for from one to fifteen years for first-degree burglary.

"I was trying hard to get a job," said the defendant.

Detective Sergeant McMahan testified that Scheivli, who gave the name of Charles Jones when arrested, had admitted committing 200 burglaries in Los Angeles.

"How about that" asked the court.

"That's right," said the defendant, "but all the time I was busy in the morning trying to get a job."

"How long did it take you to commit the 200 burglaries?"

"Two months," said the defendant.

"Well," remarked the court, "your industry is remarkable. You can demonstrate it in San Quentin."

The court denied the application for probation and found the charge to which the defendant pleaded guilty to be first-degree burglary.

HELD ON CHECK CHARGE

Asserted by police to have passed worthless checks here, totaling approximately $7000, Will G. Walker was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeants Finlinson and Chester Smith, and is being held in the City Jail.

Self-Defense Plea of Man Under Arrest

Plan for "Roughing Up" Ends Seriously

Police investigating the stabbing to death of Frank Johnson, World War veteran, early yesterday, came to the conclusion that he met his death through being drawn into the quarrel of Mrs. Pearl Peden and Chester Wogoman over the proper division of a grocery store the pair have been conducting at 4532 York Boulevard.

Statements were obtained from Anthony L. Whittley of 1154 West Avenue 46, who says, according to the police, he stabbed Johnson in self-defense, and Seth Donaldson of 325 South Glendale avenue, Glendale, who was Johnson's companion Sunday night. Mrs. Peden, who is under arrest with Whittley, both being charged with suspicion of murder, refused, on advice of counsel, to talk.

ASK "ROUGHING UP"

Donaldson said he and Johnson met Mrs. Peden in a bootlegger's establishment. She is said to have told them she was being mistreated in a financial deal by Wogoman whom she is asseted to have eloped here from the East, leaving her husband, and asked the two men to "rough up" Wogoman for her. Donaldson said she did not desire Wogoman hurt more than enough to frighten him, according to the police.

On their first call at the Whittley home, where Wogoman was lodging, they were unsuccessful in finding anyone at home, according to the police version of Donaldson's story. They then went with Mrs. Peden to her apartment, where they danced and played a phonograph.

After a second visit to the bootlegger's place, which Donaldson said was on Alpine street, they are said to have gon back to the house on Avenue 46 and demanded to see Wogoman.

QUARREL IS BEGUN

Wogoman refused to come out, officers assert, but Whittley came, and was soon involved with Johnson in a quarrel. The stabbing follow, according to Donaldson, who is being held as a material witness.

Whittley's statement agreed closely with Dondlson's, police say, and Detective Sergeants Adams and Nickens, who questioned them, expressed themselves as being satisfied that their account of the affair was substantially accurate.

Charles W. Ostrom, attorney for Mrs. Peden, said she would have nothing to say until she came into court.

HEARING ON POWER RATE IS RESUMED

Railroad Commission Has Again Taken Up Petition for Reduced Costs

The unfinished investigation of the rates and practices of the Southern California Edison Company was resumed yesterday in the courtroom of the State railroad commissioning in the Pacific Finance Building. The case, which is being heard by Commissioners Brundage and Shore, is a continuation of a hearing begun in September, last, and recalendared at intervals since that date.

The commission, which, in April, 1921, ordered a power-rate reduction by the company amounting approximately to $1,500,000, announced at the time that a more thorough quiz into the Edison Corporation accounts with a view to ascertaining the property of a further reduction order, would be undertaken. The lower cost for power is being pressed by the California Farm Bureau Federation, through its attorney, Judge Brittian of San Francisco, and by an organization of twenty cities of Southern California. State Senator Carr representing the latter body.

At a hearing early this month the Eidson Corporation presented a mass of data tending to show that, in consideration of the expansion program mapped out for the next five years, a further reduction of power cost would be inadvisable.

At yesterday's session estimated earnings of the Edison company for 1923, were gone into by E. K. Decker, cost accountant, who testified for the Southern California cities. Mr. Decker was cross-examined by Chief Counsel Heppy for the Edison company. H. A. Barre, executive engineer of the power company, was also a witness called for cross-examination by Judge Brittian.

The hearing is expected to consume the greater part of the week and it is anticipated a decision will be announced by the commission not later than April 1.

People and Their Troubles

Elizabeth Jordan's Column

THEIR SPRING FEVER

One of the "best selling" novels of the year devotes its three hundred and seventy-one pages to the study of a man who was dissatisfied. He did no know why he was dissatisfied. He kept asking himself why. He had a wife who loved him and whom he loved. He had two beautiful children. He had plenty of money and a luxurious and restful home. Nevertheless, at close intervals, he continued to ask himself why he was not happy. He wanted something else. He didn't know what, but the reader did. The reader—any reader—could have told him exactly what he wanted if the author had given the reader a chance. Of course the author did nothing of the sort. If he had, the book would have ended on page fourteen or thereabouts.

At last the man met a certain woman. She was not beautiful and she did not especially interest him. But on the second day of their acquaintance he discovered that she was in love with him. It was a terrible love—the burning kind. It interested him profoundly. He thought of nothing but the lady and the love. On the third day of his acquaintance with the lady he was—to put it mildly—hopelessly involved.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

I trust I am not treating this matter too lightly. The book is a very serious book indeed. It has even been called "the great American novel," and club women and critics are discussing it on all sides. Apparently, like the hero, they are endeavoring to find out what was the matter with him. What I am trying to find out is what is the matter with the critics and the club women. We are all, as it were struggling toward the light together.

The man went to his home still wondering what was the matter with him. One would have thought he might at least have suspected what it was, by that time, but he didn't. However, his wife did, and taxed him with it. He was naturally irritated. At such times a man desires to keep on thinking and wondering what is the matter with him.

His wife, however, nagged him into returning to the other woman—his acquaintance of three days. The two decided that the world was well lost and started for Cuba together. As soon as they arrived the woman abruptly died, leaving the man still wondering what was the matter with him. The most natural incident in this realistic novel is the one in which, after wondering audibly for an hour or so, he finds that the brother to whom he is confiding his bewilderment has gone to sleep.

OTHER MEN WONDERING

Many women have told me that since reading this book their husbands begun to wonder, what is the matter with themselves.

I don't mind telling them. The condition has various names. Galsworthy calls it "The Dark Flower." The Germans call it "Thor Lust"—meaning a panic fear that the door of life, of youth, is closing before one has passed through and really lived. We ourselves sometimes speak of it as Spring Fever. All that sort of classification is rather vague and complicated. The sensation may be briskly and briefly explained in a phrase—the fear that one is losing something. One is comfortable but one is merely jogging along. One is existing very nicely but one is not really living. One is having no romance, one is experiencing no thrills.

So the unlucky ones go forth and wreck their lives, and other lives as well, because of a discontent which is inevitable and an emotion they know will not endure. And the lucky ones go hunting or fishing or tramping; and after a few weeks of communion with nature they come back healed and knowing where to go when the next attack strikes them.

Therefore, when John Henry begins to wonder what is the matter with him look up his old clothes and his fishing tackle and send him off. While he is gone one can do a little wondering ones self. Spring house cleaning, however, is an excellent antidote for women!

Question: Do any people live in places as cold as it is at the North Pole? D. N. E.

Answer: Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, is authority for the statement that people live in places even colder than the region of the North Pole. The lowest temperature at the North Pole is about 60 degrees below zero, while 70 degrees below has been registered in North Dakota, and at Verkhoyansk, Siberia, the thermometer has registered as low as between 90 and 100 degrees below zero.

A.: The name of this castle, near Strathmore, Scotland, is pronounced as if spelled "glamz," and the "a" is broad.

A.: This term is used to describe an Indian man who does a woman's work. It is also applied to a white man who marries an Indian woman and goes to live with her tribe.

Q.: Did some kind of a skull figure at the Versailles Peace Treaty? R. O.

A.: The insertion in the peace treaty of the demand that the Germans deliver to the British the skull of the Sultan Mkwawa has reference to German colonial possessions in Africa. The skull is to the natives a symbol of sovereignty and as such is a key to the territory involved, which is nearly twice the size of Germany. This territory lies northeast of Lake Nyasa. When the Germans defeated the natives they obtained possession of the skull and it helped to open up the colonization of German East Africa.

Q.: Will you please tell me the name of the children of the present King George V of England? S. P.

A.: The children of King George and Queen Mary of England are as follows: Prince of Wales—Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David; Prince Albert Frederick Arthur George; Princess Mary (Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary;) Prince Henry William Frederick Albert; Prince George Edward Alexander Edmund; Prince John (died Jan. 18, 1919.)

A.: Scabies is variously known as the itch, Norwegian itch, Cuban itch, seven years' itch, French itch, Army itch.

A: The band on a man's hat is said to have its origin in medieval times, when a knight tied the scarf of his lady around his helmet.

Q.: Were there any interesting circumstances attached to the writing of "Onward Christian Soldiers"? H. Y.

A.: The hymn was composed by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould for the village children of Horbury, who at Whitsuntide paraded through Horbury. To enliven the steep climb of more than a mile, and to help in maintaining order, the composer wrote "Onward Christian Soldiers." The hymn was written at St. Peter's vicarage and was completed in a few minutes.

Q.: Which attains the greater size—an alligator or a crocodile? D. B. N.

A.: The crocodile grows to be very much larger than the alligator. Some have been known to grow as long as thirty feet.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

Flag Brings Thrill

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Next to the joy of returning to one's native land after years of absence is the joy of seeing the flag of one's native country fluttering from the masthead of a ship entering a foreign port.

During my seafaring life I have visited every important port in the world. In Melbourne, Sydney, Hongkong, Calcutta, Capetown, Liverpool, London, the eastern and western ports of South America, I have seen the English flag by the score and hundreds. I have seen French, German, Norwegian and Italian flags pretty often, but the glorious stars and stripes very, very seldom.

A few days ago I was passing a public school and I saw the teacher instructing the pupils how to salute the flag. Our children should not need to be instructed in what should be natural, but I do think some of our Senators should be instructed in what matter. If some of there political block-heads had ever felt the thrill it gives a patriotic American to see the flag of his country far away from home he would know how disgusted an old sailor is.

OLD GLORY.

Agrees with Kyne

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:]—I have read with great interest Mr. Peter Kyne's articles, and I fully agree with him. It is a fact that, most unfortunately, our so important film industry is in hand of half-witts and stupid, greedy business men, to whom art is entirely unknown.

It is a fact that all those who have tried to make real artistic pictures, have met with disaster, a very few excepted.

It is a fact that most of the salaried readers and scenario-writers are utterly unfit for that kind on favoritism and stupidity, and it is only an account of the public's desire to be "amused" at any cost, that this business has survived.

To give a sample of our producers' lack of intelligence, let me mention the fact that they are going to film "Trilby." The one thing that makes "Trilby" an unusual, interesting story is Svengali's power to hypnotize Trilby into singing like an angel, when in reality she has no singing voice whatever. The whole story rests upon this feature. Now, I would like to know what the film will amount to if we cannot get any idea of her wonderful singing, done in a trance. It will be necessary to have a record of Galli-Curci or other great singer supply the song, and this would be a mighty poor procedure.

When will our producers realize that the film has its limitations, and that they should confine their efforts to scenarios specially written for the films? Books, or stories written as fiction should very seldom, if ever, be filmed. It is impossible to give a satisfactory screening of stories that have not been written for the screen.

HENRY LATOUR

Advises Less Publicity

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22. — [To the Editor of The Times:] It is often said: Advertising pays, this is not always true, but persistent advertising always brings results, of one kind or another. The best I can say for your paper is that we get it every week day and no other paper comes in our home. With my best will I am unable to avoid saying that you are persistently advertising crime of one kind as another, in display pictures, headlines and in minute details of the criminal, and that one crime cannot avoid reading some of it and be influenced by it. How much more will those be influenced who gradually get used to it make a kind of special study of crime and criminals just because that is put before them so prominently and without knowing it get criminal instincts and with but little additional stimulus commit crimes themselves. The distinction given to those who commit or accused of big crimes, such as Madalyne Obenchain or Little Phil, in case of the latter by being taken care of by Chief Oaks personally in court and in the train, getting ham and eggs for breakfast, steak when he arrives in jail, would appeal strongly to your readers in jail, or who have been there, since they themselves having so far only committed small crimes were scarcely able to secure the attention of an officer in the jail when they were very sick or for some other cause which to them seemed important. Think of the influence this reading matter has on the mothers and fathers and through them on the children and which will bear fruit in the children's lives.

Commends Editorial

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I read with interest your vigorous editorial this morning on "Unworthy Senators."

I wondered, however, if anything else could be expected after the little, political, partisan, round-robin spectacle exhibited by Lodge and this class of Senators against the League of Nations.

There is some principle and basis for honest differences on the subsidy bill, for the query naturally arises: What does an isolated nation, with a high tariff wall around it, want with a merchant marine? R. W. RICHARDSON.

Objects to Smoking

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This is great sport we are having at the expense of the Mormons and their blue laws at Salt Lake City. They are actually, mind you, arresting prominent citizens and tourists and everything for making the most cowardly kind of nuisances of themselves in places of general public resort and necessity. Other interests there are deeply concerned lest that sort of thing may divert the tourist trade away from Salt Lake City and Utah. Which is to say that the tourist is an inevitable boor and ignoramus, but that they are yet anxious to cater to that type.

Presumably the tourist would steer clear of Southern California if he were assured of our policy to provide him clean air to breathe and our determination to regard him as a gentleman, instilling customs to match the idea.

And then there are ladies and little boys and girls, who have a way of moving about the country, and are to some extent responsive to good impressions.

It looks to me as if the Church of Latter Day Saints had put something over on orthodox Christianity, in making official assault upon and most obviously a thing for and the most obviously a thing for private, furtive and shamed indulgence. I mean smoke-sucking, to make it correctly descriptive.

A. GEORGE.

A Ship Canal Favored

HAMILTON (Mo.) Feb. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I've never had the pleasure of a visit to your thriving city, but in looking over a map of Southern California I was somewhat surprised to note the evident handicap and expensive inconvenience of the city's distance from the "briny ocean's" coast.

Scanning the intervening land between the city and Los Angeles Harbor (some twenty miles away) and seeing no serious elevations of land marked on the map, the thought struck me why not bring the ocean in through a ship canal of sufficient depth and width to make the city a port of entry for the floating craft of the world?

This is an age of big doings and doubtless the energetic and progressive men and women of the city could and would put this suggestion through speedily if it should appeal to them practical and advantageous.

The rapid gain in population and business of Long Beach and other adjacent seaport towns may be to some extent attributable to direct ocean communication and exchange. But Los Angeles must expand even to the absorption of all nearby towns and villages, for right there climatic location and natural resources point to the construction of one of the largest commercial and residential aggregations of humanity even seen on this earth.

Ah, won't it be grand and inspiring to view the giant freight and passenger ships from everywhere peacefully gliding to and from the bustling wharves of blooming and booming Los Angeles!

Film Album Innovation

A film album is the latest aid to the proper study of cinema productions initiated by the Co-operative Council for Better Films, at its meeting last Thursday in the Trinity Building, when the idea was suggested by the president, Mrs. Fred Kuck.

In the film album will be stored concrete evidence of the work and worth of the motion-picture world. This is a volume destined to increase rapidly in size under the special guidance of Miss Katherine Cameron and Mmes. Anna Tennesson, Kate Hotzmer, Max Handschiegle, George Walker and W. Meyers.

The afternoon resolved itself into an open forum with spontaneous and entertaining talks by guests and members. Prof. Edgar L. Larkin of Mt. Lowe Observatory dwelt on motion pictures as an educational factor; A Mitchell of Glendale and Mrs. Dana O'Brien-Wells told of the screen's opportunity for moral uplift. Mrs. A. A. Hummel, motion-picture chairman of the district federation, talked on the value of the preview list for publication, and Mrs. T. B. Burley, secretary of the Woman's department for the American Historical Review and Motion Picture Exposition, stressed the importance of women's morning conferences to be held during that celebration next July. In the women's court when progressive work of the women of South America, Central America and the United States along educational and uplift lines will be presented.

Mrs. M. E. Jenkins who has just returned from a four months' trip ... country, gave interesting details of the world convention of the W.C.T.U. at Philadelphia to which she was a delegate, and where representatives from twenty-eight nations were gathered. She also told of her stop at the federation headquarters in Washington and of her timely visit to the Juvenile Court in New Orleans where she saved a poor woman from an unjust fate.

At the colonial tea which followed ... greets were welcomed and new members greeted by the executive board.

Case of Uribe Brothers Set Off Calendar

The case of the brothers, Herbert and Fernando Uribe, charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of an automobile, was ordered set off the calendar by Justice Hanby yesterday, the date set for the trial of the men to begin.

The defendants were released on their own recognizance shortly after Herbert Uribe's wife, Mrs. Katherine Uribe, had assisted in the return of "Little Phil" Alguin from Mexico. She aided officers in Alguin's capture.

When the men failed to appear for trial yesterday Justice Hanby removed the case. It is understood the brothers are in Mexico.

SUPPORTED FOR DISTRICT OFFICE

Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer

A new candidate entered the field for the coming district election Saturday when the Gleason Parliamentary Club indorsed Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, district chairman of conservation, for the office of vice-president of the Los Angeles district. Yesterday the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club followed suit. Mrs. Lorbeer is a member of both clubs, being a past president of the Santa Monica club.

Mrs. Lorbeer has long been prominent in club circles and has been elected a representative of the Los Angeles district on the election committee at the State convention at Eureka. The indorsement of Mrs. Lorbeer adds interest to election plans, as she will run against Mrs. J. M. Mathews, president of West Adell Club, who was indorsed early in the season as a candidate for the office of vice-president.

Golf, always a favorite diversion with society, has been particularly appealing at Del Monte during the winter months. The many travelers from the East, Canada and other points have joined in the competitions on the links against California players.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Snider of Pasadena, who spend every summer for many years at Del Monte, are golfing there again. Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Boisot, also of Pasadena, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Byington Ford, at Pebble Beach. Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Foreman and Col. and Mrs. J. Hudson Poole are other Pasadena people occupying their homes at Pebble Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Lynch and son, Frank W. Lynch, Jr., are at Del Monte, meeting old friends.

Mrs. Earl N. Pier of San Francisco won the blind bogey golf trophy, which was the feature event for the fair players over the holiday. Mrs. Pier was in the party made up by Mr and Mrs. Hartley F. Peart.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stewart and daughter, Miss M. Stewart, of New Zealand, are making a tour of California. They have been at Del Monte for some time in company with Mr. and Mrs. William Howarth of Tacoma.

Sir Frank and Lady Barnard of British Columbia have returned to Del Monte after a trip to South America. Sir Frank is an ardent golfer who finds much pleasure on the Del Monte and Pebble Beach courses. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sayward and daughter, Miss Margaret Sayward of Victoria, B. C., have been at Del Monte since the first of the year and plan on staying through until late spring. Mr. Sayward and Miss Sayward showed their skill on the links the other day in winning a trophy in a mixed foursome.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Okell and Mr. and Mrs. Louis James of Alameda spent the holidays at Del Monte.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goodfellow of Fresno are stopping at the picturesque Del Monte Lodge at Pebble Beach. They spend much time with Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Nares, also of Fresno, who have a beautiful home at Pebble Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pierce of Susiun are back at Del Monte to enjoy golf and trapshooting. Mr. Pierce is a prominent shotgun expert who participates in the California Indians' tournament at Del Monte every May.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fleischacker and family are at Del Monte to make a stay for several days.

The Del Monte senior and junior fours are back from the South and will be joined by the Cardinals of San Mateo and the Eleventh Cavalry of Monterey. It is anticipated that there will be ten teams entered for the tournament. Polo enthusiasts from all sections will be on hand.

Miss Eleanor Sears, the famous sportswoman of Boston, who has been a house guest of Mrs. Charles W. Clark at Pebble Beach, will take her departure with Miss Hollins and Mrs. Letts.

DAMAGES FOR INJURIES

The loss of an arm and a leg is worth $40,000 in damages to the victim, a Superior Court jury decided yesterday in the suit of William J. West against the Union Pacific Railroad, brought to determine the amount of damages. The railroad admitted responsibility in the accident in which Mr. West was injured. The suit was brought to establish the amount.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of Diet and Health, with Key to the Calorie

A FELLA NEEDS A FRIEND

My friend is in a sorry plight. He says so to our face. He's loaded thick with heavy lard and lost his pristine grace. He followed some directions once to melt off all his grease. Mashes ate he from a tub, but did he then have peace?

Drank he but tea and walked he miles in sunshine and in storm. And daily grew he lank and thin, and sylph-like was his form. But did he then have peace? Ah, no! Ah, no Ah, no, once more. His appetite did not decrease. He daily grew more sore.

And when he closed his eyes at night, of steaks and stews he dreamed, of cakes and pies and chops and steaks and puddings rich with cream. And so at last he rose and said: "My beauty makes me sad. I'll eat again the things I like. This diet is a fad."

Of course, his lard it all came back. He's fat who once was lean But he's a-singing in his shack, he's happy as a queen.

But, Friend, Dear Friend! Thought you of this? While happy you may be, the doom that hangs o'er your fat head we contemplate sans glee! We like you, Friend. Indeed we do. We hate like snakes to think that your great rhymes too soon will cease, too soon be on the blink.

There's diabetes, Friend, for one; there's apoplexy, too. There's Bright's and gout and boils, no doubt, disease galore you'll rue, if you persist in being fat and eating more'n you need. Oh, yes; You do that, Friend. We know! Your fat shows how you feed.

And so we say you need a friend to tell you, to your face, that larded thickly is not wise, you must get back your grace.

And listen, Friend; Have you not tried to slim on calories? The system's great. It brings results, quick melting of the grease. And it's not difficult at all. And what is best of all, you can then eat the things you like, not mash that makes you squall.

Here's what you have to do, dear Friend. You study just a bit, and learn the cal'rie list of foods, your needs alone to fit. As you're a writin' man, of course, no manual work you do; you need of cal'ries then each day, of hundreds, twenty-two.

Now to reduce you cut these down to hundreds twelve, perhaps. The thousand less you draw upon your heavy lobs of fat. When this you do, you'll be surprised how simple 'tis to lose. How many 'licious foods you'll have, the best, of all you'll choose.

The cal'rie system, Friend, combined with exercise a bit, will keep you famous many years. You'll never be less fit. Perhaps you missed the papers, Friend, in which we gave the key? If so, address envelope to self, and stamp it carefullie. Inclose four cents to cover cost and send the same to me, in care this paper, don't forget! Of fat we'll make you free!

You'll win your pristine beauty back, but better yet, your health. And you'll be saved for many years to give us your wealth of kindly wit and genial rhyme. You'll do this, Friend? Please do. Release that impulse! Start at once the calories to woo.

Tomorrow—Malicious Animal Magnetism.

To the Business Woman who does her own Housekeeping

It may be written by a man, or by a woman—but one thing it will emphasize.

The faculty of the business woman for making her home-building instincts a help rather than a hindrance to her business career. Many a harassed, tired mother might take a hint from the business woman's well-chosen outfit of Hotpoint Servants.

The Hotpoint Percolator and Tea Pot—Toastover Toaster—Grill and Ovenette—Waffle Iron. Compact and efficient aids to serving a dainty meal without hurry and worry.

Important Announcement

No user of Hotpoint Servants could afford to have us slight our high standard of manufacture, simply to compete with an article of lower price and reputation.

And we will NOT.

Good coffee, good coffee, no one else knows, unless it's someone who has made it with the Hotpoint Percolator and the glowing Urn and Waffle Iron.

There's a Difference in Bread

YOU know that some bread is good, far more appetizing in flavor and more nourishing than other breads. But, have you ever stopped to figure out the difference?

One fur coat is better than another because the quality of the fur, and the workmanship, is better.

That same difference is what will make you like HOLSUM Bread better than other kinds. Because we use the best of materials—because our manufacturing methods are scientific—because we have an ideal to live up to—that's why HOLSUM appeals and satisfies.

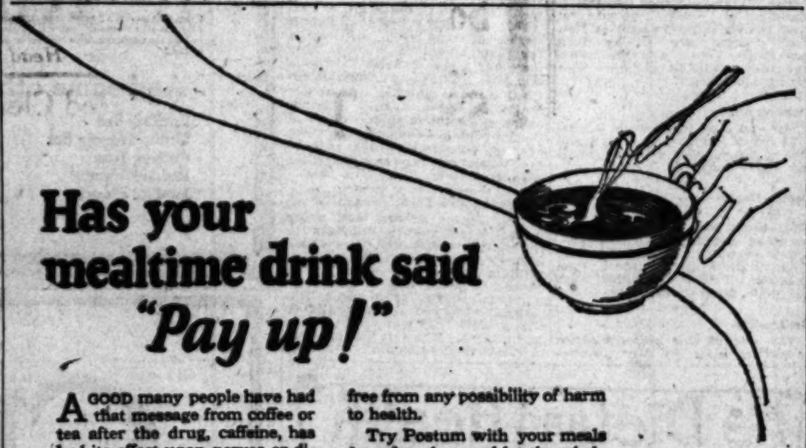
HOLSUM



Has your mealtime drink said "Pay up!"

A GOOD many people have had that message from coffee or tea after the drug, caffeine, has had its effect upon nerves or digestion.

Frequently the message comes at night, when nerves won't quiet down and sleep won't come, after the dinner cup of coffee.

Try Postum with your meals for a few days and let the whole family, the children included, share in its appetizing, invigorating goodness. It will bring better nights and brighter mornings.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

SOCIETY CAPTIVATED BY DOLLS

"Times" Fashion Editor Their Sponsor

Peggy Hamilton Introduces New Fad

FEMININE Los Angeles has been captivated by the doll fad, society's latest craze, introduced here by Peggy Hamilton, the West Coast's fashion dictator and The Times fashion editor.

The dolls were originated by Paul Poiret of Paris. They are in various sizes and colors and are known as "Da-Da," "Rajah" and "Bathicel" dolls.

They were formally introduced to society here by Miss Hamilton at the Ambassador, where they created a sensation. Miss Hamilton appeared carrying one of the little travesties in the lobby of the hotel and was immediately surrounded by scores of women who wished to know where the "darling" little thing came from. It was the first time the dolls had been shown publicly in this country.

Miss Hamilton presented one of these creations to Irene Castle, dancer, who is appearing at the Cocoanut Grove of the hotel and the celebrity was at once converted into an admiring and excited follower of the fad.

It appears now that the doll fad is scheduled to replace all other fads for moons to come.

SELZNICK MAY QUIT COMPANY

Finance Trouble is Given as the Reason

Late Pictures Were Completed With Difficulty

Own Organization Planned if Break Comes

Myron Selznick, president of the Selznick Picture Corporation and the head of all production, has prepared his resignation, and will turn it in immediately if the New York banking interest does not meet with his policies and issues, it was learned last night from the president's brother, David Selznick, vice-president of the film organization.

Myron and David Selznick will leave Los Angeles Wednesday to confer with the eastern capitalists for the last time, Mr. David Selznick declared.

"There are certain issues at stake," Mr David Selznick said. "My brother has pointed out these issues, and if they are not met my brother will resign.

"It is merely a friction in the production policy of the organization. If the banking interest does not meet with my brother's ideas and issues I am sure he will resign as president of the organization.

CAN'T DISCUSS IT

"The whole situation is that there are certain things at stake which can't be discussed right now. Neither my brother nor myself wants to discuss the situation at the present time. After the conference in New York City everything will be known."

It was learned from a reliable source late last night that Selznick will probably resign within the next few days. The friction regarding the financial interests which have been backing the productions turned out by Selznick centers not only in the East, but also with local banks.

It is believed the trouble arose over the recent feature productions turned out by Selznick in which fortunes were spent. "Rupert of Hentzau," recently finished here, and said to have cost close to $1,000,000, is said to have been one of the steps in the chain of friction. "The Common Law" was made at the time and there was extreme difficulty in obtaining the money to keep the company working, it was said.

WILL START OWN PLANT

Selznick and his brother plan to organize their own company after this controversy is settled and locate their studio in Hollywood.

Myron and David Selznick are the sons of Lewis J. Selznick, the founder of the organization which bears his name, who recently retired from active work as an executive of the organization.

The Selznick organization was moved to Hollywood a little more than a year ago. Owen Moore, Elaine Hammerstein and Eugene O'Brien were some of their feature players. None of the stars is under contract with the organization at the present time.

A short time ago it was announced that big plans were scheduled for the coming year. Shortly afterward Selznick moved his entire distribution forces here, entailing a great expense. Selznick was to have made a feature picture in the East with Theda Bara. She was recently signed to make "The Easiest Way" out here, but her contract stipulated that the film be made in the East. Plans were being made a few weeks ago to move a part of the Selznick crew to New York City to make the film.

With the present controversy in the air, it is believed the picture will not be made.

DESERTED WIFE WINS

Court Rules She is Entitled to Damages for Husband's Death

The decision of the Los Angeles Superior Court was upheld yesterday by the State Supreme Court in its ruling that a widow is entitled to damages awarded to her by a court for the death of her husband, irrespective of the fact "that he had been living with and supporting another woman." The case at issue was that of Mrs. Frank Powers against the Sutherland Auto Stage Company, in which Mrs. Powers obtained a judgment of $3930 for fatal injuries sustained by her husband. The stage company's position that a wife whose husband is not living with her cannot collect damages was declared "untenable" by the Supreme Court.

DECISION IS REVERSED

The decision of the Los Angeles County Superior Court was reversed by the State Supreme Court yesterday in the action brought by Roy L. Blakes, an attorney, to recover fees said to be owing from the Wilson & Willard Company. Blakes recovered damages from infringers on patents held by the company, on a contingent legal fee. His case was dismissed by the lower court.

DANCES WAY INTO CINEMALAND

Rex Ingram Sees Her Once, Job Offered

Edith Allen

THIS is a story about a girl who danced her way into the films. Tom called one night over the phone back in New York City and asked Edith Allen, Chicago girl, visiting in the big town, if she wouldn't go to a dance at the Montmartre Cafe with him. She said, "Sure."

Edith and Tom were having a wonderful dance when a girl tapped her on the shoulder. The girl was Alice Terry, the wife of Rex Ingram, credited with having brought Rodolph Valentino into fame through his production of "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Alice told Edith to "Come over to my table when you've finished the dance." A few minutes later Edith was introduced to Ingram. Ingram told her she was "the Clemaine of his next picture, 'Scaramouche.'" The producer offered her a job.

"I was swept off my feet," she said yesterday at Metro studio. "That was the first 'yes' of my life."

A new dressing-room has been fitted up for the girl who is being pushed to stardom by Ingram next to the one occupied by Norma Talmadge.

Edith has had a brief span in the show world. She played a season with the late William Rock, who brought the first recognition to Francis White and Maud Fulton. Then she gave up the show business.

"I always wanted to be an actress, but I didn't think I was pretty enough," she said yesterday. "When I was younger I was very enthusiastic about getting into pictures, but as I grow older I tried to forget it.

"I'm awfully sorry Peter B. Kyne is talking so mean about the motion-picture industry and to think I am just getting in! It's too bad. I am so sorry Peter has done it."

Edith is 20 years of age. And Rex Ingram says: "She has that personality which shows on the screen."

Foreign Women Developing as Film Directors

"Women directors are being developed in England, Italy and Austria," Fred Esmelton, motion picture and stage actor, who returned to Hollywood last week from Europe, said yesterday.

Esmelton has been in Europe during the past two years, playing in pictures in England, Sweden and other countries.

The scarcity of men is accountable for the increase of women in the motion-picture industry, Esmelton said.

"Many of the women have abandoned the idea of marrying and forming homes because of the scarcity of men, and therefore they are pursuing a profession in the motion-picture field. They are not only becoming directors, but they are taking all sorts of jobs, such as electricians, property women, photographers and assistant directors."

Esmelton returned to Hollywood to play a role in Goldwyn's production of "The Three Wise Fools," which is being directed by King Vidor.

SIGN MISS BROCKWELL FOR UNIVERSAL FILM

Gladys Brockwell, for several years a star under the Fox banner, was signed yesterday by the Universal Film Corporation to play the role of the mother of Esmeralda which is portrayed by Patsy Ruth Miller in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," it was announced yesterday. Lon Chaney is being starred in the production and Wallace Worsley is directing.

TENOR TO APPEAR AT LOEW'S TODAY

Ciccolini, the operatic tenor who was unable to sing at Loew's State Theater yesterday on account of illness, will appear today, according to an announcement made by Manager E. C. Bostick.

Worry brought on by the sickness of his year-old baby in San Francisco, caused Ciccolini to break down Sunday evening.

VALENTINO AGHAST AT JEAN'S ACT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Rodolph Valentine arrived back in town to seek more feminine hearts to conquer. On his arm was the beauteous Winifred Hudnut Valentine.

And—

At almost the same time there arrived in Chicago, to fill a vaudeville engagement, Jean Acker Valentino, predecessor of the tangoing Winifred.

It is expected there will be a hot time, for, according to the programs which the triangle adorn, Jean Acker Valentino, billed at a Loop vaudeville theater as "Mrs. Rodolph Valentino," will have ample time to take off the greasepaint and be at the Marigold Gardens, where her ex-husband and his new wife will appear, before the time for their tango.

If she does go, she may have an opportunity of talking over a recent threatened injunction to restrain her from using his name as advertising.

"My God!" was all the heartbreaking Rodolph could say when informed at the Blackstone that his ex-wife had been brought to Chicago to play during the first week of his engagement as headliner at the gardens.

TO START PRODUCING CAMPAIGN

United Artists Distribute Feature Productions From Sennett Studio

Following a short lull in production activities, during which time he reorganized the various departments in his comedy organization, adding several new writers to the scenario staff, engaged new directors and re-signed some of the popular players who were identified with earlier pictures, Mack Sennett is again away to a flying start.

Through arrangements effected during his recent trip to New York, Sennett will release his feature productions through the medium of The United Artists' Corporation. Early announcement regarding the channel through which all two-reel comedies will be distributed hereafter, is promised.

The production campaign now under way will be a means of introducing many new personalities in Sennett pictures, while at the same time not a few of the older favorites will be seen with a Sennett make-up on.

Phyllis Haver, one of the most popular of Sennett players, has started a production on her first starring vehicle, "The Extra Girl," an original story adapted for the screen under the supervision of the producer, by Bernard McConville, while its direction is in the hands of F. Richard Jones, and photographed by Lyman Broening.

Billy Bevan, with Mary Jane Sanderson playing the feminine lead opposite, has started work on "Domestic Economy," a two-reel comedy, being directed by C. R. Wallace and Allen McNeil. Hank Mann is to be featured with Bevan.

Ben Turpin, scrambled-visioned comedy star, will begin in a few days with the production of what is claimed, one of the funniest stories ever written for him, and surrounded by an all-star cast, under the direction of Roy Del Ruth.

Another feature which will add to the attractiveness of forthcoming Sennett comedies, is the number of pretty girls who have been engaged to do "bits" and small parts, in the comedies. With his new chorus of feminine beauty, Mack Sennett intends to outfame his erstwhile famous bathing beauties.

Besides those names already mentioned, Dot Farley, Ralph Graves, Vernon Dent, Anna Hernandes, Bud Jamieson, Alice Belcher, Nick Cogley and Billy Fay, have been engaged by Mr. Sennett to appear in forthcoming productions, while Teddy, the almost human canine star, will continue to paw his way into the affections of millions of picture fans.

AT WORK ON HER SECOND LOCAL FILM

Pola's Next American Picture, "The Cheat," in Production at Lasky's

Production work on "The Cheat," Pola Negri's second American-made picture, has started.

In the role of the yellow man of the story— in this version an East Indian instead of the Japanese of the early production—the public will see Charles de Roche who, like Pola Negri, is appearing in his second American picture. De Roche is recognized as the most talented French screen actor of the day and in this photoplay is given an ample opportunity to demonstrate his ability.

Dorothy Cumming, Robert Schable, Charles Stevenson and Helen Dunbar complete the cast which Fitzmaurice has spent several weeks in choosing.

"The Cheat," as veteran picturegoers may remember, was written for the screen originally nearly a decade ago by Hector Turnbull. It was produced at that time by Cecil B. De Mille with Fannie Ward in the role which Miss Negri plays in the present-day production.

It not only won tremendous box office approval at that time but it was promptly seized upon by artists in other lines of artistic endeavor and adapted to their needs. Camille Erlanger, the French composer, made an opera of the story. William A. Brady chose Willard Mack to adapt the story for the stage and Andre De Lourde transformed the story into a popular novel.

Ouida Bergere wrote the modern scenario of "The Cheat" changing the original story only in such details as would give Pola Negri additional opportunities to display her unquestioned emotional ability. For pictorial reasons the setting of the play has been changed from its original local and the Japan-

MUSICAL

"COSI FAN TUTTE" IS SUNG AT GAMUT AUDITORIUM

By Edwin Schallert

Those who seek their entertainment elsewhere than in the thrilling, throbbing present, but who like to spend their quiet hour or two with the past, and perhaps derive enjoyment while they are doing this, will no doubt find to their liking "Cosi Fan Tutte," a comic opera in two acts, which is being presented in drawing-room fashion—if I may so term it—for three days at the Gamut Club Auditorium. The original book and lyrics are by Lorenzo dax Ponte, and the music by Wolfgang Amadus Mozart, both of whom died over a century ago. The modern adaptation of the libretto in English is by Henry Edward Krehbiel, the New York music critic.

Having thus disposed of some of the physical features of a rather novel musical enterprise, I am not inclined to set up any high anticipations for the casual theatergoer in connection with "Cosi Fan Tutte." I indorse it rather warmly for the musical elect. There are reasons why anybody who is a student and a real lover of music should hear even a semi-informal presentation of a Mozartian work like "Cosi Fan Tutte" once. Mozart operas are too rare to be neglected, even though they are given in a form which occupies about the same relation to the complete work as a print does to a painting.

"Cosi Fan Tutte," translated freely as "'Tis Woman's Nature," is not perhaps as famous as "The Magic Flute," "Don Giovanni," or "The Marriage of Figaro." It is lighter and perhaps less exacting in character. It is a whimsical tale of the fickleness of two young ladies, who are intrigued by a cynical bachelor into forgetting their fiances for a presumably new set of lovers.

This light little piece of frivolity is set to delicately sparkling music, which is in its general aspects familiar to all who know their Mozart. The style of the opera is far-and-away different from the present. The characters are more bent on singing runs and trills than they are on paying attention to each other, but the manner and mode of it all is very charming, even though it is a test for the modernized listener, especially with the meager background of piano.

The production has been made by William Wade Hinshaw, the singer who several years ago was heard here in the prize opera, "Fairyland." He himself does not appear, however. The singers whom he has offered have much to recommend them both for their training and the quality of their classical technique. Irene Williams in particular evidences an exact and brilliant intonation, singing many difficult florid passages with surety. Hudson House, the tenor, and Leo de Hierapolis, the baritone, are both to be highly credited for their vocal attainments. Philine Falco sang acceptably in the ensemble passages, and Lillian Palmer made a fetching picture in her gay role of the romance-wise waiting maid. Less can be cited in favor of Pierre Remington, who lacked the esprit and the voice for the supposedly comic role of the gentleman who causes all the trouble by his little intrigue.

"POWER OF A LIE" HAS INTERESTING THEME

Not all mere falsifications are as troublesome in their consequences as the one which is exploited in "The Power of a Lie" this week at Grauman's Third Street. If I thought that they were I am sure I should never even make a mental reservation henceforward, let alone give a fictitious explanation of why I was not on time for an appointment.

"The Power of a Lie" is a picture version of a story credited to Johann Bojer. The screen adaptation is by Charles Kenyon, the dramatist. The film was directed by George Archainbaud. All of these gentlemen have evidently worked hard to accomplish something, and have in the main succeeded. I have a suspicion that Bojer worked the most successfully, but he probably had the least to say about the final result. However, I'm not saying anything really disparaging about that, because I don't know the original story, and only the ending in the photoplay looks slightly fishy.

Altogether "The Power of a Lie" is quite a piece, once it gets started. It concerns reputation and character and a lot of other vaunted attributes of respectability. The financier, John Hammond, gets into a ticklish position, because he tries to help a friend to the detriment of his wife's judgment. The wife is a snob and he is a good fellow, but through concealing the fact that he went to an apartment house just shortly before a fire revealed the fact that a rather hectic party was being held there, he is placed in jeopardy. He resorts to concealment to protect himself. What mere man could do less! The results, though, are what interest. They show rather vigorously that the will to falsification was productive of all kinds of deleterious results.

At least, "The Power of a Lie" essays to establish something via the screen. Nor is it hopelessly didactic. In fact, it does not seek obviously to point any moral, for when the truth does come out we get the general impression, vaguely at least, that it isn't believed. The lie has gone right on living.

While the picture might be termed a trifle slow by the casual photoplay goer, it is worth more than a passing thought of commendation for its effort at something worth while. So to do David Torrance, in particular; Maude George, Mabel Julienne Scott, June Elvidge, also in particular; Earle Metcalfe and others, deserve more than a passing mention.

The fashion show staged by Marceline d'Alroy is a glittering and rather alluring affair, and establishes among other things that wigs may be worn to match gowns this season. The green ones and the copper hued and lavender ones may make you rub your eyes a bit.

"TIMBER WOLF" AT LITTLE THEATER

BY KENNETH TAYLOR

It looks as though the trend towards the he-man drama would permeate every legitimate theater in town, the way new plays are springing up these days. The latest addition to the ranks is "The Timber Wolf," a story of the Northwest Mounted with Jean De Brise as the villain in the colorful but unsympathetic role of Dumont Batoche, the "wolf" himself, which opened a short engagement at the Egan Little Theater last night.

Things went off practically without a hitch, considering that the occasion was an opening performance. "The Timber Wolf" is apparently due for success if the first act can be livened up some, and the tempo of the second maintained throughout the entire play.

Quite a capable cast has been assembled, and for the most part does justice to the work. George Chesebro, as a sergeant of the mounted, James Mackenzie, who returns to the post after a three-year trip to "get" his man (the mounted never fail!) only to find his sweetheart wed that same day to the "wolf" in accordance with her father's wishes; Boyd Irwin as the peaceful inspector; Doris Pawn, as Alice, sister of the sergeant; Frank Caffrey as Corp. Donaldson, Alice's sweetheart; Iva Shepard as Marie Le Moyne, the girl who unwillingly causes all the trouble, are a few of the names found on the program. Others are Marie Stuart, Jeffrey Williams, June Taylor and Thomas Nosis.

The play opens with the preparations for the wedding of Marie and the Wolf in a far-western post of the Mounted. The first act ends with the return after three long years of the sergeant, the man whom Marie loves, but whom she thought had died, just as the marriage knot is tied. "The Timber Wolf" has always been suspected by the police, but has always managed to keep clear of the net. At the end of the second act, however, he commits a murder which practically dooms him, and from then on when the sergeant takes up the trial with a vengeance, until his spectacular death at the end of the play, compelling interest rules supreme.

There are some light touches, such as the proposal of the Corporal to Alice, which fittingly relieves the tension of the more dramatic situations, forming a human background against which the narrow plot is unfolded.

Ernest F. Bishop wrote "The Timber Wolf," which is being performed for the first time with the exception of one benefit performance a few years ago. The structure for the most part is acceptable, but as mentioned above, could stand some strengthening in the earlier episodes.

MacDermott on Vaudeville Bill at Hillstreet

Picking headliners on a bill like the one at the Hillstreet this week is no indoor sport, it's a Chinese puzzle. About the simplest way to handle the matter is to run straight down the program, for every act is a top-notcher and appeals to a majority of the audience.

Take Marc MacDermott, for instance. Marc has had his playlet, "I Haven't Time," over at the Orpheum, and he offers the same thing at the Hillstreet. Nothing changed—not even the stories he tells in the curtain call that inevitably follows the sketch.

That the hand is quicker than the eye and that, even at that, the eye is not to be sneezed at, is proved by E. J. Moore's "Something New." Moore is an informal magician who closes his act with a weird Chinese trick.

Bobby "Uke" Henshaw is the hit of the show from the comedy standpoint. He opens the act off stage and one is tempted to think that he is better out of sight than when doing his stuff with a spotlight on him, but you change that idea the minute you see him. Bobby's "daughter" snatches a good round of applause during the last half of the act with her cornet playing.

Perez and Marguerite, who open the show, deliver a snappy juggling act that has them all beat. Trick stuff that only a nut could think of hands the audience many a laugh.

Alice Brady co-stars with David Powell in "Missing Millions" on the screen. The picture is a crook story that moves along rather obvious lines, but it is entertaining. The third chapter of "Around the World," etc., leaves our hero facing a watery grave in underground Paris.

Virile Art Is the Aim of Pianist

Art—strong, virile, uplifting and noble, and the advancement of the art of music toward these same qualities—this is the message of Arthur Schnabel, pianist, who plays this evening at Philharmonic Auditorium. This concert will be his first here, and his only local appearance this season. Mr. Schnabel is a Viennese pianist, famous throughout Europe, and his successes in the United States have likewise been notable.

Frequently the physical build of a man is the key to his mental conception of things idealistic. I think this is particularly true of Mr. Schnabel, for there is something substantial and big, something both brainy and brawny about the man and his art. His art is an art of strength and massiveness, an art of majestic ideals and lofty ambitions, rather than a picture of brooks and birds.

"People can have one common ground," said Mr. Schnabel, "and that is art. What I look like, what I do, or eat, or think, cannot be of any interest to anyone. When people hear me play, if they are pleased, then I am happy. I am, to look at, just an ordinary man, just as every one else—there is nothing about us that is of interest.

"But when we speak of music, when we have something to say or to play, that brings pleasure and sympathy and kinship to each other, then we become vitally interesting. It is that great mutual appreciation for the message of the great masters that brings out the finest in all of us."

Mr. Schnabel avers that the culture in Europe is in many ways too old a culture instead of a procaying culture instead of a progressive culture. Modern—or ultra modern music, he does not care for. He says that in recent years there has been no really great piano music, although much has been accomplished in orchestral and chamber music. Debussy he says is too weak in his style to rank with the great masters. That his things are pretty, he admits, but that his message is primarily ennobling he does not concede.

OLD-HOME WEEK

ORPHEUM HAS FAVERSHAM AND STARS OF YESTERDAY

By Grace Kingsley

It is by way of being Old Home Week down at the Orpheum, these days, what with the Stars of Yesterday and William Faversham headlining. And they certainly show up the current kid generation of entertainers in some ways. Even Flapper Row enjoyed the show and there was a real flapper quorum present. "Olive" was with us again—blond and pretty Olive, who hasn't been absent nor tardy from the Monday afternoon Orpheum gatherings during the past year. She explained in a stage whisper that she was absent last Monday because she was spending the day in jail for speeding! She said that in some ways the jail had it all over the Orpheum, say for excitement and novelty now!

Even Olive, who is somewhat difficult to impress, was affected by Faversham and the elegant Helen Daube, his leading lady, and by the sparkle of the Alfred Sutro playlet, "A Marriage Has Been Arranged," which is polite comedy, of course, with all natural feelings suppressed, and well bred wit splashing all over the place.

The playlet was a great success, and Faversham had to make a little speech at the end, in which he told about a letter concerning himself, written to an Eastern critic, and which said: "I have heard that Faversham was a fine actor. But how could I tell in that playlet?"

"If Annette Kellerman came out and only did a song and dance, how the h——l could we tell that she was a swimmer?"

That "little hell' made Mr. Faversham quite one of us, as Olive herself remarked, and we all laughed and applauded and got quite clubby.

You'd scare expect one of their age, much less five of them, to do the astonishingly clever and entertaining things that those Stars of Yesterday do. Corinne is lovely yet, and so is her voice.

And there is Barney Fagan, over 70, but easily passing for a young blade of 50.

And Lizzie Wilson, Joseph J. Sullivan, Tony Williams, not to mention little Mae Kennedy, who sat on Tony Williams' knee and watched the introduction of the characters through the frame. Their stuff is so old that it is new.

Harry Holman with his sardonic wit and his comically cracked voice, comes back, welcome as flowers in May or some other time, in a new playlet called "Hard Boiled Hampton," which is full of genuine wit and humor.

"Music, Wit and Philosophy," as Zelaya's act is billed, is rather a large order, but Zelaya delivers it. He gives a novel and clever monologue about jazz, and plays the piano exquisitely.

The take-off is accomplished by Berg and English, styled "Two Dark Horses of the Movies," in that they are the doubles for Harold Lloyd and Harry Pollard, according to an announcement on the screen heralding their acrobatic act. It's pretty generous of Lloyd and Pollard to let it be known that they have doubles, but at that it is good advertising for the stars. Both Berg and English mimic the stars' mannerisms to perfection, and put over a neat acrobatic comedy act on their own.

I warn you right now that the act of Hughes and Debrow opens with some pistol shots, and I also inform you that if you put your fingers in your ears, you won't be missing much so far as the talk is concerned. There is a little dancing, the best stuff the boys do.

Francis X. Donegan and Julia Steger offer a nice dancing act, both being clippers in their line—but why will dancers try to sing? It's quite as bad as if a grand opera singer suddenly broke into dancing!

Mabel Normand Arrives Today

The irrepressible Mabel Normand will arrive among us today, after an absence of nearly nine months, during which she has made two trips to Europe.

Whether Miss Normand wears a wedding ring or not, whether she comes alone, or is going to spring a brand-new husband on us, is one of the mysteries that a palpitating press will try to solve.

Reports have been rife that Miss Normand was married to a middle-aged business man, over in London.

Miss Normand's friends here don't believe a word of it. Miss Normand, herself merely makes the sphynx look like a gabby old thing when she is asked about the matter.

MRS. HICKEY SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Worcester, Mass. — "I had some trouble caused by a female weakness and got so run-down and weak from it that I could hardly stand or walk across the floor. The doctor gave me all kinds of pills, but nothing helped me. I happened to meet a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I thought I would try it. After taking it a week I began to improve, and now I feel fine and am doing all of my housework, including washing, sewing and house cleaning. I have recommended your medicine to my friends, and I am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial, as I would like to help any one suffering the way I did from such a weakness."—Mrs. DELIA HICKEY, 4 S. Ludlow St., Worcester, Mass.

WHY CHILDREN ARE SICK IN WINTER

If your children are the least bit run down, thin in flesh and subject to colds, build them up with Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It will give them a new supply of rich, red blood, give them strength and vigor, and help them to resist disease.

Your druggist has Gude's-in both liquid and tablet form.

It's Neuritis!

Not Rheumatism

That sharp, stabbing pain in the upper arm, about the shoulder blade, in the nape of the neck, along the forearm or down the thigh and leg, is often Neuritis—not Rheumatism.

If you have severe frontal headache with a feeling that something is twitching or pulling at the eyeballs—a dull aching pain in the back, accompanied by an occasional shooting pain in the side—numbness or tingling in the fingers or "stitches" of pain here and there, the chances are that your trouble is Neuritis.

No matter where your pain is located, you can get prompt relief without taking bromides, narcotics or other dope. Apply Tyrmol over the part that hurts, and you will be rid of the torture. Tyrmol is guaranteed harmless. It helps to soothe and heal the weak, inflamed nerves.

DISPLAY STORE WINDOW LIGHTS

Merchants Hear Lecture on New System

Sunlight Effect Now Given During Night Time

Illumination Deficient in Majority of Shops

Modern store window illumination was demonstrated and described yesterday at the luncheon of the Electric Club at the Alexandria. Many local merchants were present as guests to view the portable display that was shown with such success in San Francisco, and will be shown in many Southern California cities.

The improvised store window was dressed with furnishings from Barker Brothers, and the demonstration consisted in showing the remarkable change in the appearance of articles in the window caused by altered lighting effects, which were manipulated by Clark Barker, assistant to the general manager of the National Lamp Works, Pacific Coast division.

LECTURE BY ELTRINGHAM

Robert L. Eltringham, manager of the California electrical co-operative campaign, lectured on the subject of window lighting. Mr. Eltringham said that recent experiments at Johns Hopkins University had proved that human beings, like moths, are attracted by light, and the use of light had become one of the most important parts in dealing with public psychology from the merchant's standpoint.

The Barker Brothers display was first shown under 15-foot candle light, which Mr. Eltringham said was commonly used, and then the current was increased until 100-foot candle light was produced, which the speaker said was ideal. He gave data showing how the increased illumination by actual experiment had increased largely the income of stores.

The device was equipped with spotlights used to bring out some special object in the display, and with colored lights employed to get any desired effect. Mr. Eltringham said that the time when the customer must step to the door to see the garment in its proper color had passed, because of the invention of lights for windows and showcases, and because the elimination of the red and yellow tendencies of the spectrum show colors as they appear in sunlight.

LIGHTS ON DISPLAY

These lights were thrown on the display, as well as colored lights to denote coolness, for the use of displays in summer garments, and others to suggest warmth for winter displays.

The speaker said that an inspection of stores in Los Angeles and San Francisco showed that 95 per cent of them were deficient in window lighting.

E. B. Van Kuran, president of the club, presided at the luncheon, which was attended by several hundred men.

BATH INTERRUPTION CHARGED BY WIFE

STOPPER PULLED FROM VENT IN RUDE FASHION, SHE ASSERTS

A wife's story that her husband once rudely interrupted her bath by pulling the stopper from the tub and opening the window won $15 temporary alimony for Mrs. Mabel Clarke of Long Beach yesterday in Judge Summerfield's court, when her husband, George R. Clarke, garage foreman, failed to appear. Mrs. Clarke is suing for divorce.

After Mr. Clarke had emptied the water from the tub, his wife charges that he ordered her in unbecoming language to go to bed. She also cited other violent actions on the part of her husband, including the breaking of a cut-glass bowl and forcible entrance to her room by breaking down the door. She asserted she finally was compelled to leave her husband, and go to live with her parents in Pasadena.

DROOPING EYELIDS RESULT IN ARREST

DETECTIVE NABS MAN WHO IS ACCUSED OF THEFT IN RAILWAY OFFICE

Drooping eyelids led to the arrest yesterday of William H. Fidbottom, 37 years of age, said to be a former assistant cashier of the Chicago and Alton Railway at Springfield, Ill., and accused there of the theft of $8000 in railway funds.

According to Detective Sergeant Joseph Taylor, who arrested Fidbottom, the latter left Springfield in December last and has been sought ever since. The detective saw him on the street, he says, and recognized him from photograph and description by the peculiar formation of his eyelids. Fidbottom, the detective says, admitted his identity. He is held as a fugitive from justice.

The club in the past has confined itself to a monthly dinner and entertainment of visiting celebrities of the music and stage worlds. The announcement also is made that L. E. Behymer will continue as president, Ben Field as vice-president and C. E. Pemberton as secretary, having been named by the recently elected board of directors.

HARDEN FUNERAL TODAY

Organizer of California Sons of Revolution Was Leader in Patriotic Society Work

Private funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. today at W. A. Brown's funeral chapel for Edward Thomas Harden, a well-known Los Angeles resident.

Edward Thomas Harden

Mr. Harden died Sunday at his home, 2321 Thompson street, where he had lived since 1889, when he first came to the city. He was 69 years of age, and was born in Savannah, the son of Judge Edward Harden, a man of much prominence in Georgia. He entered the cotton business in his youth and was known throughout the South as a grower and shipper.

In Los Angeles he was prominent in politics, and was one of the founders of the California Society of Sons of the Revolution. He was historian of the society at the time of his death. He was a member also of the Society of Colonial Wars, Order of Oglethorpe, Order of Washington and the Masonic fraternity.

He leaves his widow, who was Isabel Elizabeth Porter, daughter of the Rev. Dr. David Hyal Porter of Savannah, and one daughter, Mrs. Norman D. Bishop of this city. Rev. George Davidson will officiate today at the services, which will be followed by cremation at Rosedale.

Mr. Harden had been confined to his home by illness for several months and his death was not unexpected.

FERRYBOAT TAKES SEA THIS WEEK

San Leandro Will be Launched at Harbor With Due Formality

The ferryboat San Leandro, second turboelectric-driven ferryboat to be launched at the plant of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation, and likewise the second of its kind to be built in the United States, will take the water at the harbor plant Saturday morning.

Miss Marguerite Stoakes, pretty San Leandro girl, will be sponsor. She will be accompanied to Los Angeles by her mother and a party of San Leandro Chamber of Commerce officials and business men, headed by Mayor Allen E. Pelton of San Leandro.

The San Leandro, like her sister ship, was designed by John R. Matthews, San Francisco naval architect, and will take the water about 90 per cent complete. Besides the turboelectric type of engines, the vessel will include all the ferryboat innovations which were included in the Hayward. Her length over all will be 340 feet, with a molded breadth of forty-four feet and depth of nineteen feet six inches. She will have a passenger capacity of 5000 and will include a large restaurant, spacious cabins and rest rooms, all ventilated by the most modern ventilation system.

Officials of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways (Key Route system,) for whom the vessel is being built, headed by W. R. Albergar, vice-president and general manager, and F. W. Frost, secretary and treasurer, plan to attend the launching. The vessel when fully completed will cost $500,000.

Lester S. Ready, assistant chief engineer for the State Railroad Commission, on Thursday will succeed to the post of chief engineer, made vacant by the resignation last week of Richard Sachse, according to a statement made here yesterday at the offices of the commission.

Mr. Ready, who is 34 years of age, has been an engineer of the commission's staff for ten years. He has been, during the greater portion of the time, in gas and electric work of the engineering department. He was appointed assistant chief engineer in October, 1919.

Mr. Ready is a native Californian, the son of W. E. Ready, of Ventura county. He was a member of the class of 1913, University of California.

MUSHET OPENS FIGHT FOR TAX LAW REPEAL

COUNCIL REFERS RESOLUTION TO COMMITTEE ON FINANCE

Councilman Mushet yesterday opened his battle for the repeal of the occupational business license tax, introducing at yesterday's session of the City Council a resolution declaring that the tax was "an unjust and iniquitous" one. The resolution was seconded by Councilman Conaway, but after a debate, in which President Criswell and Councilman Mallard attacked the proposed repeal, the resolution was referred to the Council's finance committee, where it will be discussed tomorrow afternoon. If Councilman Mushet's resolution is finally adopted, it calls for a repeal of the tax effective at the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1.

RELIEF ORGANIZATIONS GET THIRD OF ESTATE

The Young Women's Christian Association, Volunteers of America and Children's Hospital were each awarded $1600 yesterday by Judge Rives of the Probate Court in a partial distribution of the estate of Mrs. Elizabeth Bowker, who died a year and a half ago.

She left an estate of approximately $47,000, a third of which was to go to the above-named institutions and practically all of the remainder to two sisters living in the East.

Wife-Slayer Believed to be Sick Mentally

A trial to determine the sanity of John Cargano, who is charged with the murder of his wife, Carlotta, will commence today in Superior Court before Judge Burnell.

Several months ago Cargano came home from work and was greeted at the door by his wife. Instead of kissing her, it is asserted that he shot her. As she fell, mortally wounded, he bent over her, according to the police, kissed her and told her that he knew she was tired, so he was sending her to heavenly rest. He is then asserted to have called his children and told them the same thing.

Since his arrest he has been under observation and the sanity trial follows a statement by the District Attorney's office declaring its belief that Cargano is mentally unsound.

VON STROHEIM TOLD TO SUPPORT HIS SON

ACTOR AND DIRECTOR ORDERED BY COURT TO PAY $75 FOR BOY'S EDUCATION

Eric Von Stroheim, motion-picture director and actor, yesterday was directed by Judge Summerfield in Superior Court to pay $75 a week for the support of his 7-year-old son by a former marriage, Eric Von Stroheim, Jr. The order is said to have followed an agreement between attorneys for Mr. Von Stroheim and his former wife, Mrs. Mary A. Von Stroheim, who obtained a divorce from the director three years ago on a charge of desertion. The sum allowed is to be expended for the education of the boy. In the order, it is set forth that Mr. Von Stroheim's salary is $3000 a week, and that he is to be paid this amount for three pictures a year, each to take ten weeks for the making, and that this salary is not to be paid unless each picture is finished within the allotted time.

CIVIL WAR DRUMMER DIES HERE

Robert Bain, Forty Years in State, Engaged in Construction Business

Robert Bain died early yesterday morning at his home at 322 West Sixty-seventh street. Mr. Bain, who was 80 years of age, was a Civil War veteran. For many years he had been affiliated with the Stanton Post of the G.A.R.

During the Civil War he served as a drummer, using an instrument captured in 1776 from the Hessians. Mr. Bain kept the drum throughout his life, and cherished it above all other possessions. It has often been an object of curiosity in parades in Southern California.

Mr. Bain came to California nearly forty years ago, and entered the contracting and construction business, from which he retired several years before his death. He was a member of the Society of Southern California Pioneers.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Dora F. Bain; a son, Robert A. Bain, and a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Jones. The body is at Garrett Brothers' undertaking parlors, 1237 South Flower street. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. at Garrett Brothers' chapel.

WIFE'S SUIT DELAYED TOO LONG, SAYS COURT

COMMUNITY PROPERTY CLAIM ON MARRIAGE ANNULLED IN 1917 REJECTED

Ella L. Gadberry was somewhat too slow in bringing suit against her former husband, Cephas H. Johnson, for division of community property at 1626 East Jefferson street, Judge Elliott Craig of the Superior Court indicated yesterday in dismissing the suit.

Mrs. Gadberry had her marriage to Johnson annulled in 1917 after they had purchased a home. Subsequently she remarried. Some months ago she brought suit for half of the community property and for an accounting of rentals, but the court held that the statute of limitations disbarred her from any right in the property.

Mayor Appoints Three Pension Board Members

Mayor Cryer yesterday appointed Oscar M. Souden, Walter P. Story and Irving H. Hellman as members of the newly-created Police and Fire Pension Board, which will administer the new pension system established under the charter amendment approved by the voters at the November election. The appointments required confirmation by the Council.

When the new members are sworn in they will appoint a secretary and begin to hold sessions at once, as much work awaits their action. Oliver Fender was yesterday reappointed by the Mayor as a member of the Board of Plumbing Examiners, and the Council confirmed the appointment.

CHARGE IS ADMITTED

Joseph Landry pleaded guilty to bringing an undesirable alien woman into the United States, in Judge Bledsoe's court yesterday, and was sentenced to nine months in the San Bernardino County Jail. The woman, Mrs. Maude Browning, was brought here from Drumheller, B. C. She will be sent back there.

HAZEN JOB IS FILLED BY FOSTER

Scramble for Permanent Appointment Expected to Take Place

Thomas B. Foster, of the San Francisco office of the secret service of the United States Treasury Department, has been ordered to Los Angeles to take charge temporarily of the local office, made vacant by the death of George W. Hazen.

It was said many applications for the permanent post will be made to W. H. Moran, Chief of the secret service, at Washington as the Los Angeles appointment is considered one of the choicest and most to be desired of any in the country.

The dead agent had been in this city for 17 years, coming here after the San Francisco earthquake in April, 1906. He had been located in the Bay City, and Seattle, in the latter during the gold rush to the Klondike. He was also connected with government secret service work in New York, and Washington, being one of the personal body guard of President Cleveland during his first term. In all he was a member of the secret service force of the government for thirty-five years. His father, Larry Hazen, was chief of police in Cincinnati, where the deceased was born, for many years, and one of the celebrated thief catchers of his time.

George Hazen was connected with the rounding up of some of the most celebrated counterfeiting gangs in the history of the country.

Bandits Steal Wrong Bag in Daring Hold-up

Held up in the drive-way of their home at 1718 Winona Boulevard, Hollywood, shortly before noon yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Otis O. Hunley, owner of a theater in Hollywood, succeeded in saving approximately $500 in currency when they handed over a grip similar to their money bag, but containing only a dress, it was reported to the Hollywood police. The two bandits, who accosted the couple on pretense of looking for the owner of some near-by flats, grabbed the small grip and ran to a waiting car.

Starting his machine, Mr. Hunley chased the two men for almost four miles, finally turning the race over to Motorcycle Officer William Roeder and Officer Fred Trosper, in a police car.

The two officers traced the bandits into the San Fernando Valley, but lost sight of them when a freight train pulled between the bandit car and the police.

The two men were described by Mr. Hunley and a description of the bandit car was obtained.

SENT TO JAIL FOR MISUSE OF MAILS

Henry Clabaugh, formerly of Anaheim, was given six months in the San Bernardino County Jail by Judge Bledsoe yesterday, after a plea of guilty to a charge of sending obscene literature through the mails. Clabaugh now lives in Seattle, and wrote his brother in Anaheim to send him the interdicted literature and pictures, but the brother was not prosecuted because it could not be shown that he knew anything of the character of the matter that he mailed to Seattle at the request of the accused.

RECIPE CONTEST SCORING AGAIN

Cookery Experts Tell How to Serve Vegetables

Their Formulas Make the Mouth Water

New and Unusual Methods of Planning Menus

Vegetables are essentials of the menu.

Not only are they valuable for their antiscorbutic salts, potash and phosphates, but they contain the carbohydrates that furnish energy and bodily warmth at much less expense than the same effect would cost from proteid foods.

At least two well-cooked vegetables are needed, domestic-science experts declare, to keep any meat course from tasting flat.

For this reason the fourth Times recipe contest is proving unusually interesting. This contest began Saturday and will extend to March 10. Entries should be on one side of paper only. Each recipe must have its author's name and address, and trade names of ingredients may not be used.

When the contests have closed, the prize recipes will be published by The Times in book form. The recipes will be duly credited to their authors, and the volume will sell for a nominal sum.

BAKED CORN

Two cans corn, two cans milk, three eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, three tablespoons cornstarch.

Scald milk, add cornstarch, which has been mixed with water to form a smooth paste. Stir until creamy. Add slowly to well-beaten eggs and add corn, salt and pepper, then pour in buttered baking dish and bake slowly one and one-fourth hours. The top may be covered with buttered crumbs before baking.—[Ruth Kugler, 1136 South Alvarado street, city.

VEGETABLE PIE

Make a good baking-powder biscuit dough. Place in a pan and cover with a layer of sliced ripe tomatoes. Dot with butter and a sprinkle of sugar. On top of this place a layer of sliced onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Then place a thick layer of sliced cucumbers, cover all with a layer of sliced green bell peppers and bake in a moderate oven.—[Mrs. A. Sheets, 1301 West Tenth street, city.

ANGELES SCALLOP

Pare and slice thin two potatoes, two carrots, two white onions. Wash a cup of fresh shelled green peas. Place in a baking dish in layers in this order: one layer each of potatoes, carrots, onions, peas, onins, potatoes. Between the layers and over the top sprinkle salt, pepper, thyme, flour and ground toast crumbs (two level tablespoons of flour are added to each cup of milk.) Pour over this milk or milk and water, nearly to cover it. Three strips of breakfast bacon may be placed on top. Bake slowly one hour or more. Serve hot.

VEGETABLES ESCALLOPED

Escalloped oysters and potatoes are quite well-known, but many other articles may be thus prepared and rendered very appetizing and wholesome. The following vegetables may be thus combined in any proportions, with any selections. Prepare as above.

Potatoes, carrots, onions, peas, lima beans, green corn, tomatoes, string beans, egg plant, cauliflower, sprout, squash, parsnip, endive. Canned vegetables may be used, if necessary. Layers of rice, macaroni, spaghetti, etc., may be used also.

Peppers and other Mexican seasoning may also be added.

After the escallop has been cooking for a half hour, bacon sliced, or chops, may be placed on top and turned when brown. The meat juice gives a delicate flavor.

MRS. MAR LEIGH,
2140 N. Raymond,
Pasadena.

SCALLOPED EGG PLANT

Two small or one large sized egg plants; three tablespoons butter; two cups milk; three eggs; one cup rolled crackers or bread crumbs; two tablespoons cornstarch, salt, pepper.

1. Pare egg plant and soak in fresh salted water for a half hour.

2. Cook in a second fresh salted water until tender. Drain and mash.

3. Scald milk, add cornstarch, which has been mixed with water to form a smooth paste. Stir until creamy. Add slowly to well-beaten eggs.

4. Mix egg plant, crumbs, milk paste, butter and pepper together.

5. Put in a well-buttered baking dish.

6. Bake slowly for a half hour.

MARTHA KUGLER,
1136 S. Alvarado street.
Los Angeles, Cal.

EGGPLANT CROQUETTES

Peel and slice one medium-sized eggplant. Boil until tender (as you would summer squash.) Drain and mash. When the vegetable has cooled, salt, and stir in a well-beaten egg and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat the mixture, and sift in flour to make a croquette consistency. (Neither too heavy, nor too thin.)

The amount of flour depends on the size of the eggplant, and the moisture retained after draining.

Fry strips of bacon, and drop batter in tablespoonful portions into the hot fat. Brown and turn. Serve hot.

Eggplant thus prepared, will have the appearance and taste of fried oysters.

A larger eggplant will require two eggs and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

MRS. BERTRUDE MASON,
708 Hudson, avenue, Hollywood, Cal.

CORN SOUFFLE

One cup of canned corn, one cup of boiled rice, one-half cup chopped green pepper, one-third cup grated American cream cheese, beat well two eggs and add to this one cup of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all these ingredients together and put in a well-buttered baking dish, decorate the top with sliced green pepper and thinly sliced bacon. Place in a medium oven and bake until brown.

SWEET POTATO SOUFFLE

To two cups of hot riced sweet potatoes add three tablespoons of butter, one-half teaspoon of salt, pepper to taste and one-half cup of rich cream, warm. Beat the mixture well. Then beat two eggs separately. Add yolks to the potato mixture, then cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Place the mixture in a buttered baking dish and place a layer of marshmallows close together on top and brown in a slow oven.

FACTORY SITE SOUGHT HERE

Willis-Overland, Inc., to Decide Between Los Angeles and Oakland for Pacific Coast Home

A series of conferences to be held here during the next few days in which John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., of Toledo, O., will participate, will determine whether Los Angeles or Oakland will be the Pacific Coast home of Overland and Willys-Knight motor cars, according to local representatives of the concern.

Mr. Willys arrives this morning on the Lark from San Francisco where for the past week he has been in conference with business men and Chamber of Commerce representatives of the Bay Cities. It was in San Francisco where he announced his company's intentions of erecting an automobile factory on the West Coast capable of turning out 100 cars a day and employing about 500 men.

Mr. Willys comes armed with statistics as to Los Angele's suitability as the western home of his concern, furnished him by officials of his company, who have been busy here for the past several months getting information as to factory sites, manufacturing costs and transportation facilities. San Francisco, it is understood, has already been eliminated from the eligible list.

Crescent Creamery Branch Safe at Alhambra Yields $300 to Robbers

Robbers entered the Alhambra branch of the Crescent Creamery Company at 2020 Pepper street, Alhambra, early yesterday, removed a 200-pound safe, carried it a mile away in an automobile truck, and looted it of $300 in cash.

The robbery was discovered by J. H. Sims, stableman for the company, when he came to work at 6 a.m. He called police, who found the bandits had cut through a heavy wire fence surrounding the factory, broke through a rear door, and rolled the safe to a truck waiting outside the fence.

By following automobile tracks, police traced the vehicle to Midwick Park, opposite the Fremont school, where they found the empty safe.

COUNCIL SUSTAINS ROCK CRUSHER VETO

Mayor Cryer's veto of the ordinance which would have set aside thirty acres in the Arroyo Seco as an industrial district inside of which rock crushers, as well as other industries, could legally operate was sustained yesterday by the City Council.

SENTENCES ASSERTED THIEF OF TEN AUTOS

J. H. Herald, who, according to the statements of the agents of the Department of Justice, has within the past year or so stolen ten automobiles only three of which were transported in inter-state commerce, was given five years and a day in the Federal Prison on McNeil Island, yesterday by Judge Bledsoe, following his plea of guilty of violation of the Dyer law. Herald was captured in San Francisco, and returned here for trial.

BROTHER SOUGHT

A brother whom she has not seen for thirty years is being sought by Mrs. Florence Lee Watkins Shelton of 936 Grattan street. The brother is Nat Vaughn Watkins. In a letter to The Times, Mrs. Shelton asks for aid in locating Watkins and expresses the belief that he is in this city.

Scientist Prescribes Gland Treatment

Dr. Arnold Lorand, physician in charge at Carlsbad, Austria, an internationally recognized authority on medical progress, recommends gland treatment as a safe and sure method of preventing ill health and warding off premature old age. The famous scientist in his book, "Old Age Deferred," says: "Considering the great importance of the glands in preventing premature old age, we must insist on the reinforcement of their functions, if changed by age or disease, by means of extracts obtained from similar organs of young, healthy animals."

Such a compound is now offered to the public in the form of Glandogen, a highly concentrated and efficient tonic, prepared in convenient tablet form from the glands of young, healthy animals and compounded with other valuable ingredients. This tonic has already achieved some remarkable results.

Glandogen is obtainable at the Henderson-Chambers Drug Co., 3rd and Main; Blaney-Chambers Drug Stores, 9th and Spring and 5th and Los Angeles; and Chambers Drug Company, 1st and Broadway. Mail orders given prompt attention.—[Advertisement.

License Records Reveal Romance of Victress in Long Fight for Estate

Mrs. Florence Akeley Quirk, a Los Angeles woman who recently won a seven-year court fight for a $4,000,000 estate, became the bride of Russell Craig Patterson, a retired banker, several days ago, according to a dispatch from Minneapolis.

Marriage license records revealed that Mrs. Quirk and Mr. Patterson obtained a license in this city on the 19th inst. All information of the wedding was kept secret by the couple and could not be ascertained last night, as the newlyweds are reported to be absent from the city on their honeymoon.

Announcement of the unexpected wedding was made yesterday in Minneapolis, former home of the bride, by O. Ralph Anderson, president of the Liberty State Bank of that city and who is in charge of Mrs. Patterson's business interests. He stated he had received the news in a telegram from the bride.

The former Mrs. Quirk is the daughter of the late H. C. Akeley, who left a $4,000,000 estate in mining and timber lands upon his death. In a will left by the Minneapolis capitalist, the fortune was bequeathed to T. B. Walker, his business partner for twenty-five years.

Seven years ago the daughter launched her fight to break the will and recently emerged victorious in the lengthy court battle. Instead of receiving the estate, the dead capitalist's business partner was awarded $200,000.

Mrs. Patterson's home is at 184 South Oxford street. The marriage license gave her age as 45 years and the age of Mr. Patterson as 47 years.

Death Takes Mrs. Selby at Her Home Here

Mrs. Evelyn Warren Selby, wife of Amos F. Selby, retired New York produce man, and sister of James G. Warren, president of the Warren-Bailey Company of this city, died yesterday at the family home, 526 South Manhattan Place.

The late Mrs. Selby had been a resident of Los Angeles for the past twelve years. She leaves her husband, her brother, two sisters, Mrs. E. A. Clark and Mrs. J. C. Ferguson, and a nephew, Frank A. Payne, all of this city.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of Pierce Brothers.

Funeral Today for Dr. Scott; Aged Physician

Funeral services will be conducted at the undertaking parlors of the Ruppe Company tomorrow morning for Dr. William G. Scott, 85 years of age, who died yesterday as the result of worry, it is said, over the condition of his wife, who is dangerously ill.

Dr. Scott, who was prominent in medical circles and a long resident of Los Angeles, was born in Cleveland, and was educated in Cincinnati. He was engaged in practice until 1913, when he retired.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Dora Owens Scott, and two stepdaughters, Mrs. Alene Sylvester and Mrs. Marion Moose. The body of Dr. Scott will be cremated.

LEADING MAN TO PLAY "BLUEBEARD" CHOSEN

HUNTLEY GORDON IS TO ACT OPPOSITE GLORIA SWANSON

After more than two score of leading men had been given screen tests at the Paramount Studio of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in an effort to find the suitable one to play opposite Gloria Swanson in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," Huntley Gordon was chosen yesterday by Sam Wood to take the part.

Gordon will have the role of Bluebeard. Wood had trouble in finding the right actor because the leading man must have a popular following and look old enough to be married eight times.

RETIRED MINISTER INJURED BY BICYCLE

Samuel J. Wilson, 80 years of age, a retired minister of this city, was seriously injured last night when a bicyclist ran into him at the intersection of First and St. Louis streets. The aged man was removed to the Receiving Hospital where his condition is said to be serious.

MANY ATTRACTED BY SMALL THEATER FIRE

Fire of undetermined origin and which caused more smoke than damage in the Mason Operahouse, early last night, attracted huge crowds in Broadway. The smoke was first detected by Harrison Smith, employee, at 7:15 p.m., pouring from beneath the flooring of the run-away to the gallery.

A bucket of oil and greasy rags scattered about were the only clews to the cause of fire. The approximate damage was $100.

MUSEUM TO BE DISCUSSED

The researches and facilities of the Southwest Museum will be discussed by Dr. John Comstock, director, at the meeting Saturday in the museum building of the Southern California Science and Mathematics Association. An inspection of the museum by the members of the association will follow. Four meetings are planned by the organization during the year.

PASTOR HITS STAGE, FILM CENSORSHIP

Government Restriction is Invading Personal Liberty, Dr. Sullivan Says

"The censorship of moving pictures and the drama will, unless watched with care, develop into ignorant tyranny and become a tool in the hands of unscrupulous politicians," said Dr. William L. Sullivan, of the Unitarian Preaching Mission, speaking at the First Unitarian Church last evening.

"On all sides, government supervision and restriction are invading constitutional liberty," said Dr. Sullivan. "Never before did the people need so much to remember, 'The price of liberty is eternal vigilence.' The legal censorship should, in my mind, be used only as a last resort.

"On the other hand we must remember that there are in the theatrical business some so base as to be willing to make money by the corruption of youth. A public opinion must be cultivated which will not tolerate the exploitation of youth by such men. I believe that one solution of the problem of censorship may be found in a voluntar ycommittee made up of writers, actors and producers, whose business it is to keep moving pictures clean. Such a committee has recently been organized in New York and I believe will work effectively."

The question box at the church is receiving many queries and tonight Dr. Sullivan will speak on "The Great Question of Our Time —Religion or Irreligion."

Mixed Party of Eight Seized in "Love Cottage"

Four young Angelenos, a Glendale youth, and three young women yesterday were the victims of a party which they assert was staged by some one else when City Marshal J. A. Porter of Newport Beach arrested them all at a Balboa Island cottage which they had assertedly preempted for partying purposes.

The young men, giving their names as R. O. Branaman, 2901 Waverly Place; Homer Mitchell and Scott Thursby, 934 West Sixth street; H. Smith of the Majestic Theater Building, and L. G. Andrews of 921 Lexington avenue, Glendale, spent the night in the Santa Ana County Jail. The three girls, their asserted companions in the beach party, were held by authorities for several hours.

The young women explained a chaperone was to have met them at Balboa, but failed to put in an appearance. They also declared the Branaman boy told them the cottage belonged to his father.

Frank J. Kuntzner of Glendale, department manager of the Mathews Paint Company, Inc., of this city, is the owner of the asserted "love nest."

Recently he noted that a party had been held there without his consent and he enlisted the services of a friend as a watchman for the place, he admitted last night.

Paul Bern Quits Universal to Do Scenario Work

Paul Bern, a supervising editor at the Universal Studios, resigned yesterday in order to devote himself to independent scenario writing and adaptation. Following the great success of "The Christian," which Mr. Bern adapted from Sir Hall Caine's novel, he has received offers from several producers.

Mr. Bern was former scenario editor at the Goldwyn Studios, where he made an enviable reputation. He has also directed several successful pictures, including Rex Beach's "The North Wind's Malice," co-directed with Carl Harbaugh, and Alice Duer Miller's "The Man with Two Mothers," both Goldwyn productions.

"I shall not make any permanent staff connections, for I want to be free to write continuities," said Mr. Bern last night. "My association with Universal has been very pleasant, but I want to give my time to independent writing."

LOST DOG RETURNED, ALICE TERRY HAPPY

SPITZ, PRESENTED TO ACTRESS AT MIAMI, IS FOUND IN DESERT; $500 REWARD

When Alice Terry, Metro star and wife of Rex Ingram, director, was in Miami, Fla., recently with her husband during the filming of "The Passion Vine," the Chamber of Commerce in that town presented the actress with a thoroughbred Spitz dog in appreciation of a personal appearance before the club.

Returning to Los Angeles recently the dog, which Alice had affectionately named "Ignats," became restless and jumped out of the train window at Carp, Nev.

Under the direction of B. H. Gregg, special agent of the Salt Lake Railway lines, twelve men took up the search. The dog was found a few days ago by John Snors of Rock, Nev., wandering aimlessly and hungry in the Mojave Desert.
